Central, Western Pa. Holstein Breeders Honored At Annual Convention

DAVE LEFEVER

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — Harold F. Crider registered his first animal in 1941 when he was 10 years old.

Since then, Crider went on to develop what has been called "one of the (genetically) deepest herds in the entire country" by renowned Holstein broker and author Horace Backus.

Crider and wife, Leona, have now turned the management of that herd on Antrim Spring Farm, Franklin County, over to sons, Roger and Rodney.

Having bred more than 30 cows that scored Excellent over the years, Crider was one of two breeders inducted into the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Hall of Fame at the annual convention banquet here Thursday evening

David Burket, Burket Falls Farm, Blair County, was honored for his pioneering work in both polled Holstein and Red and White genetics, as well as his overall breeding program.

In 1960, Burket traveled to Wisconsin where he purchased a herd of 11 registered Holsteins. One of them gave birth to a naturally polled heifer calf named Princess Fayne Houwtje, who was destined to become a famous cow.

In addition to holding the lifetime record for butterfat production for a period of time, Princess was also featured on the cover of Pennsylvania Holstein News and was granddam to Burket-Falls Reflection Milly, the 1971 All-American 2-year-old cow.

In 1974, a Milly and Penstate Ivanhoe Star daughter gave birth to a red heifer calf sired by Burket-Falls Grandee. This calf, Burket-Falls Grand Mini, become an All-American Red and White as a 2-year-old and served as seed stock for the Red and White herd.

"By accident, (Burket) got started in both the polled and Red and White business," said Douglas Seipt in presenting the award. "But it was no accident that (Burket) has developed these traits into a thriving business."

Dairy Day Presents Challenging Questions

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

NEW CENTERVILLE (Somerset Co.) — "If your business is going to continue, you must be replaced," said Dr. Bernard Erven, an Ohio State University professor who spoke to more than 50 farmers on Feb. 20 during the annual Laurel Highlands Dairy Day, at New Centerville Firehall.

"Who's going to operate your business in your absence? These are questions you must ask yourself and prepare for the future," said Dr. Erven, an extension specialist for the Department of Agricultural, Environmental, and Development Economics at Ohio State since 1984.

The purpose of Dairy Day is to present research-based information on issues relevant to local dairy farmers. Emphasis is placed on improving performance and competitiveness of dairy production.

This year, the program addressed the labor management problem in dairy farms with keynote speaker Erven. An information management session was held to help farmers improve profits.

Erven, a professor at Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio, has his bachelor's in agricultural education and his master's degree in agricultural economics, both from Ohio State. His doctorate in agricultural economics is from the University of Wisconsin. He has coauthored the book "Foundations for Managing the Farm Business," along with D. Lynn Forster, from Grid Publishing in 1981.

During the afternoon session, Erven presented topics on labor management and the transfer of farms to the next generation.

Erven advised farmers to understand the culture of their business, because no two businesses are alike. He advised that the family should be a part of everything that happens.

"Oral agreements often lead to confusion and disagreement, but written records provide the basis for resolving differences," he said.

He related to the farmers that transferring the farm to the next generation changes the business but choices are better made than

DHIA Members Conduct 14th Annual Meeting, Banquet

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — More than 50 DHIA members marked another year of the association with the 14th annual meeting and awards banquet at the Days Inn Penn State Wednesday evening.

During the program, Becky Mowrer, Pennsylvania's dairy princess, commented on the importance of product promotion. Since she began her reign as a county dairy princess in June, she has logged 3,000 miles as she represents and endorses the dairy industry.

Tom Smith, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Promotions/Atlantic Dairy Association Dairy Council, spoke about several programs under way to promote milk products. Mothers and children are the target audiences for many of the commercials, said Smith.

Although television commercials are important for advertising, "the most important thing I think we're involved with is school programs," said Smith.

The organization not only works to disseminate curriculum information but also to provide milk coolers to ensure that children get cold milk during lunch.

Additionally, a milk vending machine project has been introduced to several schools and businesses. Milk is sold at a rate of about 300 units per week from the machines of mostly (90 percent) chocolate milk

The Clyde Robison Award, given to honor leadership within the dairy industry, went to Stanley Burkholder, Potter County

Burkholder, a former DHIA board member who is active in many agricultural and civic organizations, has served on the Tioga County cooperative extension board, is a 35-year member of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and has served in many capacities on the county level of the Farm Bureau.

Frank Orner, Pennsylvania DHIA board secretary, said that Burkholder "always had the fortitude to stand up and speak for the farmer." Burkholder was elected to the state DHIA board

New York Broilers/Fryers

ATLANTA, GA.
February 26, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers remained light to fair as dealers continued to limit orders to most immediate needs. Offerings of the 3.5 pound and larger birds were fully adequate and the balance of sizes were at least sufficient. Movement through retail and distributive channels was limited. The market tone was about steady.

The Old Farmer's Almanac — This Week With Almanac

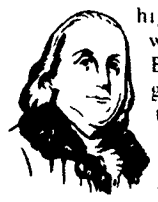
ST. PIRAN, MARCH 5

THE RESTLESS WIND

The wind plays an important part in lore and history. It's known as a weathermaker, as in the phrase "Winter winds doth blow and we shall have snow." Sir Francis Bacon (1561–1626) observed, 'Every wind has its weather.' The Devil is busy in a high wind—it's said, but 'Westerly winds are fair weather winds." Benjamin Franklin (1706–1790) suggested, 'Do business with men when the wind is in the northwest when the barometer is high." When we catch a cold, we catch it of the winds; some say another saying states, "The east wind brings aches and pains." The ancients thought of wind as a messenger, in a way that was the role of the fictional Mary Poppins who came and left on the winds.



Lo, as the wind is, so is mortal life.

–Sir Edwin Arnold, English author (1832–1904)

TIP OF THE WEEK

SPRING SLAW

3 tablespoons low-fat sour cream
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 drops Tabasco sauce
1 pound cabbage, sliced thin
1 small red onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 carrot, chopped

Stir together first five ingredients and chill. Combine vegetables, and chill until ready to serve. (This can be made up to two days ahead.) Just before serving, combine the dressing and vegetables, and toss well.

Makes 4 servings

The Old Farmer's Weather Proverbs

March—many weathers!

If it does not freeze on March 10, a fertile year can be expected.

Lancaster Farming

OPINION

Our Dust Bowl

In the Indiana University Press book, "Children of the Depression," editors Kathleen Thompson and Hilary Mac Austin provide a glimpse into how bad weather could be.

On page 15 of the introduction to the big, coffee table-size book, there's a rather somber photo of a father and sons who are trying to make their way through a dust storm in April 1936 in Cimmaron County, Okla. For about two years already in the mid-1930s, the Dust Bowl of the Great Plains came on the heels of the greatest economic depression in history.

In the photo, the farmer's house stands out as a mere shanty. Times were tough. And then came the Dust Bowl.

In 2002, we are living through almost the same kind of thing here in the Northeast. A recession that won't quit. A drought that won't quit, either.

In Lancaster County alone, one of many counties subject to a drought emergency situation, fields are parched. Many old-time producers have admitted to us they have never seen anything like this. Already we could be heading toward disaster — simply put, the rains are needed simply to keep wells from drying up. It may be too late to afford any kind of spring dry-up simply to plant crops. It has state legislators rethinking — and rewriting — state water plans.

We know that writing about how dry it is does little to bring rain. It can be a futile task, pointing out the severity of this drought, coming off of the driest and warmest year on record. But more, to protect the producer, is needed, along with stringent water conservation efforts that everyone should employ.

Insurance spokesperson Gene Gantz, in his article about producers managing crop risks, noted that crop insurance can manage a "possible wreck." Today, he noted, both the federal and state governments want producers to be protected with crop insurance. Catastrophic (CAT) insurance is free, but producers must enroll with an insurance agent to get it. However, the enrollment deadline for free CAT and other federal and state cost-share benefits is March 15. It's not too late.

We believe it's too risky not to sign up. Simply put, you don't want to live like that poor farmer and his sons did in the photograph in that book. We urge you to sign up for insurance with any one of a number of reliable agents — now.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Prune Backyard Fruit Trees

Dr. Tim Elkner, extension horticulture agent in Lancaster, shares the following tips on pruning your fruit trees.

The primary purpose of pruning young fruit trees is to develop a framework for maximum fruit production later in the tree's life. Once that's accomplished, pruning focuses on increasing light penetration into the tree, removing less productive wood, and maintaining the crown of the tree in an efficient, stable form.

There are two general types of pruning cuts employed — heading cuts, which are used to reduce or maintain tree size; and thinning cuts, which are used to remove entire branches. Visualize a tree as seen from above without its leaves. Branches radiate from the trunk much like the spokes of a wheel. To allow the sunlight needed for proper fruit development and coloration to enter the center of the tree and to make harvest easier, some of these "spokes" may need to be thinned out.

Consider these items as you work around the spokes or "scaffold" branches of a tree. First, remove suckers or watersprouts, which are those vigorous non-fruiting shoots that often appear at the base of grafted trees or in crotches and sites of previous pruning cuts. Then remove or head back to healthy side branches any stubs or broken branches that will invite insect and disease problems. Third, remove downward-growing branches since they develop few fruit buds and only serve to shade more productive branches. Next head back or remove the less productive of two rubbing branches since rubbing injury invites problems. Finally, remove any interior branches that are of low productivity. These branches are also shading more productive branches below them.

Backyard fruit trees are rarely overpruned. The inexperienced backyard orchardist is often timid about making cuts. As long as pruning is not accomplished by topping or shearing the tree, it will almost always benefit the tree's growth and production.

Many people ask if it is necessary to coat cuts made during pruning trees in the yard. Prior to the mid-1970s, it was standard practice to coat all pruning wounds with an asphalt-based paint or dressing. These materials have since fallen out of favor after research proved they do not prevent decay in wood, and in some cases actually stall the wound response and protect wood-rotting fungi. In short, make the proper pruning cut and let the tree handle the rest.

For Students To Explore Careers In Ag Sciences

Teenagers making career choices often must look past the glitz of "glamor" careers to choose what's best for them. To help in this process, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences offers prospective students its ninth annual Open House from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 23 in the Agricultural Sciences and Industries (ASI) Building on the University Park campus.

"The world of careers and employment can be confusing," said Marianne Fivek, assistant professor of agricultural and extension education and undergraduate recruitment coordinator. "Sometimes the best choices aren't immediately obvious, especially to a high school student who hasn't settled on clear career goals. Our open house highlights opportunities in the agricultural sciences in an informal, relaxed setting where students can get personal attention. It's also an opportunity for families to visit with deans, professors and current students.

"About 60 faculty, staff, and students from the college will be there to answer questions about the agricultural sciences, and about university life," she said. "Representatives from the Ag Advocates student organization and the Ag Student Council also will attend."

Attendees can learn about careers in agricultural and related fields and the college's 18 undergraduate majors, including turfgrass science, food science, landscape design, agricultural business management, agricultural, and biological engineering and environmental resource management. The event will begin with an informational fair at 8 a.m., followed by a general session at 9 a.m. and academic advising sessions at 10 a.m.

Exhibits will highlight academic departments, student organizations, ROTC, housing, and food services and other aspects of university life. A special luncheon and advising session for students who already have started their education at a Penn State location other than University Park will be held at noon in 101 ASI Building. An information session for minority students also will be held at noon in 107 ASI.

Families and students can visit college facilities and explore the campus through tours that will include food science laboratories, animal science facilities, and the School of Forest Resources. A panel discussion on internships, careers and international experiences in agriculture is scheduled in 101 ASI at 1:15 p.m.

After the open house, families can visit the University Creamery, the Penn State Bookstore, the Penn State University Libraries, and the Palmer Museum of Art. Penn State Housing and Food Services will offer special meal deals for lunch and dinner. The event is open to all prospective college students and their families.

To register for the open house or for more information, visit the World Wide Web at http://www.cas.psu.edu, contact the Office for Undergraduate Education at (814) 865-7521, or send e-mail to Marianne Fivek at mafivek@psu.edu.

Quote Of The Week:

"I have learned that success is to be measured not so much by the position that one has reached in life as by the obstacles which one has overcome while trying to succeed."

THE POWER

Background Scripture:
Romans 1.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 34:1-8.

When, some 20 years after the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, Paul wrote a letter to the church at Rome, he was at the apex of his missionary endeavor. He has traveled throughout Asia Minor preaching the gospel and establishing churches, as well as collecting a fund for the needy Christians of Jerusalem.

Probably, while waiting in Corinth for an opportunity to take these funds to Jerusalem, Paul writes this epistle as a letter of introduction, for he hopes to stop in Rome on his way to making a missionary journey to Spain. This letter, Romans, would prove to be his longest, weightiest, and most influential of all his epistles.

Paul realizes that the Christians in Rome, as adherents to a very minor religious movement, probably feel weak and insignificant in the midst of all the weighty trappings of Roman government and culture. Probably nowhere else in the world is power exalted and worshiped as in Rome. He knows that there must be times when Christians there are tempted to hide their faith in embarrassment and powerlessness.

Embarrassed Christians

Can you identify with that temptation? Are there times when you are embarrassed to be identified as a Christian, a follower of Jesus Christ who died on a cross in seeming failure?

If you are not so tempted, it may be because the Christianity you practice is a vapid accommodation to the world in which you live. Let's face it, if we teach, preach, and live the Good News of Jesus Christ, we are, more often than not, regarded as weaklings and dreamers. To teach forgiveness, to preach reconciliation and work for peace is seen by the world as the weakness of Christianity.

A young man is about to depart for a summer job in a Northwest logging camp. His home congregation is concerned for him, knowing that as a Christian in this rough, profane environment he will be subjected to intense pressures. When he returns home at the end of the summer, they want to know how his fellow workers reacted to his Christian commitment and he replied: "No problem — they never suspected a thing!"

I suggest that many of us are like that young man: by the lives that we live in an unsympathetic society, no one would suspect that we are followers of Jesus Christ. Too often, we may act as if we are ashamed of the gospel. Incognito Christians are not Christians.

Gospel Dynamite

Paul, however, tells the Roman Christians: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel: it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who has faith . . ." (1:16). That which appears to the outside world as weakness is really the invincible power of God. (See 1 Cor. 1:26-29; 2 Cor. 12:5; 13:4).

"Dynamis," the Greek word which our Bibles translate as "power," is suggestive of our words "dynamite" and "dynamic." In the New Testament, dynamis is used to designate a mighty work, a miracle performed by God's omnipotence.

So the good news of Jesus Christ is not weakness, but something dynamic, virtually dynamite, for it has the power to do what no earthly power can accomplish — salvation! No king, prime minister, president, military general, system of government, theory of economics, technology, political ideology, or anything else in this world can provide us with permanent salvation — an eternal right relationship with God. But the gospel of Jesus Christ can. Everything else provides us with only a temporary rescue.

The man on the cross was and is the most powerful man who ever lived. Those who follow in his footsteps, do so, not in humiliating weakness, but in that which is the greatest power in the world.

So let us join with Paul in proclaiming: "I am not ashamed of the gospel: it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who has faith . . ." And may that power be in you and with you.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
Feb. 22, 2002

Cow Numbers Shifting Around

• USDA 2001 Milk Production Report.
• Some gain, others lose.
• California gained the most.
• Wisconsin lost the most.

USDA recently published their summary of milk production for 2001. The results of this report present a dramatic statement about structural change in the U.S. dairy industry.

Some states lost thousands of dairy cattle, whereas others gained thousands. In general, cow numbers fell 1 percent in 2001 from the previous year, by about 91,000 head. This reduction from one year to the next is normal. However, it was the reduction in average annual production per cow (down 62 pounds) that was the real cause for the 1.3 percent drop in U.S. milk production.

The reduction in cow numbers was not equal across all 50 states. Again, some gained dairy cows and some lost. Also, some of the cows that left some states ended up being transported and milked to other states.

The top five states in terms of loss of dairy cows were as follows:

• Wisconsin, down 52,000 head
• Minnesota, down 24,000 head
• Texas, down 23,000 head
• Pennsylvania, down 18,000 head
• New York, down 14,000 head.

These five states combined represented a loss of 131,000 head of dairy cows. This loss, surprisingly, occurred during a year of near-record high milk prices.

One reason may have been that higher milk prices resulted in high prices for dairy replacements. Some farmers may have used the higher prices for replacements to pay off debt or retire from the dairy industry.

• California, up 64,000 head
• Idaho, up 19,000 head
• New Mexico, up 18,000 head
• Indiana, up 7,000 head
• Oregon, up 5,000 head.

It is interesting to note that California gained more cows in 2001 than were lost by Wisconsin. Also, the gain in California was almost equivalent to the entire loss from Minnesota, Texas, and Pennsylvania. The total gain for these five dairy states was equal to 113,000 head.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Feb. 22. Receipts: This week 91,400; last week 187,400; year ago 155,200. Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold unevenly steady across the nation Feeders in the Plains kicked off the week selling 1 00 to 2.00 lower in Oklahoma City, on a 5000 head increase in receipts Most of the auctions in the Plains region followed suit, with the exception of Amarillo and Dodge City which posted 1 00 to 3.00 gains on calves. Kansas, Texas, and Oklahoma direct feeders traded steady to 2.00 lower Although the Southern Plains received a shot of much needed moisture in the form of a horrific ice storm two weeks ago, many areas still remain very dry. Backgrounders and producers are starting to move their fleshy cattle off of wheat pasture as dry conditions do not warrant very many more weeks of grazing. However, most are ready for the feedyards, as gains have been very good on the short, dry wheat pastures. Light stocker cattle are in high demand for areas with some graze-out pasture.

In the Southeast, cattle sold steady to 4.00 lower, with feeders in Kentucky trading steady to 2.00 higher. The majority of the sales in the Southeast consisted of late summer calves, with buyers still hunting for thin calves to put out on grass. In the Mountain States, feeders over 600 pounds trended steady to 2.00 lower, with calves under 600 pounds selling steady to 2.00 higher. Demand is still good for thin calves to go to grass, with feeder demand dropping off the last few weeks.

The battle continues over packer owned cattle. The Senate and House will now meet in a conference committee to hammer out the details. There are still a lot of questions to be answered, as opposition is coming from all directions. It is not clear yet if forward contracts and other marketing agreements are included in this ban. Live and feeder cattle futures played give and take this week on the Board. February live cattle have all but lost their premium to cash, although 38 loads were tendered Thursday, and 50 delivery notices were posted for Friday.

Buyers pulled the trigger in the direct feedlots Thursday and procured cattle 1.00 lower than last week. The Southern buyers bought steers for mostly 71.00, while the Northern yards received mostly 113.00 on a dressed basis. Packers can quote a softer beef trade this week for lower bids, although feedyard managers probably won't offer much sympathy Order buyers definitely have a supply to choose from as receipts on this report have increased almost 40,000 head the past two week.

Heat with Corn!

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE

The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Overnight cold temperatures in winter wheat areas still a growing concern, yet wheat bids turned lower. Export sales remained slow through Mid-week for wheat. Corn bids bounced around steady most of the day looking for a definite direction to move. Light support came from overnight export sales and talks that China cancelled a large November order. Soybean bids surged higher due to technical buying on the Board. Small overnight export sales of soybeans helped boost bids.

Wheat steady to 3 cents lower Corn mostly 1 cent higher. Sorghum 15 to 18 cents higher. Soybeans 5 to 8 cents higher.

EXPORT SALES: PURCHASER COMMODITY TONNAGE DELIVERY DATE Taiwan Corn 23,000 Mar-Apr Israel Corn 9,000 Mar-Apr Israel Corn Gluten Meal 16,000 Mar-Apr Taiwan Soybeans 12,000 Mar-Apr Israel Soybeans 32,000 Mar-Apr

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening Feed 6 wks before freshening 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshing Less feet problems and less stress.

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends

Holstein Breeders Honored At Convention

In his life's work with Holsteins and Guernseys, Burket, with support of his wife, Betty, has bred more 63 Excellent cows He has had more than 80 bulls go into stud service under the Burket-Falls prefix.

Seipt said that Burket and Crider were selected for the Hall of Fame from "resumes of many outstanding candidates."

Both newly inducted Hall of Famers spoke of the friendships they have developed through years of association with the Holstein breeding community.

"The friends I have made are worth more than the contributions I have given," Crider said.

Burket and Crider have been active in local and state Holstein organizations as well as a variety of other associations through the years. Both have served as delegates to the National Holstein Convention many times.

This year's Distinguished Young Breeder Award went to David and Jill Trotter, Enon Valley, Lawrence County.

Trotacre Holsteins was established by the Trotters in 1980 with 38 head of Holsteins in addition to a high quality Guernsey herd. They have about 100 registered and identified Holsteins in partnership with David's father and brother

Since 1980, they have increased their Holstein rolling herd average from 14,783 pounds of milk, 527 pounds of butterfat, and 454 pounds of protein to 21,896 pounds of milk, 814 pounds of butterfat, and 675 pounds of protein. They have also increased their BAA score from 102.5 to 105.

In addition to raising four children, the Trotter's are active in local and state Holstein organizations and together chaired the 1995 Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention. David has also been a 4-H leader for 15 years.

David and Jill Trotter, Lawrence County, were named this year's distinguished young breeders by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

As a nationally approved dairy judge, he has served as associate Guernsey judge at the World Dairy Expo as well as judging numerous other shows.

This year's Pennsylvania Holstein Convention highlighted the theme "Expanding Your View in 2002" and featured a dairy cattle sale, farm tour, ladies' program, and the 89th annual business meeting.

All-Pennsylvania awards for top Holsteins in three major shows and 20 classes in 2001 were scheduled to be named at the awards breakfast this morning.

Eighty-two Holsteins out of more than 1,300 were set to be honored with All-Pennsylvania status.

James and Nina Burdette, Mercersburg, captured three All-Pennsylvania awards, plus four reserves and one honorable mention.

Dairy Day

He also presented a concept of involving an outside board of advisers, such as agricultural specialists or those involved in the agricultural field, but people not doing business with that particular farm. He then explained that those people should come to the family farm once or twice a year to evaluate the business.

"Those three outsiders will evaluate your farm and ask the tough questions that all the people doing business with you won't ask," he said. "They will give you an independent view of what's going on."

Erven asked the farmers some challenging questions throughout his afternoon presentation. He talked about staffing, spouses, and in-laws and reorganization.

"Being a farmer is essential, but what's more essential is being a business person," he concluded before addressing questions from the audience.

Other speakers included Richard Stup, human resource management specialist for Pennsylvania State University's Dairy Alliance; Brad Hilty, information management specialist of the Dairy Alliance; and Miguel Saviroff from Penn State Cooperative Extension in Somerset County.

"This year's Dairy Day provided farmers with a better vision of handling labor, either family or hired help and how to recruit, train, motivate, and keep labor on the farm," said Saviroff, a Somerset County agricultural agent who coordinated the event.

Saviroff believes that farmers learned how to communicate better and break the barriers of communication as well as how to develop responsibility as an employer and how to keep a labor force for many years.

Dr. Bernard Erven, center, a professor at Ohio State University, talks to Somerset County farmers during a break at the Laurel Highlands Dairy Day, conducted this year at New Centerville Firehall. The farmers are, from left, Richard Saylor, New Centerville; Ron Glover, Addison; and Joyce Hoffman, Berlin. Photo by Sandra Lepley, Somerset Co. Correspondent.

He said farmers can apply labor management concepts to the family farms and become more active participants in the operation. They motivate labor, which will reflect in more productivity.

Milk production is of the utmost importance on the farm, explained Saviroff. According to Penn State Department of Agriculture statistics, Somerset County has 20,100 cows with an average yield of 15,200 pounds yield of milk per year. There are 330 commercial dairy farms in Somerset County.

"It is an effort for the farmers to get away from the farm, but they come to learn so they can put this education back into their businesses," said Saviroff. "This is well-spent time. Time invested here today is going to be a great benefit to them in the way they approach human relations on the farm."

Mark Miller of Boswell, a dairy farmer who milks more than 200 cows, attended Dairy Day because "you learn new skills and how to manage a business, and I wouldn't have time to get that education otherwise."

Gloria Kaufman of Friedens, who manages a 70-head milking cow dairy farm along with her husband Allen, said she gets "ideas for the future at an event like this.

"If you don't come to these events, you don't know where to begin and how to manage everything," said Kaufman. "Farming is a complex business, and it doesn't hurt to get some ideas on all the aspects of this business."

DFA Meeting March 26-27

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The board of directors and executive management of Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) have announced DFA's fourth annual meeting, March 26-27 here in Kansas City.

The meeting, which brings together a host of U.S. dairy industry leaders, will provide producers with an excellent venue. Presentations will include:

- CEO Gary Hanman.
- Board Chairman Herman Brubaker.
- Terry Barr, chief economist, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, 2002 Agriculture Outlook.

At the Trade Show and Dairy Bar, representatives of DFA affiliates and partners include some of the best-known companies in the business, including:

- DairiConcepts — a joint venture between DFA and Fontera, formerly the New Zealand Dairy Board, will present its plans to domestically produce milk protein concentrate in its plant in Portales, N.M. The new product will compete head-to-head with unregulated foreign imports of milk protein concentrate in an effort to win back lost markets for U.S. produced-products.
- Dairy.com — DFA's joint venture partner who's business-to-business Website is dedicated to using the power of the Internet to provide an online platform for the entire dairy industry to more efficiently conduct commodity sales transaction and to provide dairy farmers with Internet-based services. The DFA Advantage to membership will premier at the launch of Dairy.com's newest analytical management tool for dairy farmers, known as Cowside©.

Elsie, the Borden cow, will be on hand to help Borden® Cheese, a division of DFA's American Dairy Brands, preview several new cheese products, including the exciting 3D Cheese snacks. Bite-sized pieces in the form of sports balls, 3D Cheese snacks are sure to increase milk consumption among America's calcium-starved youths.

in 1983 and served until 1992 in several capacities on the board.

Larry Specht, professor emeritus of dairy science at Penn State, was recognized for outstanding leadership with a Service Award. Specht serves as a liaison between Penn State and DHIA.

Herd management awards were also given during the evening. The highest number of herd management points was garnered by Jay Houser, Centre County, who won the Holstein division.

Rutter's Guernseys, York, took home a first place in the Guernsey division. J.C. and S.E. Wicker, Centre County, won first place in the Jersey division.

Lloyd and Denise Pease, Susquehanna County, were awarded the first place in the mixed breed category. Don and Pam Gable, Clearfield County, won first place in the Ayrshire division.

Little Hill Farm, Lebanon County, took a first place in the Brown Swiss category. Todd Biddle, Royal Colors, Dauphin County, had a first place in the dairy goat division.

Merrymead Farm, Montgomery County, won first honor in the low somatic cell count category, with 57,000, of herds more than 100 cows. Steve Quigley, Lansdale, accepted the award on behalf of staff and herd manager Scott Rothenberger.

Harold Fryer, Schuylkill County, was honored for having the lowest somatic cell count, 59,000, with a herd of less than 100 cows.

Keynote speaker of the evening was Terry Etherton, head of the dairy and animal science department at Penn State.

Etherton stressed that the university is a public institution. "The perspective I want to share tonight is if you pay taxes and live in Pennsylvania, you should view yourself as a shareholder," he said.

More than 81,000 students are enrolled in Penn State's main and branch campuses.

According to Etherton, one way of knowing the value of a university is by the amount of money the institution spends on research. Last year the university spent $472 million in research, one of the largest budgets earmarked for that category of America's universities.

Agriculture is changing dramatically, he said, and is not far away from having five to six dairy science department across the U.S., a consolidation of a few remaining departments that operate at a very high level.

Twelve academic deparments constitute the college of ag science, which also includes eight farms, 45 undergraduate courses, and 28 faculty members. More than 120 students work on the farms part time. In addition, three student clubs within the department have remained active in not only competition but also in traveling to other countries.

Seminar Set For Maryland

WESTMINSTER, Md. — An increasing number of small and parttime farmers in the Mid-Atlantic region are finding that goats can form the basis for a worthwhile agricultural enterprise.

Making such an enterprise profitable is the purpose of the Maryland Goat Conference, scheduled for Saturday, March 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Carroll County Ag Center in Westminster. Goat producers and other interested persons from throughout the Mid-Atlantic area are welcome to attend.

Speakers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia will be on the day's program. They include Dr. Anne Zajac, a veterinarian and parasitologist from the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine; Dr. Kevin Pelzer, a veterinarian who specializes in sheep and goat production management medicine, also from the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine and Robert Herr, Ph.D., of Narvon, Pa., a goat broker and feedlot operator in eastern Lancaster County. Their topics will deal with goat parasites, diseases and marketing, respectively.

Don Schwartz, a grazing expert and Washington County Agricultural Extension Agent will discuss pasture management for goat producers. Dr. Niki Whitley, Livestock Specialist from University of Maryland Eastern Shore will describe the various breeds of goats and their role in production systems. Susan Schoenian, the University of Maryland's new area agent for sheep and goats in Western Maryland, will cover economics of meat goats and feeding practices for goat herds. Commercial exhibits and door prizes also will be included in the day's activities.

A registration fee of $25 per person will be charged. The fee includes lunch, refreshment breaks, and resource materials. The luncheon menu will feature various goat meat samples. Registration by Monday, March 25, is recommended to assure a seat and meal at the conference.

To register, contact the Carroll County Extension office in Westminster at (410) 386-2760, (888) 326-9645 or via e-mail at mb232@umail.umd.edu . Checks should be made payable to the Carroll County EAC and mailed to 700 Agricultural Center, Westminster, MD 21157.

FOB prices are quoted on a per head basis "picked up" at the sellers farm in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Michigan; these prices do not include freight.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the lot plus or minus .30-.40 cents per pound. Some lots of early weaned pigs are discounted 1.00-10.00 per head on pigs weighing under 10 pounds. Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old. Estimated lean value is projected to base slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat. F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.4523-1.6137. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.4647-1.6137 mostly 1.4647-1.5144.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9700-1.0500; Class III - spot prices - .8800-.9900.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 0, Out 33; last week - In 0, Out 47; last year - In 0, Out 78. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

The base price for Class I milk for March 2002 is $11.62 per cwt., down $0.33 from February. A Class I differential specific to each pricing point (county) is added to the base price to determine the applicable Class I price. The Class II skim milk price for March is $7.66, down three cents from February.

Milk production is increasing in most of the region, but most noticeably in the Southeast. At midweek, a cold front pushed through the Midwest and Southeast and contacts feel that the sharply colder temperatures will retard the current gains in milk production. In the Northeast, it is still relatively mild and the milk flow continues to show slight gains. Fluid milk supplies are excessive of the slow Class I demand and diversion to manufacturing plants remain heavy. Contacts are surprised by the generally lackluster bottled milk demand throughout the region. Most feel that the recent cold and snowy weather system did not cause very much panic buying and "first of the month" sales appear to be having little impact on bottled milk orders.

Manufacturing plant contacts report continued heavy receipts and their plants are nearly full. Some schools have been or are on vacation and this is also disrupting Class I milk orders. Class II condensed skim sales and prices are mostly steady. However, prices from Class III wet solids is lower. Spot demand is fair, but contract shipments are clearing normal volumes.

The fluid cream market is little changed from past weeks, but a few contacts report that the glut of cream isn't quite as heavy as it has been. However, supplies are still excessive and sales to butter plants continue at relatively low prices. Spot prices are mixed. Last week's CME average butter prices did move about one cent lower, but in a few instances, multiples moved a little higher. Cream cheese producers are reportedly taking a few extra spot loads this week. Cream cheese orders for Easter are being filled and shipped. Ice cream output is steady to slightly heavier. Bottled cream production is increasing slightly as Easter needs are being filled. Churning activity remains heavy.

Why Customers Leave? Indifferent Employees High On List

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

YORK (York Co.) — Marketers have learned that, in general, 20 percent of customers do 80 percent of the business, "so take care of them," said Steve Bogash, Penn State extension agent, horticulture, Franklin County.

Bogash spoke about the realities of farm marketing at the 2002 Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference (MADMC) and Trade Show late last week to a standing room-only crowd at the York Holiday Inn.

Bogash stressed the importance of paying attention to and serving the needs of customers, no matter if it's a farm market or roadside stand. And take that feedback they give you wisely.

"I look at all these complaints as an opportunity," he said at the conference.

Penn State has looked closely at why customers are lost and found some interesting facts:

- 4 percent die or move.
- 5 percent leave because they found someplace better.
- 9 percent leave because of price.
- 14 percent leave because of a product problem — something you, the seller, could have fixed.
- 68 percent of customers leave because of an indifferent employee. You should inform employees that the "same dollars in the cash register are the same dollars that show up in employees' paychecks," Bogash noted.

In general, good farm market or other direct-to-customer businesses have to come up with "ways to smile through the tears," he said. That "smile gallery" is critical if customers are to return. Employees "need to make the customers feel appreciated," he said.

Bogash noted that for roadside stand operators or farm market managers, customers often return an item, such as a cantaloupe, to the store or stand. Even though it's been "cooked" in the customer's car for eight hours, if you fight the customer about returning the item, ultimately you will lose.

Areas that should remain top priorities in any business, according to Bogash, include:

- Your company attitude.
- Your policies.
- Your follow-through.
- Your credibility.

The single worst thing to do, Bogash noted, is to not return phone calls. Find a way to return calls using the "three rules" — call them three times, and document when — and then, if you can't reach them, spend the money on a postcard.

Though 13 percent of your customers will talk, influencing many people, if 70 percent are taken care of, they will "remain loyal," he said. "You can't buy that kind of advertising."

Also, managers should empower their employees to handle returned products with replacements. Though some employees think "they're giving away the store," Bogash said, he knows how important it is to hang on to the standard, old customers. "New ones cost a lot more money," he said.

Also, "you need to be out there on the front line, on the floor — greet customers and talk to them."

Bogash spoke about his own experience in a landscape business with 18 full-time employees. If the pressures build up on you as managers, he noted that if you're going to "crack," he said, "crack behind closed doors. Nobody should ever tell if you're in a bad mood."

Men customers, according to studies, hate long lines, wrong prices, and rude and pushy salespeople. Women customers hate dirty bathrooms and long lines. "Somebody needs to be on constant potty patrol," Bogash said.

Bogash noted he is really a strong advocate of bonuses. And as for customers, "feed them occasionally," he said. "Take them to lunch." The mileage you can reap in good business can be immeasurable.

Loyal customers, he said, will tell you exactly what they think. The issues will come out.

"And I like to surprise customers," Bogash said. "Give them a taste of something new. They will remember that over anything else. It works really, really well."

Some other items that can help build a good customer relationship: a parking lot well-lined with bumpers, so as not to "confuse the urbanites" who expect it. Match products to the income of the customers. Get a serious Internet presence, and advertise in a well-planned, logical sequence, depending on availability of products.

Deliver what and when you promise. The "relationship balance sheet" dictates how you and the buyer/client/contact sit at any time in trusting each other.

In the words of John Henry, a mission statement should be something as simple as "to delight the customer."

Said Bogash, "Make it easy to shop. This needs to be a pleasure."

Importantly, "smile until you need surgery," said Bogash.

"Nothing works better than that."

Brian Bednarz, Wolff's Apple House, Lima, noted the critical elements to a successful farm market store are fullness, accessibility, wide displays, and good color variety and coordination. "Make the shelving match the size of product," he told MADMC attendees.

Bednarz focused on the visual impact of the store on customers. He noted that the table should be "art," he said, and the display should "paint a picture." That picture should add to the healthful "fullness" of the store.

Also, good market managers can be resourceful enough to make use of materials to enhance the store, including waste products. He spoke about one producer that made a table out of an old barrel, using milk cans as chairs.

"What's garbage to you is authentic to your customers," said Bednarz.

For effective displays, the "more real things from your farm, the more real store you'll have and the more real it will feel."

"keep it simple and keep it consistent," said Bednarz.

As for lighting, don't make it feel "like you're in a hospital or supermarket" he said. Instead, subdue the lights but keep the room "upbeat." Make it enticing. "Make the customer feel it's a place he or she would like to go."

In the country, farmers' markets have expanded tremendously in the past two decades, according to Bernadine Prince, director, public education, for American Farmland Trust.

Prince noted that in 1979, there were less than 100 farmers' markets in the country. Today, there are more than 3,000 farmers' markets.

Six years ago, according to Prince, a market began in DuPont Circle, neighboring Washington, D.C. The market operates beginning March 31 over 39 Sundays. The first year the market opened, with 15 farmers, the market generated more than $200,000 in sales. Last year, 31 farmers, with about 2,200 acres, generated more than $1 million in sales.

Farmers' markets throughout the country generate more than $1 billion in sales annually.

Said Prince, "Farmers don't have to be part of a global, international food system to make a living. They can sell in local markets."

She noted that one farmer grossed more than $100,000 in sales in direct marketing.

At one time, there was not even enough standing room to hear the speakers during the MADMC seminar.

Southeast Meetings To Focus On Dairy Vaccines

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Vaccines and vaccination programs can be confusing. What should you be vaccinating for on your farm? Are all vaccines basically the same? Are modified-live virus vaccines safe or should you use killed products?

These and many other questions will be addressed in "user friendly" terms at regional comprehensive herd health meetings brought to you by Capital Region Dairy Team of Penn State Cooperative Extension.

The program will focus on vaccine use and misuse while touching on the importance of management and nutrition. Regional Dairy Team members including Dr. Arlen G. Mills, regional herd health veterinarian, will conduct the program.

Dr. Lez Choromanski of Intervet Inc. will present the latest on Neospora vaccination. Intervet has developed the only vaccine for this "new" disease which is becoming recognized as a growing problem in dairy cows. Neospora infection has been recognized as contributing to reproduction problems in a number of area herds.

The program will be offered at three different locations: March 5, at The Farm and Home Center in Lancaster; March 6 at the New Franklin Ruritan Community Center in New Franklin; and March 7 at the Agricultural Center in Lebanon.

Each seminar is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. Cost to attend is $10, which covers materials and lunch. Participants are asked to preregister by contacting: Penn State cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402. Telephone (717) 840-7408 or Fax: (717) 755-5968. All those involved in herd health decisions are encouraged to attend.

Poultry Progress Day March 7 At Farm And Home Center

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — To provide area poultry producers with the latest information affecting their businesses, the Lancaster County Poultry Association and Penn State Extension have arranged a comprehensive program for this year's Poultry Progress Day, Thursday, March 7, at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The trade show/exhibit area will open at 8 a.m. and the morning program is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Tom Pantano will chair the morning session, which will focus on the meat industry.

The morning topics will include "Marketing Perspectives," "Alternative Manure Handling Methods," and "Avian Influenza In Pennsylvania," a panel discussion covering the disease from all perspectives.

Lunch tickets will be available at the door.

Andy Bradford, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, will chair the afternoon session, with a focus on the egg industry.

Scheduled between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m., the afternoon subjects will include an update on "Focal/ Duodenal Necrosis (FDN)," "Beetle/Fly Control," "Federal Guidelines for Phosphorus and the Pennsylvania Phosphorus Index," "Impacts of Exports and Federal Legislation On the Egg Industry," and "Impacts of State or Consumer Group Actions On the Egg Industry," which will be addressed by Dr. Gregory P. Martin.

Bradford-Sullivan Dairy Day Draws More Than 500 Visitors

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

EAST SMITHFIELD (Bradford Co.) — "Growing" the Northeast Dairy Industry was the main focus of the 2002 Bradford-Sullivan Dairy Day last week here.

Five hundred people from several counties attended the event. Keynote speaker Tom Shepard, Dairylea Cooperative, began the day's activities.

"It is a great time to be in the dairy industry here in the Northeast. We have significant challenges, but in the midst of those challenges, there are some real opportunities," he said.

Shepard was quick to point out that the term "growing" didn't necessarily mean expanding cow numbers.

"When we talk about growth, immediately everybody's mind goes to more cows and expansion. Certainly expansion is the way that some will define growth. But every one of you needs to define growth the way that you need to define it — personal growth, growth on the bottom line, growth in your relationship on the farm and in your business. They're all personal decisions, but they do address growth."

He also stressed that we need to keep a steady milk supply in the Northeast because of the tremendous market.

"When you talk to people in the other areas in the country who have relocated, one of the issues that comes up is milk markets. Where are they going to sell their milk in the future? In the Northeast, we have the largest fluid processing sector in the United States. We have the largest class II production in the United States and we are the third largest cheese producing region, and one of the largest butter and powder producing regions," he said.

This translates to strength in the utilization of the products and also strength in the companies who purchase the supply of milk.

Another boost to the Northeast, according to Shepard, is that studies show that there are a lot of well-managed, profitable farms.

"There are recent studies that show that the top dairy producers in the West are outstripped by our dairy producers in terms of profitability. Studies show that the eastern dairies in the studies had a six percent higher return on assets than any other region in the country," he said. "At the same time, we're doing it with one-third fewer cows per farm."

Bradford-Sullivan Dairy Day keynote speaker Tom Shepard of Dairylea Cooperative, told visitors that it is a great time to be in the dairy industry in the Northeast.

All these factors relate to the fact that the "Northeast can and needs to make milk," Shepard said. "Efficiency, productivity, and profitability at the farm are the wheels that turn that production that the processor needs."

In order to keep dairy in the Northeast, Shepard stressed that producers need to develop a strategy for the future.

"You have to take an honest inventory and look at strengths and weaknesses. You need to ask yourself what you like to do, what do you need, what's required to get me there, and where can it be found?" Shepard said.

Often, said Shepard, the answers lie beyond the borders of the farm. "You need to think about strategic alliances. We as an industry have not embraced that like we need to," he said.

Many of Shepard's points were reinforced as five local dairy farmers took the stage to participate in a producer's panel. The first farmer, Jim VanBlarcom, Bradford County, has a joint venture with his brother on a satellite farm while each operates his own facilities. In addition to operating the satellite farm, the VanBlarcoms share equipment and labor on their individual farms.

Craig Williams, Tioga County Cooperative Extension agent, spoke to a group about composting as a viable alternative for disposing of dead calves and cows.

Rick VanEtten, Potter County, defines growth in the traditional sense of the word. He has steadily increased his herd size from 44 cows to 320, and has plans for further expansion.

The next two farmers, Vince Neville and Russell Jones, Bradford County, have teamed up to ensure that the farm will survive into the future. Neville served as Jones' herdsman for several years before buying into the facility. He owns the cattle, is purchasing the equipment, and will eventually purchase the real estate.

Jones has learned that he has to take a back seat and let Neville make the decisions. While each farmer lent a very different perspective to the concept of growth, each was optimistic about the future of dairying in the Northeast.

"One thing that makes this country great is the diversity of its people. We need to be cooperative and supportive of each other," said Jones.

Afternoon breakout sessions presented in-depth views on other subjects. Craig Williams, Tioga County dairy agent, presented a program on composting dead dairy animals. Williams cited several studies that show that composting presents a viable alternative to hiring a rendering service.

"A baby calf will be completely composted in about two months. A cow will take about six months," he said.

The key to successful composting, Williams said, is to start with a 24-inch bed of bulky, absorbing organic material, such as wood chips. After the animals are placed in the pile, they need to be covered with two feet of dry, high carbon co-composting material, such as old silage or dry sawdust.

Also presented at the daylong event was a talk about using the new agronomy guide coupled with new weed control options in 2002 and proper pesticide storage, security and disposal, presented by Agronomy Agent Mark Madden.

Dr. Zhiguo Wu, Penn State, addressed another group of farmers with information of how reducing phosphorus feeding can save money along with making farms more sustainable.

In yet another breakout session, Bradford County Dairy Princess and Promotion Program representatives entertained kids while teaching them the importance of dairy products using dairy trivia quizzes and other games.

During the day, visitors had the opportunity to mingle with representatives from 50 agribusinesses, have their hearing and blood pressure checked, or to purchase an award-winning pie from the pie competition and auction.

Bradford County Commissioners selected three winning pies from 23 entries. Placing first in the fruit pie division was Robin Gorrell with a cherry crumb pie. B.C. Morrissey Insurance purchased the pie for $55. Harold Hollenback placed first in the cream pie competition with his pumpkin cheesecake. His pie was purchased for $55 by Pennsylvania DHIA.

Taking first place in the specialty pie division was Shelly Ford, with a maple walnut almond pie. Pelton Trucking purchased the pie for $35.

BPAP Consultants Receive Training

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Fifteen dairy farm consultants got down to business at the Professional Business Consultant Training Seminar earlier here at the Penn State Harrisburg Campus.

The program provided additional training for professional business consultants who are involved with the Business Planning Assistance Program (BPAP). BPAP is a grant-funded program that provides monetary aid to dairy farm businesses interested in developing a business plan or running a feasibility study. BPAP is administered by the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders, who conducted the training seminar with sponsorship from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Alan Bair, facilitator for the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders, welcomed the group and presented some initial feedback from producers who participated in the Business Planning Assistance Program from 1999 through 2001. Bair expressed his intent that the consultants use this data to help them focus subsequent business plans based on what previous participants felt was important.

Roland Freund of Penn State's Cooperative Extension spoke to consultants about "Remembering the Human Side of Business Planning." Freund reminded consultants that it is not just a business they are evaluating; rather, many times it is a family business or lifestyle. "There are two types of farmers: those who live to farm, and those who farm to live," Freund said. He informed consultants that the involved parties must address the personal or family aspects relating to the farm business before they should even consider developing a business plan.

"Having a frank and open discussion about basic values should lead a couple to agree on which shared values are important to them," Freund said.

Brad Hilty of Dairy Alliance presented the technical side of business planning. He discussed each component that makes a successful business plan. He stressed that a business plan is more than just financial projections, but involves values, attitudes, business performance, and the future directions the dairy farm business will take. Hilty explained that having a business plan helps dairy farm businesses avoid emergency actions or "premature arrival of the future." He identified and defined the five main parts of the business plan: mission statement, objectives, goals, strategies and tactics, and reviewed how they work in the business plan.

Speaking to the group about why business planning is such an important tool was Jim Adams, vice president of Wenger Feeds, Inc. in Rheems. Adams related the importance of Wenger's business plan to their corporate success. Adams had his well-used copy of the company's business plan along for his presentation, stressing that it was a living and working document.

Speaking from experience were Steve Hershey, dairy producer and BPAP participant from Elizabethtown, and [illegible] Ridgway, of Farm Management Service. Ridgway has consulted on many BPAP projects in the past. He gave the group an idea of what was involved in preparing the BPAP projects he has worked on, stressing producer input and expectations.

Hershey told the group how the Business Planning Assistance Program "gave him another set of eyes" to look at his business through, and that second set of eyes saw things that he had overlooked because he saw them everyday. Hershey has used several different consultants in the past and continues to rely on his consultant's expertise to help him make business decisions.

Wrapping up the program was Michelle Jaymes-Parks of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders. Jaymes-Parks led a discussion with the group on how to generate interest in and use of the Business Planning Assistance Program by dairy farm businesses in the state in order to utilize the funding available for business plan development.

Dairy producers and business consultants interested in dairy farm business planning should contact Alan Bair at (717) 948-6328 for more information on the Business Planning Assistance Program or the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

Washington County Has New CED

WASHINGTON (Washington Co.) — Lee Young has recently been named county extension director (CED) in Washington County.

She also serves as the commercial horticulture agent for Washington, Fayette, and Greene counties.

Young earned a master of science degree in vegetable crops from the University of California at Davis and a bachelor of arts in alternative agriculture from Beacon College.

Prior to her appointment with Penn State, Young held the position of extension associate in the horticulture department at Cornell University and manager of the New York Crop Research Facility in Batavia, N.Y. She managed an industry-supported crop research facility, provided leadership for vegetable pest management in research and extension, and served as an executive officer for the N.Y. Vegetable Research Council and Association. In this position she secured public and private funding for the implementation of applied crop research projects; provided outreach to producers; coordinated producer/processor research support programs; facilitated an industry wide process for setting research priorities; and provided financial, personnel, and operations management for an industry-owned 30-acre crop research farm.

Young has also served as an area extension vegetable specialist and team leader with Cornell Cooperative Extension's Lake Plains Vegetable Program. In this position she planned, implemented, and evaluated extension educational and research programs in vegetable production for the commercial vegetable industry for six counties in western New York.

Trust Announces Annual Seminars

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust will host two seminars in March for Lancaster County farm families. Both of the seminars are free, and lunch will be served after the presentations. Advance registration is required.

The first of the seminars, entitled "Financial and Estate Planning for Farm Families," is scheduled Tuesday, March 19, from 10 a.m.-noon at the Farm and Home Center.

The workshop will feature presentations by Dave Weidman, certified financial planner with American Express Financial Advisors, Inc.; James Clark, of James Clark and Associates; and Ted Brubaker of Hartman, Underhill and Brubaker. Workshop attendees will follow the story of a typical Lancaster County farm family through a generation, beginning with a young couple buying their first farm and encompassing many of the planning issues they will face as farmers, including what happens when they are ready to pass down the farm and retire.

The second seminar, "Financial and Estate Planning for Plain Sect Farm Families," is scheduled for Thursday, March 21, from 10 a.m.-noon at the Intercourse Fire Hall.

Lancaster Farmland Trust board member Samuel Goodley Jr. of Byler, Goodley, Winkle and Hetrick, will join presenters Dave Weidman and James Clark in providing information about the different financial and tax planning needs of those farmers who file 4029s. The workshop will include information on farm transition and installment sales, federal income taxes, gift and estate tax issues, like-kind exchanges, Clean and Green, and farmland preservation.

To register, request additional information, or if you require a ride to any of the seminars, please call Lancaster Farmland Trust at (717) 293-0707.

Snyder Conservation District Hosts Farmers' Winter Meeting

MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — The Snyder County Conservation District will host a winter meeting for farmers and interested persons on Monday, March 25, in the Kreamer Fire Hall.

The Farmers' Spring Thaw Meeting starts at 9 a.m. and ends at 3 p.m. The Fire Hall will open at 8:15 a.m. for refreshments and to view business and agency exhibits.

Farmers will listen to guest speakers on a variety of topics. The conservation district is applying for Pesticide Course Credits and Nutrient Management Credits from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Staff persons from the Snyder County Conservation District and the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) are scheduled to talk about recent successes in installing best management practices (BMPs) for local farmers and BMPs that farmers can install themselves.

Dr. Douglas Beegle will talk about environmental and nutrient management concerns from phosphorous in soils.

Other topics include: Integrated Pest Management (IPM), recent pesticide regulatory changes and pesticide storage security and disposal. A representative from an agricultural organization will speak about public relations for farmers. Preventing the spread of animal disease from farm to farm will also be discussed.

Lunch will be provided at a nominal fee of $3 per person. Payment will be collected at the door. Reservations should be made by Monday, March 11, at the Snyder County Conservation District Office by calling (570) 837-0007, extension 5. The office is located at 403 West Market Street in Middleburg. Contact the Conservation District Office Monday through Friday between 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

CAN WE STOP CALF SCOURS?
Dr. Arlen Mills
Capitol Region Extension Veterinarian

Scours is responsible for about 61 percent of calf deaths, according to the NAHMS study several years ago.

Calf scours (or diarrhea) is not really a disease but rather the clinical sign of a disease that can have many causes. Bacteria, viruses, protozoa, nutrition, or environmental stresses can all cause calf scours.

As with other calf diseases, the incidence of scours can be directly tied to the calf that did not receive adequate immunity from the cow through the colostrum. Remember that to be protected, the calf must receive an adequate amount of good quality colostrum soon after birth.

Dr. Arlen Mills

Preventing and treating calf scours starts by identifying what the causes are. Make sure the management, including feeding and environment, is not the primary problem. Identification of any infectious organisms involved in the problem is important in designing treatment and prevention strategies. Age of the calf at the time of the scours outbreak is often a good clue as to the "bug" involved, but laboratory tests conducted on fecal samples from scouring calves or dead calves may be advisable. Discuss diagnostics with your veterinarian.

Scours associated with E. coli, a bacteria, is most common and the earliest to develop. Newborn calves can die from E. coli infection before the diarrhea actually develops. Prevention involves cleanliness and vaccination of cows followed by proper colostrum management. There also are several antibody preparations available that can be given to the calf by mouth at birth and prior to infection.

Another bacteria, Salmonella, can infect the young calf from day one through four to six weeks. This can be a very deadly bacteria. Often, the calves are infected from cows that are carriers. Prevention involves sanitation of maternity stalls, prompt removal of calves from cows after birth, and being careful so as not to track the manure on cows to the calf area. Colostrum or milk from infected cows can also be a source of infection.

A third bacterial agent that is gaining more attention lately is Clostridium perfringens. This same organism is linked to the "hemorrhagic enteritis" that is blamed for killing cows. Calves are usually over a week of age before bloating and diarrhea, sometimes bloody, occurs with Clostridial infections.

The two viral agents most commonly associated with calf scours are Rotavirus and Corona viruses. These two viruses usually are associated with diarrhea in calves less than one week old and up to three weeks of age. These two are not nearly as deadly as the E. coli or Salmonella. Prevention is again through cow vaccination and colostrum, or through antibody preparations given soon after birth. There is also a Rota/Corona oral vaccine for the calf. This must be given right after birth and before any colostrum.

Two protozoan diseases that are a constant danger to calves are Coccidia and Cryptosporidia. Both are seem in calves older than 10 days. They are diseases of poor sanitation, as they are shed in the manure of older calves or the cows. Contamination of feed or milk with manure is enough to infect the young calf. Most calf milk replacers contain a coccidiostat, usually Decoquinate. This drug does a good job of controlling coccidia but is not effective against Cryptosporia at label dose. Calves infected with Cryptosporidia can be saved with good nursing care. There is no labeled medication for Cryptosporidia so prevention is important. Crypto is also infectious to people so handle infected calves with care.

Most calves that die as a result of scours actually die of dehydration and electrolyte imbalance. Therefore, the primary response to a scouring calf should be to provide electrolytes as needed in addition to the milk that would normally be fed. Additional specific treatment may be possible once an infectious agent has been identified. Treatment details for scouring calves will be addressed in another article.

Scour problems are a constant threat to young calves. A good program of proper nutrition, sanitation, and management is necessary to minimize incidence and loss. Remember, prevention will go a long way in preventing treatment.

Hoof Trimming Clinic March 16

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — On Saturday, March 16, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., hoof trimmers, vets, nutritionists, and dairy producers are invited here to Kish View Farm for a day of hoof trimming.

Demonstrations include using various styles of stand-up chutes and tilt tables. This is a chance for anyone interested in hoof care to share ideas and see all kinds of hoof trimming tools and equipment.

A lunch will be provided by donation. At 6 p.m. there will be a buffet meal served at the Clarion Inn at Lewistown.

Those who wish to attend the evening meal will need to call ahead by March 13 to the event host, Paul Neer, at (717) 935-5608 or cell, (717) 994-1636. After the meal there will be an open discussion with trimmers, vets, and nutritionists.

Kish View Farm is located at the west end of Belleville, along Rt. 655.

New Farmers, New Generation

Marion Bowlan

Pennsylvania Farm Link

PASSING THE FARM ON TO THE NEXT GENERATION IS EASY... OR IS IT?

To the outsider, transferring a farm to the next generation ought to be as natural as the change in seasons. Isn't it like selling a house? List it with a realtor, or sell it yourself. Just find out how much its worth and take the highest offer. If your son or daughter wants it, maybe you'll give them a break on the price. How complicated can it be?

But transferring the farm to the next generation, or farm family business succession, is one of the most complex and demanding phases in the life of a farm business. Because it is such a daunting task, many farmers avoid making decisions, hoping that the transfer will resolve itself when they die. Others don't know where to start, and feel confused and frustrated.

Some think that as long as the real estate is transferred, the other decisions will take care of themselves. Many say they don't have time; they're too busy running the farm. The end result is that very few have succession plans, perhaps fewer than one in 50.

This lack of planning for farm business succession becomes a real problem for agriculture when we realize that families own more than 90 percent of the farms in Pennsylvania. At the core of this ownership is the capacity of the land and the family to create a productive farm business and to pass it on to the next generation. However, according to Successful Family Business only 30 percent of family businesses will transfer to the second generation, and less than 10 percent will continue into the third. What's wrong?

Farm families must resolve three universal dilemmas to survive into the next generation. They need to figure out how to retain an adequate retirement income, treat heirs equitably, and manage succession so that the next generation and the business are not overburdened with unreasonable debt. And there are no cookie-cutter recipes for the answers to these dilemmas — every family and farm are different.

Compounding these decisions is the increasing competition for other land uses, greatly inflating the market price of land and opening up a whole new spectrum of problems. Higher land values equate to more interest in children receiving "their fair share" of the farm's value. Generally, nonfarm heirs tip the scales in favor of development, while farm succession takes a back seat. Ways to be fair to the children are of constant concern, but equal distribution of assets among the heirs usually results in farm business failure.

What have farm families found helpful?

- Begin early, when you are in your late 40s and early 50s, to start the planning process.
- Talk about your ideas for the farm with everyone in your family and listen to their ideas.
- Start with one issue at a time. Advance into more decisions as you resolve the initial ones.
- Schedule regular business-like family meetings to discuss options. Include everyone.
- Compare your farm to others and talk to others who have gone through the process.
- Pool ideas, assess your situation, and develop a rough idea of what you want.
- List guidelines with small positive goals in sight.
- Seek advice.

To learn more about these issues and other dimensions of the transfer process including business and financial planning, tax and legal issues, and family decisionmaking, come to Pennsylvania Farm Link's "Passing on the Farm," workshops in Carlisle March 5 and in Lebanon March 12. Both meetings will be at the cooperative extension office. Call Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 to register for these workshops or for more information.

Next month: treating children equally versus treating children equitably.

Large Water Users Encouraged To Develop Drought Plans

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Citing Gov. Mark Schweiker's declaration of a drought emergency in 24 Pennsylvania counties, DEP Secretary David E. Hess is encouraging large industrial and commercial water users who have their own private water supply to develop drought contingency plans.

"While we hope drought conditions do not get worse, we encourage large water users to be prepared," Hess said. "DEP is helping by providing water users with a blueprint, accessible via the Internet, for developing drought contingency plans.

"By taking time now to plan and implement ways to reduce water use, rather than putting it off, businesses can come up with creative solutions. Industrial and commercial water users also may find that they can reduce operating costs at the same time."

Drought contingency plans should cover the ground and surface water sources used; a description of the processes using water at the facility, and a plan of action to reduce water use by 5, 15, 25, 35, and 50 percent.

Contingency plan templates are available via the Pennsylvania PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, Pennsylvania keyword "drought." Separate templates also are available for public water suppliers and self-supplied industrial and commercial water users.

Under Pennsylvania's new drought regulations, drought contingency plans for commercial and industrial water users of more than 100,000 gallons of water per day are only required to be prepared when requested by the commonwealth drought coordinator.

Only public water suppliers must now submit drought contingency plans to DEP as a result of the drought emergency declaration.

"Although contingency plans aren't yet required from industrial and commercial water users, such plans would be needed in case a mandatory reduction of their water use becomes necessary," Hess said. "We would need to know where reductions could be made with the least possible impact on vital services."

Hess also noted this current drought situation emphasizes the need for state water-resources legislation. The Schweiker Administration supports bills now pending in the state House and Senate that would provide officials with data on how much water is available, and how much is being used in various areas of the commonwealth, to allow for better planning. Little is known about the quantity of this vital resource, since the state's water plan was last updated in 1976.

York Water Company reported recently that its customers have reduced water use by nearly six million gallons per day in response to calls for conservation, — from 23.3 mgd to 17.4 mgd.

Grange Voices Water Plan Support

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In a quest for comprehensive water quality legislation, members of the Pennsylvania State Grange had the opportunity to voice their support for HB2230 at a House of Representatives hearing Feb. 20.

Represented by Legislative Director Brenda J. Shambaugh, in cooperation with Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Wolff Associates, and the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, testimonies were presented to members of the House Environmental Resources and Energy Committee.

According to Shambaugh, the much-needed law would create a statewide water plan that would track water usage among consumers exceeding a daily average of 10,000 gallons during a 30-day period. Its purpose is to track water usage in the event of a statewide water crisis, giving the Department of Environmental Protection Agency the knowledge of where the water flows.

"We feel strongly there are many components that need to be incorporated into this legislation as well as many that should not," Shambaugh said.

According to Shambaugh, the plan should allow the state to map out a more efficient utilization of existing water supplies. In the event of a water crisis, agricultural needs should be given a high priority. Registration and reporting requirements should not be burdensome.

The Grange believes conservation districts should serve as the technical expertise when formulating water plans and those water plans should concentrate on water availability for human consumption. Other key points include water conservation credits from farm lands and substantial agricultural representation on water planning boards.

The Grange strongly believes that permits would only deter waters users from registering and there should not be registration and/or administrative fees charged. Water well legislation should be a separate initiative.

"Many groups have been meeting for a number of years to promote a water quantity bill," Shambaugh said. "The passage of this bill is one of the Grange's 2002 goals. We are very hopeful we will soon see the fruition of our efforts concerning HB2230. The passage of this bill will benefit all of Pennsylvania.

"In light of our current water crisis and the drought conditions we have experienced in recent years, the members of Pennsylvania State Grange believe it is vital to become proactive in the passage of a statewide water plan."

Farm Bureau Testifies In Water Use Planning Legislation

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — In testimony before the House Environmental Resources and Energy Committee, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) recommended a number of elements that should be included in any water legislation that is adopted.

During his testimony, William Adams, PFB's director of natural resources, stressed the importance of updating the state water plan and obtaining current data on water resources in order to create a meaningful water plan for Pennsylvania.

"We believe agriculture should be given priority in water use during emergency situations," Adams said. "Unlike many water users, agriculture's need for continuous use of water is critical. Livestock and crops naturally need to utilize significant amounts of water for maintenance of their health and well-being.

"If a water plan is created that would interrupt or reduce farmers' water use, even for short periods, the impact on agricultural production and farmers' economic welfare would be disastrous."

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau supports water use registration as a method to document historical water use. "It serves as a valuable tool to address water use conflicts. However, without clear limitations in authority, water users can be unreasonably burdened with registration fees, monitoring and reporting requirements. We strongly recommend that no fees be imposed upon water users who may need to register," said Adams.

Adams testified that, water legislation should prohibit local governmental regulation over water use. "Clearly coordinated water use planning cannot be accomplished through action of individual municipalities. Water flow does not stop at the township's borders."

In addition, Farm Bureau advocates the establishment of regional water boards as the key agencies in water planning. "Regional water boards should have the sole authority to write water plans for all areas in a designated region with approval by an independent state water board," said Adams.

Dairy Producers Learn To Standardize Tasks

SHIPPENVILLE (Clarion Co.) — A group of progressive dairy producers and dairy farm advisors from Clarion and surrounding counties gathered in Shippenville to learn about writing standard operating procedures (SOPs). The producers' herd sizes ranged from 65 cows to over 250 and included both commercial dairies and show herds. All shared a common interest in improving the performance of their herds by ensuring that work is completed consistently.

SOPs are tools used to reduce variation in how work procedures are carried out. Progressive dairies are finding them helpful for improving performance in areas such as milking, feeding, and reproduction. Expanding dairies find SOPs to be essential for managing a sizable workforce, while smaller dairies find that SOPs can really help them to secure reliable part-time and temporary help.

Brenton and Darl Henry are cousins who operate a dairy farm business together. They used the SOP Workshop to design a procedure for identifying and treating sick calves.

The flowchart format they chose for that particular process will allow anybody caring for the calves to make correct decisions according to the plan that Brenton, Darl, and their veterinarian approve. The results will be consistent, quality calf care that leads to healthier animals.

Additional SOP workshops scheduled in Pennsylvania include:

Penn State Wins NESA Again

Joshua Hushon
Penn State Dairy Science

DURHAM, N.H. — Penn State won top honors for the ninth straight year at the Northeast American Society of Animal Sciences/American Dairy Science Association student meetings recently at the University of New Hampshire.

This competition attracts students from dairy science and Block and Bridle clubs from the top schools in the Northeast region.

Penn State took top honors as the top school at the competition, paced by a dominating performance by its students. It had five of the top 10 teams, five of the top 10 quiz bowl teams, and three of the top five judging teams.

Penn State also had six of the top 10 paper presentations, including the first four, and finally the outstanding senior at the competition. Placing second overall was the University of Maine, followed by Connecticut.

Penn State B took top team honors in the competition. Members included Travis Donough, Jeremiah Fearnley, Burke Neely, and Luke Vogel. This team was first in quiz bowl and third in judging. Neely's presentation about phosphorus and nutrient management placed third.

The second place team was Penn State D, consisting of team members Lori Connelly, Nick Gardner, Erin Leach, and Crystal Smith. This team was consistently strong all day, placing in the top 10 teams for quiz bowl and judging. Connelly's paper about the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine placed fourth out of more than 30 presentations.

Julie Noll gave the top presentation in the individual research division.

The top paper presentation was on cloning by Joshua Hushon, entitled "Will We Have Cookie-Cutter Herds?" Following in second place was Mike Flinchbaugh with "Preserving the Image of Farming."

Nick Gardner was named outstanding senior. He is president of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club and has excelled both academically and in leadership and community service during his Penn State career.

In the individual research category, Julie Noll took top honors with her work on biofilters.

The NESA competition features teams of four students who compete in quiz bowl, and judge one class each of beef, dairy, horse, sheep, and swine, and a mystery class, which was oxen teams. Additionally, one team member must present a paper on an agricultural topic.

Heifer Seminar March 11

SHIPPENVILLE (Clarion Co.) — Thinking about having someone else raise your heifers is a tempting offer. It could result in fewer chores, more feed for the milking herd, and more time to spend on other aspects of the farm operation. With the number of custom growers increasing across the country, contracting heifers is a viable alternative.

"Who Should be Raising Your Heifers?" is a program from Penn State Cooperative Extension to assist dairy producers in raising profitable replacements for their farms. This open house and educational barn meeting is scheduled Monday, March 11, at the Tom Smith Farm in Greenville. The program will begin at 10 a.m. with speakers from Penn State Cooperative Extension and the dairy industry presenting information on raising profitable heifers on your farm.

The Smiths are in the process of building a new heifer raising facility for 350 head. The state of the art building will feature innovations to save time and labor to produce well fed quality replacements. The Smith Farm is located near Greenville.

To get there from Mercer, follow Rt. 19 north to Sheakleyville, turn right onto Lake Road (just before the Nazarene Church), go northwest on Lake Road approximately three miles and turn left onto Salem Road. The farm is approximately three miles on the right (road name changes to Osburn). Signs will be posted to the farm.

For more information, contact the Clarion County extension office at (814) 782-0033 or your local extension office.

These students from Penn State University's College of Agriculture had quite a weekend at the Northeast American Society of Animal Sciences/American Dairy Science Association student meetings Feb. 16-17 at the University of New Hampshire. Penn State students from the Dairy Science Club and Block and Bridle clubs swept several key awards at the contest, including outstanding school for the ninth consecutive year. Pictured above with Adviser Dale Oiver are the students who propelled Penn State to victory.

Seminar Examines Ag's Significance: Past, Present, Future

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The U.S. became a great power through agriculture and will remain so only if sustainable agriculture continues, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. said.

At the 21st annual agri-education seminar sponsored by First Union at the Farm and Home Center on Thursday, Hayes said that farmers must help society understand the importance of agriculture by going to township halls, schools, and the political arena.

The day set the stage for both large and small farm operators to exchange ideas, learn about new technology, and how to face issues and challenges that threaten agriculture.

Personal stories from a panel of seven producers offered insight into decisions that enabled them to experience success throughout several generations.

Ann Risser told how she and her husband expanded the family business to three locations and incorporated their sons and daughter-in-law into helping with the growth.

The biggest challenge to a family business is accepting mistakes as inevitable, communicating effectively, and being open to change, Risser said. Facing those challenges has enabled the family operation to continue with great joy for all involved

Risser also stressed the importance of obtaining crop insurance and the need to check commodity prices continually to know when to sell.

Phil Clemens of Montgomery County said that despite being involved with more than 100 farms with a processing company, he still considers the operation a family farm.

"It's just different and constantly changing," he said as he told about the hog operation and their goal to lower risk to farmers but provide a fair share of profits.

Keith and Helen Masser took over the family potato farm in Schuylkill County in 1970. When they started, the farm delivered 100 truck-loads of potatoes annually. Today they deliver 2,500 truck-loads and farm 3,600 acres, which produce only 20 percent of the volume they do in their computer-generated, potato-processing plant.

Philip Kulp said that when he and his wife Becky returned to the family Blair County farm in 1996, they were milking 240 cows.

"We were too big to be small and too small to be big," Kulp said.

Through a two-phase expansion, the Kulp Family Dairy milks 1,100 cows with a rolling herd average of 2,500 pounds.

It's still a family farm, Kulp said, but it allows him and 17 full-time and 15 part-time employees to concentrate on the area in which they excell instead of requiring them to wear so many different "hats" of responsibility.

Expansion isn't for everyone, Phoebe Bitler said. She and her husband David milk 100 cows in Berks County.

In 1999, their herd had reached a high level of breeding quality. The Bitners decided to disperse 85 cows in order to renovate the barn. The decision also expanded their herd's prefix across the county. After examining the expansion issues involved, such as the location of their farm, the workload, and the management required for expansion, the Bitners decided to stay small.

They concentrate on selling breeding stock. They sell all bull calves for breeding purposes, and heifers that aren't used for replacements are sold to other farms.

By not expanding, Bitler said she and her husband have a profitable dairy and more time to use their talents without increasing overhead expenses. Her husband finds and markets cows for others, and she hosts agri-tours.

Jack Reitnauer, chief operating officer for Modern Mushroom farms, explained how mushrooms are making a significant contribution to agriculture. Mushrooms, he said, are Pennsylvania's number one cash crop. They use lots of hay, which is the state's number two cash crop.

Heifer Or Bull? Now You Can Choose

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — "Selection of sex at conception is the most sought-after reproductive biotechnology of our time," said George Seidel, speaker at a recent meeting of the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania (PDMP).

Approximately 200 associate and producer members gathered at the annual membership meeting at the Holiday Inn Thursday.

Seidel, Colorado State University, explained the new technology of sexed semen. "Sperm are essentially identical in size, weight, charge, and speed," he said.

Consequently, determining which sperm have the X or Y chromosomes has proven to be a daunting challenge. In fact there are approximately 10 patents on sexing sperm — most of which are unreliable, according to Seidel. The exception to this is a patent held by the USDA, invented by Larry Johnson in Beltsville, Md.

The normal ratios of male to female are approximately 50/50, or 55 percent males with in vitro fertilization.

Female mammals result in the combination of two X chromosomes, males, an X and a Y.

Since the X chromosomes have more DNA, the sperm are dyed with a medium that sticks to the DNA. The dye glows with fluorescent light. "The more the dye sticks, the more the sperm glows — there's nothing magic about it," said Seidel.

However, human eyes cannot detect the mere four percent difference in radiance, so a computer measures the brightness. Since sperm are paddle shaped and all need to be in the same orientation for accurate computer reading, they are put in a ribbon of fluid for laser detection.

A cell sorter pumps the sperm past detectors. The sperm comes out in a column of fluid and vibration causes droplets to form. A laser makes the dye fluoresce. The measure of fluorescence is measured by a computer, which puts the sperm into three categories: X, Y, or undetectable. The X and Y sperms are given a charge as the droplet is formed, then flow past fields which attract and collect them in separate containers.

The process, however complex, is fairly swift — drops come out of the machine at 50 miles an hour, translating into 25,000 sperm a second. Food coloring is also added, as the live cell resists the color and dead sperm take it on, thus allowing further sorting.

Approximately eight countries have the $300,000 machine and are licensed to research but not market sexed semen.

Several reasons contribute to the disposal of sperm, so "we end up sexing about a quarter of the sperm," he said.

Since sexed semen is a precious commodity, Seidel decided to study how their use could be maximized. "It only takes one sperm to fertilize an egg, so why do you need to put 20 million in a cow or heifer to get her pregnant?" he asked.

Seidel then researched "how low we could go in semen number when you do everything right," making sexed semen use more feasible. His studies in Colorado later showed no major difference between a dose of 10 million sperm and half a million sperm in fertility in Holstein heifers.

Sexed semen is commercially available in England, but because of BSE and licensing concerns, it is not available in the U.S. American companies are, however, beginning to offer the technology. Seidel estimates that the cost, on top of the semen cost itself, will be approximately $25-$50.

Bennet Cassell, extension dairy scientist, genetics and management, Virginia Tech, began his presentation by "trying to get you to think creatively on how you can use technology for your operation."

Since the accuracy of sexed semen is 90 percent, producers are enthusiastic about the prospect of breeding heifers on demand with the technology.

Cassel looked at the economic impact of sexed semen on a dairy operation. Assuming that a heifer is worth $300 more than a bull, for example, Cassel could chart whether or not paying the extra money for sexed semen would benefit a producer.

Cassel told the audience to consider the fertility of heifers, because "you don't want to use cows that have trouble breeding anyway."

In addition good technicians make the technology more feasible.

Besides simply getting replacement heifers, bloodlines could be improved as producers would only have to mate the top 30 percent of their herd to produce enough replacements. "As far as turning that into money that you can deposit into the bank depends on the market," he said.

Unfortunately, genetic merit of the bulls could decrease, since it is unlikely that sexed semen will be used on all proven bulls. Producers may not have the option of getting sexed semen from the bulls of their choice, he added.

Although sexed semen appears to have the most value for the production of heifer replacements, "suppose that all producers want to use sexed semen to produce heifers," he said, pointing out that the price of semen sexed for heifers will rise with demand. Also, eventually the heifer number will rise, causing the price to drop.

"The benefits go to the early adopters," he said. "Think outside of the box for sexed semen. It will change the way we breed cows."

Greg Henderson, Monsanto, spoke in the afternoon session.

In the board of director elections and John Huntsman were elected to the board, taking the place of Walt Moore, at-large member. Also serving on the board is Dan Mains, president; Dave Hileman, vice president; Dennis Peckman, treasurer; and Tom Craig, secretary.

The group is investigating the option of developing smaller discussion groups in several regions for greater educational opportunity.

At left George Seidel, Colorado State University, and Bennet Cassel, Virginia Tech, presented information about sexed semen at the meeting.

LANCASTER-YORK: AGRITOURISM INITIATIVE

Each year, more than 10 million tourists choose either Lancaster or York counties for their vacation destination. This generates a combined $2.3 billion in visitor spending for both counties, making this the highest concentration of tourism in Pennsylvania.

What draws tourists to Lancaster and York? The agricultural landscape and farming communities are still the primary attractions for the region. This creates a great business opportunity in the agritourism industry for many farmers. Surprisingly, there are few regional visitor information or guides available to help direct tourists and area residents to the region's many farm markets, which offer locally grown and produced products.

In order to promote agritourism awareness and education, Lancaster and York counties have received approximately $100,000 in grant funding from the Pennsylvania Heritage Park Program, along with contributions from both counties' tourism bureaus. The Lancaster County Planning Commission is managing and coordinating this effort on the behalf of the Lancaster-York Heritage Region. This project is considered the first step in promoting the region's agritourism industry and will help determine future efforts.

The agritourism initiative focuses on the development and promotion of a regional interpretive and informational guide and a corresponding Website. These will highlight the two counties' markets where locally-grown and value-added farm products may be purchased. Many organizations from both counties are working in a collaborative partnership to provide direction in developing the agritour directory. Locations listed will include farm markets, historic downtown markets, roadside market stands, pick-your-own operations, wineries, and other sites where homegrown or processed food can be purchased directly from the farmer. The heritage of the region that will be highlighted will feature unique attributes, for example the Washington Boro tomato and the history regarding why that crop is grown in that area of Lancaster County.

This grant recognizes that the farms in the region are a very important component of the economic base. At the same time, many farmers are seeking new income sources to supplement their existing operations or to diversify their operations. As with any small business, marketing can be an expensive and challenging step. This project's intent is to help fill the challenge with marketing assistance to help the farming community connect with the agritourism industry. The project could potentially increase local sales at the farm level, whether through sales directly from a farm market or sales at urban markets in either Lancaster or York cities that offer local farm products.

Drafts of the agritour directory will be presented to the general public for comments before it is finalized. The target date for the project's completion is this summer. The directory will be professionally produced and distributed in major tourist outlets, visitor centers, heritage attractions, on the Internet, and at local farm markets in the region. You can visit the Website, www.susquehannaheritage.net, to learn more about the Lancaster-York Heritage agritourism initiative. This site will also feature the agritour directory upon completion.

If you would have interest in helping to plan this effort, especially if you are a farmer, the Lancaster County Planning Commission would welcome your input. A survey will be developed in the near future to gather feedback from farm market managers on the guidelines and criteria for defining the various types of farm markets. If you have questions or would like to become involved in the Lancaster-York Agritourism Initiative, please contact Scott Standish with the Lancaster County Planning Commission at (717) 299-8333 or standish@co.lancaster.pa.us.

Lancaster Chamber Update: The Chamber is a partner in presenting a Regional Township Agricultural Symposium Saturday, March 16, at Landis Valley Museum for township supervisors, planning commissions, managers, and solicitors and their families. This event is for a nine-county region in southcentral Pennsylvania, so be sure to encourage your local township officials to attend and learn more about farming industry. For more information, contact Brent Landis at the Chamber at (717) 397-3531, ext. 134 or blandis@lcci.com.

Producers Can Manage Crop Risk During Deficit

Gene Gantz
Ag Risk
Strategies

Plans to manage crop production risks are taking on added importance this year with nearly all counties in the state in a precipitation deficit. Producers have three choices as they finalize spring crop production plans.

They can: 1. take an optimistic view and act like everything will OK and bank on timely and adequate surface moisture throughout the summer; 2. take a pessimistic view that a major drought is likely and reduce plant populations and inputs to make the best of a bad situation and perhaps miss a good crop if we get enough rain to grow a crop with surface moisture; or 3. plan for a good crop and purchase adequate crop insurance protection to weather a drought or other unavoidable loss, if one occurs.

The precipitation data for the 365 day period 2/25/01 to 2/24/02 shows precipitation deficits in all but two Pennsylvania counties. The deficits range from minus an inch or less in a couple northcentral counties to minus 12 or more inches in the southeastern counties. Furthermore, the weather forecasters at Penn State indicate the outlook is for no better than average rainfall in the months ahead, so the precipitation deficit is likely to continue. Since we cannot control the rainfall, let's consider some strategies to plan for whatever comes.

Downside Risk Management Planning

1. Plan realistically — pencil out the possibilities — good and bad. Start out with what it takes to grow a normal crop. Identify steps that can be taken to make the crop more drought resistant. Consider a more drought resistant seed varieties. Use more moisture conserving tillage. Consider planting earlier to get maximum growth and development before the traditional hot/dry days of summer. Do everything possible to control weeds and grasses that compete for moisture.

Pencil-out the "what - ifs" so that you know the economic impact of various low yields (75 percent, 50 percent, 25 percent and 0 percent of normal).

Contact a crop insurance agent (before the March 15 enrollment deadline) to get the details for your farm and add then amount insurance protection to your low yield cash-flow estimates to determine the improvement insurance makes to the low yield cash-flow projections.

Develop a risk management plan to manage the down-side risk based on your economic needs and risk preferences.

Managing A Possible Wreck

Crop insurance can help you to manage yield wrecks caused by drought or other weather perils so that they have a minimum impact on your business and family. But it's critical that you have the right insurance plan, amount of protection and deductible to meet the potential needs.

Today, both the federal and Pennsylvania governments want you to be protected with crop insurance. In fact they feel so strong about it that they collectively pay the majority of the premium cost for you...and the most basic coverage, Catastrophic or CAT is free, but you must enroll with an insurance agent to get it (all of the cost sharing happens automatically when you enroll with an insurance agent).

There are many choices available to growers so they can work with an agent to design a package to more closely fit their needs. To illustrate this point lets look at some of the choices available to a grain corn producer.

1. Protection is based on your individual farm yield history or a percentage of the county average yield, if they do not have yield records.

2. Choose from plans that provide yield or revenue coverage (for some crops).

3. Choose from 50 percent to 75 percent of their historical yield for each farm (80 percent and 85 percent available on some crops in certain counties).

Be sure to look at a side-by-side comparison of yield and revenue plans (65 percent revenue coverage often provides more benefits at less cost than 75 percent yield coverage). Also take into consideration that the spread between spring and fall prices, of revenue coverage, provides a higher loss payment trigger than the level of enrollment (i.e. 80 percent coverage level actually triggered a loss payment at 95 percent of the APH yield, using 2001 spring and fall prices spreads).

The free CAT coverage and other federal and Pennsylvania cost-share benefits are automatic when you enroll with a crop insurance agent. The deadline for enrollment or changes in coverage is March 15.

Workshops Set For Livestock, Dairy Producers

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Two workshops targeted toward livestock and dairy producers will be conducted March 5 at Morrison's Cove Memorial Park in Martinsburg.

Dr. Bhushan Jayarao, extension veterinarian from the Dept. of Veterinary Science at Penn State, will be the presenter at both workshops.

The first workshop is titled "Detecting Defects in Raw Milk." It will begin at 6:30 p.m. and end at 7:45 p.m. Participants of this workshop will learn how to detect the most common milk defects, how to identify causes of milk flavor/taste problems, and ways to correct these problems.

The second workshop is titled, "Occupational Health Issues in Animal Agriculture." It will begin at 8 p.m. and conclude at 9 p.m. The focus of this presentation will provide the audience with information on diseases that can be transferred from livestock to humans. Topics to be covered include a review of diseases that can be acquired from a farm setting, unique risks to pregnant women, prevention methods, and information on where to seek assistance or get additional information.

The cost to attend both workshops is $5 per person, or $3 to attend only one of the workshops. This fee can be paid at the door, but please call or send an e-mail by March 4 to preregister and to insure adequate materials. Call the extension office in Cambria County at (814) 472-7986 or send an e-mail message at cambriaext@psu.edu.

Workshop To Introduce Organic Certification

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania organic farmers will conduct an introductory workshop on organic certification, Wednesday, March 6 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Farm Show Complex, Room B in Harrisburg.

Pennsylvania Certified Organic (PCO) farmers, inspectors and office staff will be on hand to answer questions and help with the initial certification paperwork.

"This is a great opportunity for producers to ask their questions about organic certification in an informal setting," said Leslie Zuck, PCO executive director. "It's also a good time to be going organic because we now have cost-share programs to help pay for certification fees and certain conservation practices for transitional farms."

Ms. Zuck will present a workshop on the National Organic Standards. "Even more importantly, new and potential organic farmers can meet and discuss practical farming issues with certified organic producers who are already farming organically," Ms. Zuck said.

"Farmers in Pennsylvania have been producing certified organic crops and livestock for more than 15 years," said Penny Sandoval, PCO certification director. "They have a wealth of knowledge and are generous in sharing their experience with those who are just starting out."

There is no charge to attend the workshop or meeting, but registration is requested. Call, e-mail or write the PCO office at PCO, 1919 General Potter Hwy., Centre Hall, PA 16828; phone (814) 364-1344; fax (814) 364-4431; penny@paorganic.org.

Bradford Holstein Club To Tour

INTERLAKEN, N.Y. — The annual Bradford County Holstein Club out-of-county tour is scheduled for March 9 at 11 a.m. on the registered Holstein farm of John George and family in Interlaken.

John, his wife, Cindi, and children own and operate the 135 registered Holstein herd with a rolling herd average of 26,800 pounds of milk.

The milking herd consists of eight cows classified excellent and highlights a superb feeding program that includes the offspring of many well-known sires.

For more information, please contact tour coordinator, Sandy Crawford, at (570) 395-3447.

Ohio 4-H Volunteer Conference March 9 At Expo Center

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The kick-off of a fund-raising drive for a new Ohio 4-H Center will help mark the 100th birthday of the youth organization at the annual Ohio 4-H Volunteer Conference on Saturday, March 9.

"This is a special year for us in a lot of ways," said Jeff King, assistant director of Ohio State University Extension and leader of the Ohio 4-H program.

During the conference, Ohio 4-H'ers and friends will be asked to help raise money to build an Ohio 4-H Center on the Ohio State University campus, King said. The new center will replace the offices that the 4-H program currently occupies in the university's Agricultural Administration Building and provide much-needed program space, he said.

The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and Nationwide Insurance Foundation recently pledged a combined $4 million challenge grant for the center, King said. For every $2 raised by 4-H members and volunteers, the groups will match $1. This is in addition to an initial pledge of $2 million Nationwide made in September 2000, he said. The Ohio 4-H Foundation has established a $12 million goal to build the center.

More than 1,500 volunteers involved in Ohio 4-H will attend the March 9 program at the Ohio Expo Center (Ohio State Fairgrounds). The conference includes more than 80 educational sessions to help volunteers learn new skills and share ideas with each other to improve the offerings that 4-H offers youth, ages 5 through 19.

At the Recognition Luncheon sponsored by Bob Evans Farms, Inc., some of the volunteers will be honored for significant contributions they have made during the year.

The conference is set for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lausche Building at the Expo Center. The Recognition Luncheon is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Ag's Significance:

North America New Holland, explained the history of the company and how mergers are often necessary for survival in a competitive field. Rider said that the company will maintain manufacture of brand name tractors and equipment for farmers.

Bernard Erven, Ohio State University, offered insight and solutions for families farming together. He said that understanding that each family member sometimes speaks from a business, family, or personal perspective can help in identifying problems and working toward solutions.

Erven detailed guidelines to help families farm together in harmony and with emotional and financial success

With a look toward the future, Jay Bryson, global economist, explained how recession and recovery is determined in the economical outlook. The recession, he said, started in March 2001. The Sept. 11 terrorists attacks lurched the already weakened economy into recession.

Bryson believes signs already point to a beginning recovery, but, he added, it will be modest throughout the year. Of course, this prediction could go the opposite direction if there are more terrorists attacks, if there is a significant rise in oil prices, and if Americans increase their savings instead of spending.

H. Lou Moore, professor of agricultural economics, has been a speaker at the agri-seminars for 21 years. He said that agriculture markets will remain about the same, with the beef industry being slightly improved.

The significance of the Farm Bill was addressed by John Blanchfield of American Bankers Association in Washington D.C.

Blanchfield said that the versions passes by the Senate and House of Representatives differ. It is important for farmers to contact their legislators and give their viewpoint on the proposed bills.

Blanchfield stressed the need for farmers to at least spend $50 for basic crop insurance to protect against possible drought losses.

Other speakers included Paul Hostetter, state FFA president, who shared how the organization is benefitting the ag industry, and Joseph Del Tito, market president for First Union, who promised continual support for farmers despite an inevitable name change for the bank.

Meeting On Animal Disease Surveillance March 12 In Washington

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — The National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA) has invited animal health professionals and leaders throughout the animal agriculture sector to participate in a National Dialogue on Animal Disease Surveillance, March 12 at the Hyatt Regency Crystal City, Arlington, Va., near Reagan National Airport, Washington, D.C.

Participants will hear presentations on current animal disease surveillance measures as well as recommendations for enhancing surveillance activity, and participate in discussion groups that will help shape a comprehensive national animal disease surveillance system, said NIAA President and Chief Executive Officer Glenn Slack.

Surveillance provides critical information related to disease prevention, control and/or eradication programs and to the prevalence of specific diseases in U.S. animal populations. In addition to allowing early detection of outbreaks, a comprehensive surveillance system would also allow the U.S. government to confirm the absence of specific diseases in the U.S. livestock and poultry populations for countries questioning our disease status.

Because current surveillance information comes from eradication programs for diseases like brucellosis, bovine tuberculosis, pseudorabies, that are slowly being eliminated, the United States could begin losing it's primary sources of surveillance information.

"A National Dialogue on Animal Disease Surveillance will provide an opportunity for animal agriculture stakeholders to help shape a comprehensive U.S. surveillance system for animal diseases, thus strengthening our nation's overall animal health infrastructure," said Slack.

DAIRYMASTER, NEW!!

A Durable All Purpose Pasture Blend.

Dairymaster is an exciting new seed mixture formulated with the latest varieties of high quality forage species. All varieties used are winterhardy, persistent and high in energy and protein. Contains Mara, a very persistent perennial ryegrass adapted to areas of cold winters & hot dry summers; Barianne Soft Leafed Tall Fescue (Barianne was the #1 choice in a French fescue grazing plot) Bartura Meadow Fescue (which is more like a ryegrass) and preinoculated Alice White Clover.

Dairymaster is our recommendation for dairy pastures where only a little rotation is done - like if the cattle are on a paddock for a week at a time.

Dairymaster is also good for dairy heifers, beef and other livestock.

BH567 CORN for Silage or Grain. Widely adapted. Good digestibility, high yields.

Tour 1764 Heinrich Mohler House

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — A rare opportunity to tour a 1764 house that has been restored to historical correctness exists.

This restored masterpiece is not a museum but the home of Jim and Nan Tshudy and is one of eight stops on the Ephrata Woman's Club 15th annual Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour, Monday, April 22, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The 1764 house, set on 15 acres in Cocalico Township near Ephrata, exudes history, both in the exterior and interior of the home.

According to owners Jim and Nan Tshudy, Heinrich Mohler and several other family members arrived in Philadelphia from Switzerland on the ship "Thistle" in 1732. In 1736 Heinrich Mohler purchased 245 acres of land in Cocalico Township near Ephrata. It is believed that the Mohlers probably lived in a small log house until they built the main house in 1764.

The house was passed down through sons and daughters and remained in the Mohler family and their descendents until the 1930s. It remained a working farm and had a series of owners through the mid-twentieth century.

Over the years, the house deterioted from neglect, but in 1972, Nan and Jim Tshudy purchased the house and began a major restoration. The couple realized the home's architectural and historical significance and carefully restored its 18th century character.

The house, an excellent example of early Pennsylvania German domestic architecture reminiscent of the building forms and practices in mid 18th century Switzerland and southern Germany.

The house has thick (18-20 inches) walls of local red sandstone and stone arches over the windows with heavy hand-hewn wooden moldings. Inside, the thick stone walls allow for deep paneled and plastered window wells.

Gable-end eves and a plastered cove around the entire house, asymmetric placement of the windows on the sides and back of the housed sharply peaked free hanging hoods over the exterior doorways retain the German influence.

The Tshudys retained the stone work around the foundation walls for the drainage of water and the "12 over 12" paned heavy-molded windows. Windows in the front of the house still contain most of the original hand blown glass.

Raised panel shutters with hand wrought iron strap hinges and shutter dogs (both original) frame the windows. Several so-called Indian doors have a siding panel that can be raised to cover the window section. Tradition relays that this feature was for protection against Indian attack, which the Tshudys say makes a great story, but more likely this style of door offered better protection from stormy and cold weather.

The house faces south to capture light and heat (a seemingly "modern" concept well known to and practiced by 18th century builders).

Sunburst "soul windows" in the gable end walls just below the peak of the roof were for ventilation of the attic.

Heavy hand hewn chestnut summer beams are exposed in each room of the main house. The house was built over a natural spring that still flows through the cellar.

On the front of the house is a large date stone with the numbers "j764", the "j" being the German character for "1". On the west side of the house is a decorative stone carved in stylized flowers and vase motif.

The red sandstone summer kitchen added to the north end of the house was constructed circa 1815 and has the same Germanic character. A frame addition with its genuine 18th century red tile roof is a reconstruction reflecting the architectural style and form of the main house. The "squirrel tail" bake oven on the north side of the summer kitchen has been accurately restored on its original foundation. The adjacent large red sandstone bank barn was constructed in 1814. According to records, an earlier log barn stood on this site and had been destroyed by fire.

Several strong, natural springs on the grounds provide clean, clear, fresh water year round. Close by the kitchen door is an original 18th century hand hewn wooden pump and stone water trough. Also next to the kitchen door are small beds of kitchen herbs including saffron and perennials.

The front of the house has been planted with a few boxwoods and other historically correct perennials. Also, at the front of the house is a strong spring that, along with the spring in the stone arch cellar of the house, is the origin of a small brook that flows past the house on its east side.

Farther out in the meadow is another small stream called Mohler's Run, which joins the small brook that flows by the house, and eventually flows into the Cocalico Creek nearby.

Original 12- to 14-inch wide American chestnut floorboards on the second and third floors still show their hand wrought rose head nails. The house has four fireplaces including one large walk-in fireplace in the cellar, one large walk-in fireplace in the summer kitchen, one corner fireplace in the living room, and one corner fireplace on the second floor of the summer kitchen.

Original mud/straw plastered walls and ceilings have been retained on the second floor. A unique 18th century corner schrank (wardrobe) of native tulip poplar with raised panel doors, dental moldings, and original hand wrought "rat tail" hinges. An original raised panel board wall of tulip poplar divides two second floor rooms.

Many of the raised panel doors still have the original hand-wrought strap hinges and thumb latches.

The large cellar under the entire main house is in two sections. One is a large stone arched or vaulted cold cellar where fruits, vegetables, meats, milk, and all manner of other perishable foods would have been stored. The temperature of this cellar is a constant 55 degrees.

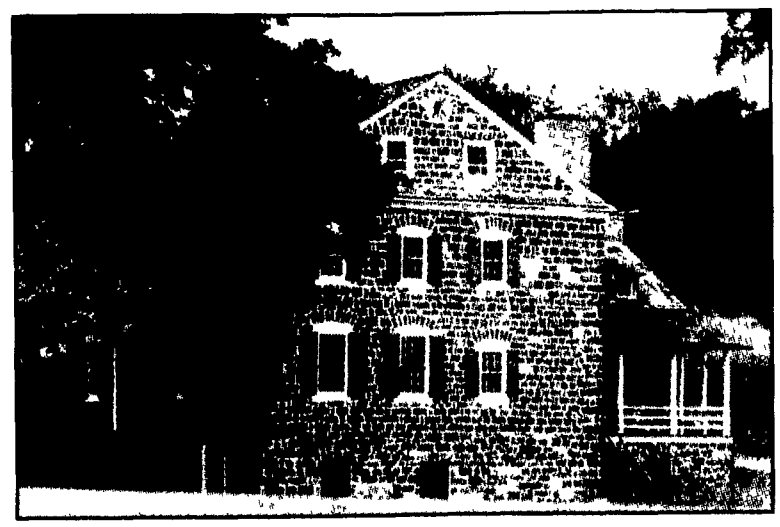
In one corner of this cellar and flowing around the perimeter is a natural spring over which the house was built.

Also in this cellar is a small spiral stone stairway, which provided access to the original kitchen room above. The other section of the cellar is a larger room with a fireplace in one corner.

Because the house was built on sloping ground, this is a daylight section and has a door and several windows to the outside. In this room are interesting niches in the stone walls, which were originally intended for the storage of small items.

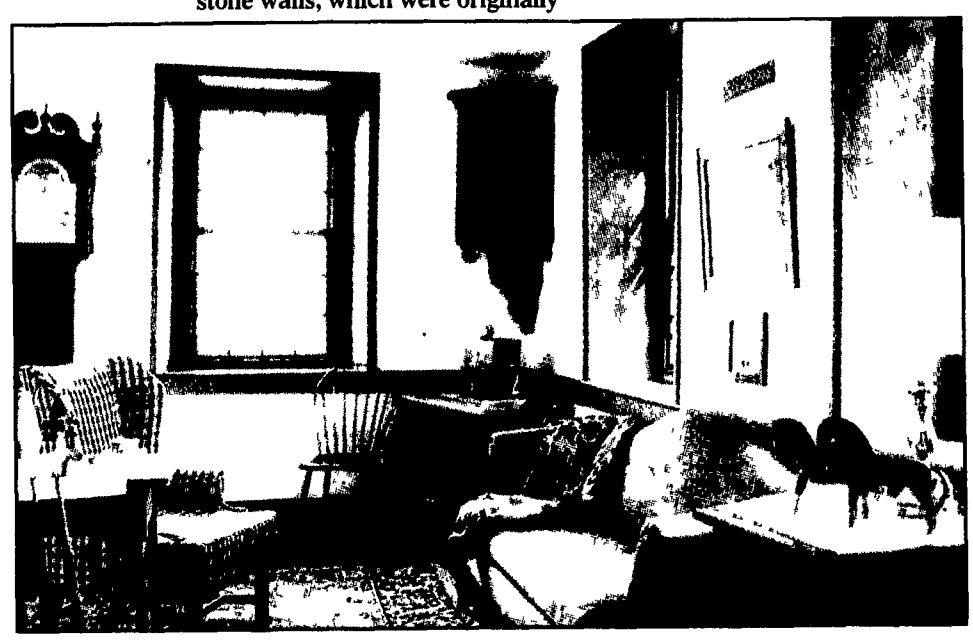
There is an original two section raised panel "Dutch door" with its original hand wrought hardware that opens to the outside and a strong flowing spring. This room was used in the 18th century for cooking, washing clothes, butchering, making soap, and other domestic activities. At present restoration of this section is a work in progress.

(Turn to Page B9)



The Heinrich Mohler house is an excellent example of early Pennsylvania German domestic architecture, which is reminiscent of the building forms and practices in mid-18th century Switzerland and southern Germany. The photo below shows the heavy hand-hewn American chestnut "summer beams" that support the interior structure of the main house.

Restoration has been ongoing since 1972. The owners have attempted to restore the house to its original 18th century character in order to retain its historical significance.



Owners Jim and Nan Tshudy have acquired period furniture and accessories of the 1764 era to furnish their home.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

"Spring is near, the grass is 'riz.

We wonder where the rainclouds is?"

(With serious apologies to our editors and all English teachers for the atrocious grammar...)

But where are they? The rainclouds? It's March, normally the season of mud. Instead, we have puffs of dust rising behind every piece of equipment moving feed and supplies around the farm.

Friends, this is downright scary.

We've farmed here now for going on four decades. And in that time, we've dealt with some serious droughts. Droughts which left us with precious little to feed the cows over the summer, and none to speak of to get us through winter. Meaning that you invest in putting out a crop, then turn around and buy feed for the next year.

And you pray for rain.

At least once every decade, we've faced a year or two of extremely dry conditions. During the '80s, there were about seven years out of 10 that were dry, and one in there so wet that about 100 acres of new alfalfa plants drowned under a summer of constant rain.

In all those years, though, I don't ever remember being so groundwater deficit as we are right now, something like 17 inches short of normal rainfall over the last 20 months or so.

And you pray for rain.

Come along with me for a bit; I'll show you the evidence of the area's seriously depleting water supplies.

We'll start in the basement of our farmhouse. Don't fall over that pile of laundry. I try to do only one load per day, and only very early in the morning before the cows start to drink very much or the milking system is washing.

Hear the bubbles? That's air in the water, because our underground supply just can't keep up with the demand from our thirsty girls when they all want to drink at the same time. Cows need lots of water, about 50 gallons each per day, just to maintain their life and produce milk. And that's in March. In July, when it's 90-degrees with high humidity, they'll slurp up lots more in a day's time.

And we pray for rain. Now, let's walk down to the meadow.

The big pond is still pretty much at its normal level, you can probably see. A couple of dozen Canadian geese have moved in already and are enjoying its amenities. Their major focus at the moment appears to not be water levels, but scoping out nesting territories.

But c'mon along to the ponds below, which are all fed from the same source, overflowing from one to the next. As you can see, this next one is going dry. There's still enough in the center for Derra Dog to take a dip, as she did one balmy evening last week, but I'm not sure if she actually swam or just walked through the shallow water. All our water lilies along the edges will die, as will the goldfish, if we don't soon get some steady, soaking, sustained moisture to replenish the underground springs that feed all this.

Next pond below is also way down. That one has a couple of giant catfish that had gotten tame enough last year that we could feed them along the edge of the bank. At least until Derra discovered that she loved the taste of fish chow and would go in the water and lap it away from our big-whiskered fish.

Even the shallow, swampy "frog pond" is nearly dried up. That's been a nesting site for a pair of geese for the past two years and this season there's not enough water to form the little island they favor for hatching. It's just all dry land.

Already, talk among some farmers is if they even want to put crops out this year. But they will. Because farmers are such optimists, anticipating that rain will come.

The toll this prolonged drought is taking is not just on farm water supplies. A long-time neighbor stopped by last week, worried sick that the spring that feeds her house is down to a trickle. You can drive by nearly any reservoir in the region and see lots of exposed dry bottom.

And we pray for rain.

If you would, could you please include rain for the region in your prayers, too?

Nurturing The Home — Inside And Out

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — This will be a great day that you won't want to miss. Nurturing the Home — Inside and Out will be a day of workshops focused on gardening and family issues to strengthen home ties.

Lucia Herndon, columnist for the Philadelphia Inquirer, will be the keynote speaker with a talk on "Keeping the Heart in Your Home."

Concurrent workshops will include Dan Benarcik, horticulturist at Chanticleer Gardens in Wayne, speaking on container gardening, Joseph Maier from Chester-Crozer's Silberman Center on "Planning for Your Elder's Care;" Bob Keiter from Waterloo Gardens on "Planting and Growing Herbs;" and Sandy Shippen, educator, on "Ensuring Your Child's Success in School."

Other workshops will include "What's New at the Grocery Store," "Preparing the Garden," "Don't Be Scammed: How to Avoid Identity Theft," and "Planting and Pruning Trees and Shrubs."

The program will be conducted on March 9 from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. at Widener University in Chester.

Registration fee is $12 and includes light breakfast and lunch. To register, call Delaware County Cooperative Extension at (610) 690-2655 for a brochure to select workshops. Registration is requested by March 4.

Do you know the difference between Creole and Cajun cooking?

The difference is cultural and embedded in the roots of the heritage of the cook. Cajun influence in the kitchen reflects French country-cooking skills. Creole food was influenced by the French, Spanish, and Portuguese roots of people of European descent born in the New World.

In cooking, Creole is often used to describe concoctions of tomatoes, green pepper, garlic, and onions. It is also descriptive of some Caribbean islands' cuisine.

Most people seem to use the terms Cajun and Creole interchangeably. Always associated with Louisiana, Cajun and Creole were also enhanced by Native Americans and African-Americans. The names of Creole and Cajun recipes often come from word meanings in the language. Jambalaya is from the French word meaning "ham" and the African word for "rice," connected by the Acadian "a la."

Gumbo, a Cajun soup, comes from the African word for "okra." If it doesn't contain okra, it's not gumbo. Some people like their foods really hot, while others prefer a milder version. The following recipes are in between. As with any food preparation, always adjust seasonings to your taste.

Try a Cajun recipe and a Creole dish and experience the pleasure of both ethnic seafood dishes.

Cajun Shrimp

1½ pounds medium shrimp, peeled
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup vegetable oil
⅛ teaspoon crushed red pepper
¼ cup chopped green onion
⅛ teaspoon dried thyme
¼ teaspoon pressed garlic
⅛ teaspoon dried rosemary, crumbled
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/16 teaspoon dried oregano
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper skewers

In large bowl, combine oil, green onion, garlic, cayenne, black pepper, salt, red pepper, thyme, rosemary, and oregano. Add shrimp and stir well. Cover and refrigerate one hour, stirring occasionally.

Remove shrimp and thread on skewers. Grill or broil about 4 inches from heat source until pink, about 3 to 4 minutes on each side. Serves 6.

Creole Sauteed Mahi-Mahi

2 medium mahi-mahi fillets (about 1 ½ pounds)
2½ tablespoons minced green onion
8 tablespoons butter

Creole Seasoning

1 teaspoon pressed garlic
½ teaspoon dried thyme
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
½ teaspoon dried oregano
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
½ teaspoon dried basil
1½ tablespoons paprika

Combine ingredients for seasoning mix. Sprinkle over fillets. Sprinkle with green onion. Melt butter and heat in large skillet over medium heat. Place fillets in pan, seasoning side up, and saute until golden brown, about 5 minutes. Turn and repeat on other side. Cook until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve seasoning side up. Serves 4 to 6.

Note: To reduce calories and fat, brush fillets with only 2 tablespoons melted butter, sprinkle with seasonings and broil or microwave fish until fish flakes.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

How much more winter will we have? Your guess is as good as mine — so far, we haven't had much snow in Lancaster County.

Our county was separated from Chester County in 1729. That was the same year that my ancestor Hans Adam Shreiner came from Gommersheim, Germany. He claimed 500 acres and later returned to Europe and brought his family here in 1733.

We've been told that his grandson, Michael, brought home a Conestoga wagon in 1750. It was used to haul grain from the fields and also to transport crops to Philadelphia and return with goods they needed.

This wagon was kept in the family and stored in a shed. In the 1930s it was photographed for a book on Conestoga wagons. Two years ago it was sold to Landis Valley Museum for $52,000 at a public sale. It is being restored to show to the public. Most wagons were allowed to rot away instead of being preserved for more than 200 years.

A man from Roanoke, Va. wrote to me recently as he is interested in wagons. In his area a "Newtown" wagon was a puzzle until they realized it was a Conestoga wagon made in a place called Newtown. It was used to move Roanoke College to Salem from Augusta in 1847. More than 150 years ago these wagons may have brought early settlers down the Great Wagon Road from Pennsylvania. Often only wheels remain from these vehicles, and it takes an expert to recognize them.

Six large horses pulled these wagons. One road used to cross the Conestoga River was "Peter's Road." Today it forms a boundary of our son's farm. Peter Bizellion was a French and Indian fur trader. The road ran from Chester County to the Susquehanna River more than 250 years ago.

GREEN CHILI PORK STEW
(Mexican/Indian)

1 pound boneless pork sirloin, cut into ¼-inch cubes
2 large potatoes, cut into ½-inch cubes
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2½ cups chicken broth
1½ cups apple juice, divided
14½-ounce can chopped green chili peppers, undrained
1½ teaspoons dried oregano, crushed
¼ cup flour

In Dutch oven, saute pork, curry, and garlic in hot oil until browned. Stir in broth, 1 cup apple juice, potatoes, tomatoes, carrots, onion, chili peppers, and oregano. Bring to a boil and reduce heat to low. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until pork and vegetables are tender. Stir together remaining ½ cup apple juice and flour; add to Dutch oven. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Spoon stew into bowls. If desired, top with sour cream and chopped fresh cilantro.

ORANGE PORK STIR-FRY
(Chinese)

½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons sesame oil, divided
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons minced fresh ginger
1 teaspoon fresh grated orange peel
¼ pound pork tenderloin, cut into strips
3 cups mixed fresh vegetables (choose from the following): green pepper, red pepper, snow peas, carrots, green onions, mushrooms, or onions.
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup unsalted cashew bits or halves
3 cups hot cooked rice

Combine orange juice, 1 tablespoon sesame oil, soy sauce, garlic, ginger, and orange peel in small bowl. Add pork; marinate one hour. Drain pork; reserve marinade. Heat remaining 1 tablespoon oil in large skillet or wok over medium-high heat. Add pork; stir-fry 3 minutes, or until pork is lightly browned. Add vegetables; stir-fry 3-5 minutes until vegetables are tender-crisp. Combine cornstarch with marinade; add to pan, stir until thickened. Add cashews, cook one minute longer. Serve immediately over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Note: 1 pound package frozen stir-fry vegetables, thawed, may be substituted for fresh vegetables, if desired.

Rice Council

MID-EAST PILAF

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1 tablespoon brown sugar
⅔ cup cashew bits or halves
⅓ cup raisins
3 cups hot cooked rice
1 cp chopped dried apricots
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon turmeric
¼ teaspoon cracked black pepper
⅛ teaspoon cardamom
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
⅓ cup apple juice

Heat oil in skillet over medium-high heat. Saute onion with brown sugar 3-5 minutes or until onion is golden brown. Add cashews and raisins, saute 2-3 minutes until nuts begin to brown and raisins plump. Add rice, apricots, salt, cinnamon, turmeric, pepper, cardamom, and cloves. Stir in apple juice. Heat thoroughly and serve. Makes six servings.

Rice Council

SWEET RICOTTA PIE
(Italian)

1½ pounds ricotta cheese
1½ cups sugar
8 eggs, separated
1 large can evaporated milk
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 small can crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup whole milk

Blend ricotta cheese, sugar, egg yolks, milks, and vanilla. Add crushed pineapple. Beat egg whites very briskly. Fold egg whites into mixture. Pour mixture into pie shell or baking dish. You may use graham cracker crust or a regular pie dough crust. Bake in 350 degree oven until an inserted knife into cheese filling comes out clean.

Taste Of Italy

EGGPLANT PARMESAN

1 large eggplant
1½ cups marinara sauce
½ cup grated parmesan cheese
½ pound mozzarella cheese, sliced
½ cup olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste

Clean eggplant, peel and cut into small slices, about ½-inch thick. Brown eggplant slices on both sides, over low flame, and drain in absorbent paper.

Arrange one layer of eggplant slices in casserole, 1 layer of sauce, 1 layer of grated cheese, and 1 layer mozzarella cheese. Repeat the process until all the eggplant is used. Be sure the last layer is mozzarella cheese. Bake in 350-degree oven 10-15 minutes, or until the cheese is melted. Makes 4 servings.

Taste Of Italy

DANISH RICE PUDDING

2 cups cooked rice
2 cups lowfat milk
⅓ cup sugar
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup heavy cream
10-ounce package frozen sweetened, raspberries, thawed
8 whole almonds

Heat rice, milk, and sugar in 2-quart saucepan over medium heat, stirring frequently until pudding is thick and creamy, about 15 minutes. Do not boil. Remove from heat, add almond extract; cool. Beat cream in chilled bowl until stiff peaks from. Fold whipped cream into cooled rice mixture. Blend raspberries in blender until smooth; strain. To serve, place pudding in custard cups. Dollop with 1 tablespoon raspberry sauce and top with almond. Makes 8 servings.

Rice Council

ITALIAN DRESSING

1 cup wine vinegar
2 cloves garlic
¾ cup olive oil
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon basil
Salt and pepper to taste

Flavors Of The World

• Spices lie at the heart of Indian cooking. No other cuisine uses as many spices and seasonings with such sophistication.

• Chinese cooking is usually characterized by frying spices, meat, and vegetables in oil, and adding liquid to the pan to finish cooking.

• Thai cuisine liberally uses garlic, chili, peppers, peanuts, and fresh herbs. They mostly eat rice at every meal.

• Pilaf is a dish common to many Middle-Eastern countries. Its main ingredient is rice and often added to it are nuts, dried fruits, and a combination of spices.

• Carribean cooking is characterized by the use of spices, vegetables, tropical fruits, and nuts.

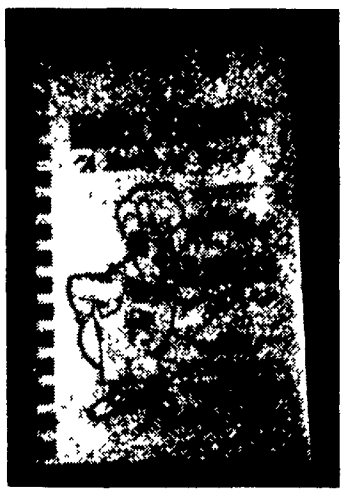
Cookbook Offers A Taste Of Italy

NEW CASTLE (Franklin Co.) — Have you ever wanted to duplicate delicious dishes such as caponata, veal rolettes and eggplant parmesan that you order in Italian restaurants?



The Caravaggio and Giorgio families of Abruzzi, Italy have put together a collection of authentic Italian recipes from the mighty Alps to sunny Sicily.

"Festa Italiana A Taste of Italy" is divided into eight sections with more than 200 easy-to-follow recipes for vegetable dishes, main dishes, soup, salad, sauces, appetizers, even breads and rolls. Plus, delicious desserts are provided which offer families an array of mouthwatering meals. The cookbook sells for $13 plus $2 shipping and handling.

Proceeds will go to Italian American Veterans for their projects to help hospitalized veterans in veteran hospitals.

Here is a recipe from the cookbook.

STUFFED MANICOTTI

1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
1 large clove garlic, minced
2 (6-ounce cans) tomato paste
2 cups water
2 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon dried basil, crushed
1½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
3 cups ricotta or small curd cottage cheese, drained
⅔ cup grated Romano or paremsan cheese
2 slightly beaten eggs
¼ cup chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
8 manicotti shells
½ cup grated Romano or parmesan cheese

In large saucepan, brown meat lightly. Drain off excess fat. Add onion, garlic, tomato paste, water, parsley, crushed basil, 1½ teaspoons salt, and dash of pepper. Simmer uncovered about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, combine Ricotta or cottage cheese, ⅔ cup Romano or Parmesan cheese, parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper.

Cook manicotti shells in boiling, salted water until just tender; drain. Rinse shells in cold water. Stuff manicotti with cheese mixture, ⅔ cup Romano or parmesan cheese, eggs, parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper.

Cook manicotti shells in boiling, salted until just tender; drain. Rinse shells in cold water. Stuff manicotti with cheese mixture. use a small spoon or cut the shells lengthwise with scissors; open to fill.

Pour half the tomato-meat sauce into 12x7½x2-inch baking dish. Arrange stuffed manicotti in a row. Top with remaining sauce. Sprinkle with ½ cup Romano or parmesan cheese. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30-35 minutes. Yield: 6-8 servings.

Cooking With Kids

Does your child bother you while you are preparing food in the kitchen or are tired of listening to them complain about the food you prepare?

Well, get them involved in the family cooking responsibilities. Children as young as 2-years-old can help with the family cooking.

Cooking with your children is not only fun, it's educational. Cooking involves math, chemistry, reading, and creativity. Cooking also helps teach lifelong healthy eating habits.

There are many benefits of having your child help with cooking. Children can learn through cooking. Cooking can help teach kids how to follow directions in order for a recipe to work. Cooking can teach simple arithmetic such as what is bigger a ½ cup or 1 cup? Are we putting in more flour or baking soda?

Preparing food allows kids use their sensory awareness. It is helpful if you can use ingredients that have a wide variety of textures, smells and tastes.

Cooking can increase vocabulary. Words like flour, sugar and eggs may seem like everyday words to you, but may not be for a 3-year-old. The process of cooking can help improve your child's concept development by comparing hard versus soft, liquid versus solid and hot versus cold.

Cooking can teach cause and effect relationship by adding, leaving out, or changing one ingredient can change the entire product. Cooking can also help develop cooperation by working together.

Keep in mind, that kids can be a little messy, so be sure to have lots of patience, but the potential for fun and learning can outweigh the extra planning and cooking time in the kitchen.

There are four components to begin to cook with kids: Getting ready, getting set up, cooking and clean up. When getting ready to cook, make sure you set up a convenient workspace, use a stool or lower kitchen table to prepare food. Make sure you begin with simple, child-friendly recipes and then work your way up to more difficult recipes.

After cooking for awhile, let your child choose the menu. Browse through some cookbooks, websites or home recipe collections, and let your child put together a simple menu for dinner from soup to dessert. Children are more likely to try foods that they helped cook.

When it is time to cook, make sure you have the recipe handy and show your child the recipe. Make sure all the ingredients, measuring cups, mixing bowls, and other tools are within reach. Always wash your and your child's hands before beginning. During cooking, it is helpful if you name each ingredient that is being used. Let your child feel and smell the item you are using and then taste the ingredients (not raw eggs, fish, poultry or meat). Let your child put in as many ingredients as possible.

The final component of cooking with is the clean up. To make clean up easier, spread an old sheet or tablecloth under your work area, and then just shake it out when you are done. Let children wear old clothes for easier cleanup.

Keep in mind, when it comes to cooking, there are no mistakes-just different paths to deliciousness. Your brownies didn't rise? Try crumbling them into softened ice cream and spreading the mixture into a pie shell.

The most important goal of cooking with your child is to enjoy each other's company and eating your cooking collaboration.

Free Admission To Museum March 10

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — In March, 1681 William Penn received his royal charter for Pennsylvania from King Charles II of England. In his new colony Penn planned a laboratory for his "Holy Experiment" where people of different nations and faiths could live side by side. Today, Ephrata Cloister survives as one of the most outstanding examples of this policy of religious freedom in American history. To celebrate the 321st anniversary of the Commonwealth's founding, the Ephrata Cloister will participate in Charter Day on Sunday, March 10, by opening free to visitors from noon until 5 p.m. Highlighting the day will be an exhibition opening, a book signing, and musical performances.

Ephrata Cloister is located in Ephrata Borough, Lancaster County, on Route 322 at the intersection with Route 272. The National Historic Landmark is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for children ages 6-12, and $17 for families. For more information call (717) 733-6600.

Open House To Help Students Explore Careers In Ag Sciences

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Teen-agers making career choices often must look past the glitz of "glamor" careers to choose what's best for them. To help in this process, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences offers prospective students its ninth annual Open House from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 23 in the Agricultural Sciences and Industries (ASI) Building on the University Park campus.

"The world of careers and employment can be confusing," says Marianne Fivek, assistant professor of agricultural and extension education and undergraduate recruitment coordinator. "Sometimes the best choices aren't immediately obvious, especially to a high school student who hasn't settled on clear career goals. Our open house highlights opportunities in the agricultural sciences in an informal, relaxed setting where students can get personal attention. It's also an opportunity for families to visit with deans, professors and current students.

"About 60 faculty, staff and students from the college will be there to answer questions about the agricultural sciences, and about university life," she says. "Representatives from the Ag Advocates student organization and the Ag Student Council also will attend."

Attendees can learn about careers in agricultural and related fields and the college's 18 undergraduate majors, including turfgrass science, food science, landscape design, agricultural business management, agricultural and biological engineering and environmental resource management. The event will begin with an informational fair at 8 a.m., followed by a general session at 9 a.m. and academic advising sessions at 10 a.m.

Exhibits will highlight academic departments, student organizations, ROTC, housing and food services and other aspects of university life. A special luncheon and advising session for students who already have started their education at a Penn State location other than University Park will be conducted at noon in 101 ASI Building. An information session for minority students also will be conducted at noon in 107 ASI.

Families and students can visit college facilities and explore the campus through tours that will include food science laboratories, animal science facilities and the School of Forest Resources. A panel discussion on internships, careers and international experiences in agriculture will be conducted in 101 ASI at 1:15 p.m.

After the open house, families can visit the University Creamery, the Penn State Bookstore, the Penn State University Libraries and the Palmer Museum of Art. Penn State Housing and Food Services will offer special meal deals for lunch and dinner. The event is open to all prospective college students and their families.

To register for the open house or for more information, visit the World Wide Web at http://www.cas.psu.edu, contact the Office for Undergraduate Education at (814) 865-7521 or send e-mail to Marianne Fivek at mafivek@psu.edu.

ANSWER Julie Hoover sends in this recipe for lemon bars that arrived too late to include with the Cooking With Oats feature. She promises that if you love lemon bars, these will be your favorite.

Lemon Bar Supreme

1 cup butter, room temperature
1 cup granulated sugar
2 cups all-purpose flour
1¼ cups rolled oatmeal
Juice of 3 lemons, large
Zest of 2 lemons, chopped fine
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk

Cream butter and sugar until smooth, work in flour and oatmeal with fingers to make a crumbly dough. Set to the side. Stir juice and zest into milk. Butter 9x13-inch pan. Press two-thirds of the crumbly dough into the pan. Pour lemon mixture evenly over dough in pan. Sprinkle remaining crumbly dough over top of lemon mixture, like streusel. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes until golden. Cool completely. Cut into one-inch squares. Enjoy!

ANSWER — Sherry Burkett, Harrisonville, wanted a recipe for peanut butter frosting. Here is one from Emma Smoker, Newburg.

Peanut Butter Frosting

3 heaping teaspoons creamy peanut butter
3 heaping tablespoons soft butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups confectioners' sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2-4 tablespoons milk

Mix together peanut butter, butter, and vanilla. Gradually stir in powdered sugar and salt. Add milk, beating to desired spreading consistency.

Peanut Butter Chip Frosting

½ cup butter
⅓ cup milk
1½ cups peanut butter chips
2 cups confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Place butter, milk, peanut butter chips in a small saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat until chips are melted and mixture is smooth. Remove from heat immediately. Add mixture to confectioners' sugar and vanilla in a small bowl, beat until smooth. Spread while frosting is still warm. Makes 2 cups frosting.

ANSWER — Rodney is looking for a recipe that his grandmother made many years ago. It was called Hershey's Chocolate Cake with fudge icing, which appeared on the back of the Hershey's cocoa can; however, it is not the same recipe as the one that is now printed on the back of the can. His grandmother's cake was a very heavy cake. Thanks to Hermie Potts, Pemberton, N.J., for sending this recipe.

Hershey's Chocolate Cake

4-ounce bar baking chocolate
⅓ cup water
½ cup butter, softened
1 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg yolks
1⅔ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup buttermilk
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Break chocolate bar into small pieces, add to water in a small saucepan, stir over low heat until it is melted. Remove from heat, cool to room temperature, cream butter, sugar, and vanilla in large bowl, add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition to blend in chocolate. In a separate bowl, combine flour, baking soda, and salt, add alternately with buttermilk to creamed mixture, beating after each addition until smooth.

Fold in beaten egg whites, pour into two greased and floured 9-inch round cake pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes or until cake tester inserted comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool completely. Fill and frost.

Fudge Frosting:

3 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup baking cocoa
½ teaspoon vanilla
1⅓ cups confectioners' sugar
2-5 tablespoons milk

Melt butter in saucepan, add cocoa, cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture begins to boil. Pour into small bowl, cool completely. Stir in vanilla. Alternately add confectioners' sugar and milk. Beat to spreading consistency. Frost cooled cake.

ANSWER — Here's a different method to make chocolate-covered cherries. Pollyanna Eby, Belleville, sent in this recipe for Faye Hopkins, West Grove.

Chocolate Covered Cherries

Use equal parts coating chocolate and pure milk chocolate. Melt the two together in a bowl in the microwave. Heat only until it can be stirred to smooth consistency with a spatula.

Maraschino cherries should be at room temperature. With a teaspoon, dip one cherry at a time into the melted chocolate and drop into a miniature paper liner or candy mold. Freeze overnight.

Caution: If you need to watch your diet, this is a dangerous thing to have in the house. They are almost irresistible according to Pollyanna.

ANSWER — Rebecca King, Parkesburg, wants a recipe to make her own bagels. Thanks to Emme Smoker, Newburg, for sending a recipe that always brings good results for her.

Bagels

2 tablespoon yeast
4¼-4½ cups Occident flour, divided
1½ cups lukewarm water
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Combine yeast and 1¾ cups flour. Add water, sugar, and salt to yeast mixture. Beat at low speed for ½ minute, constantly scraping sides of bowl; then beat at high speed for three minutes. Stir in enough remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn onto a lightly floured board or tabletop and knead until smooth and elastic. Cover and let rest 15 minutes.

Divide dough into 12 balls; shape into smooth balls, and punch a hole into the center of each one with a floured finger. Pull gently to enlarge holes, keeping a uniform shape. Cover and let rise 20 minutes.

Add 1 teaspoon sugar to 1 gallon water in a 6 or 8-quart kettle; bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer. Cook bagels in simmering water 4-5 at a time for 7 minutes, turning once. Drain on paper towels. Place on ungreased cookie sheet and bake at 375 degrees for 30-35 minutes.

ANSWER — Brenda Fouts, Auburn, N.Y., wanted recipes and hints for using frozen strawberries. She also wanted a method to prevent berries from getting mushy and watery when thawed. Thanks to a reader for sending in the following method. She writes the strawberries come out of the freezer just great. They taste like fresh ones. We eat them just like they come out or add to Danish, homemade yogurt, or as a topping for ice cream.

To Freeze Strawberries

6 cups strawberries, chopped or crushed
Add:
3½ cups sugar

Let stand 10 minutes. Meanwhile, cook 1 box Sure Jell according to directions on package for freezer jam recipe. Add the Sure Jell mixture to the berry and sugar mixture. Stir until sugar is dissolved.

Add 6 more cups of crushed or chopped strawberries. Put into freezer boxes immediately and freeze.

Thanks to Janet Spangler, York Springs, for sending in this recipe for using frozen berries and rhubarb. Janet also recommends putting frozen berries in dessert dishes and pouring on milk. It tastes almost like ice cream, she writes. You can also use frozen berries to make milkshakes.

Strawberry-Rhubarb Jam

2 pounds rhubarb
2 pounds strawberries
6 cups sugar

When preparing rhubarb for jam, cut into ½-inch pieces to freeze. Cover rhubarb with half the sugar and let stand 1-2 hours. Crush berries as they thaw with a potato masher or wooden stumper. Mix with remaining sugar and combine with rhubarb. Heat mixture over low flame until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly and gently, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Cook until thick, about 20 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal with sterilized lids and rings. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath.

ANSWER — A Lebanon County reader requested a recipe for dreamsickle cake and one for creamsicle and also the frostings that go with the cake. Thanks to several who sent in recipes. It's always interesting to see several different versions of the same recipe, and this is no exception. Thanks to S. Ebersol for sending this recipe.

Creamsicle Cake

1 box yellow or orange cake mix (prefer yellow)
1 small box orange Jell-O
3¾-ounce package cook and serve pudding made according to package directions
1 teaspoon orange flavoring
1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
8-ounces whipped cream topping

Bake cake as directed on box. Pour into 9x13-inch pan. When baked, poke holes in cake with fork or knife.

Mix Jell-O with ½ cup boiling water and ½ cup cold water. Pour over cake, filling holes. Let set until cooled. Refrigerate 30 minutes.

Mix pudding, flavorings, and ½ cup whipped cream topping. Spread on cake. Top with remaining whipped cream topping.

Orange Cream Cake

1 envelope unsweetened orange soft drink mix (such as Kool Aid)
3 eggs
1 cup water
⅓ cup vegetable oil
6-ounces orange gelatin, divided
1 cup boiling water
1 cup cold water
1 cup cold milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package (3.4) ounces instant vanilla pudding mix
8-ounces frozen whipped cream topping, thawed

In a mixing bowl, combine cake and drink mixes, eggs, oil, and water. Beat on medium speed for 2 minutes. Pour into an ungreased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes or until toothpick inserted near the center comes out clean. Using the handle of a wooden spoon, poke holes in cake. Cool on wire rack for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, in a bowl, dissolve 3-ounces gelatin in boiling water. Stir in cold water. Pour over cake. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours. In a mixing bowl, combine milk, vanilla, pudding mix, and remaining gelatin; beat on low for 2 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes; fold in whipped topping. Frost cake. Refrigerate leftovers. Yield: 12-15 servings.

Mohler House

The house is decorated in many period, historically appropriate, and locally acquired pieces of furniture and decorative items.

Tshudy said, "Our intent has always been to restore the house to its original 18th century character, to retain as much of the original fabric of the house as possible, and to be sensitive to the its local historical significance."

To see how the couple have achieved their goals combined with conveniences for everyday living is an inspiration to all who are interested in history or home decorating.

The annual tour is famous not only for the splendid opportunity to see local homes but also for the food samples served at each stop. Each of the homes on the tour will feature food samples prepared and served by area restaurants and floral arrangements by local florists.

The tour begins at the Eicher Arts Center, Ephrata Park, where tour tickets, maps, and brochures may be picked up by those who did not receive them in the mail. Light refreshments and rest room facilities are also available at Eicher.

Other stops on the tour include the following:

- Kimmel House Bed and Breakfast, 851 S. State St.
- Mary Haesch's three-level home, 169 Brickyard Circle.
- Home of Edward R. and Brenda Sensenig, 188 S. Market St.
- Kromers Guest Home, 229 W. Main St.
- Home of Richard E. and Nancy Shortuse, 1046 Dawn Ave.
- Ephrata Mennonite Church, 510 Stevens Rd.

Tickets for the tour are $10. A limited number of tickets are available and must be ordered in advance. To reserve tickets, send check with self-addressed stamped envelop to Marion Shook, 936 Dawn Ave., Ephrata, PA 17522 or call her at (717) 733-7677 or to Edith Graff, 39 School Lane, Stevens, PA 17578 or call her at (717) 336-4719.

Wanted: Well-Kept Farms For Dairy of Distinction Merit

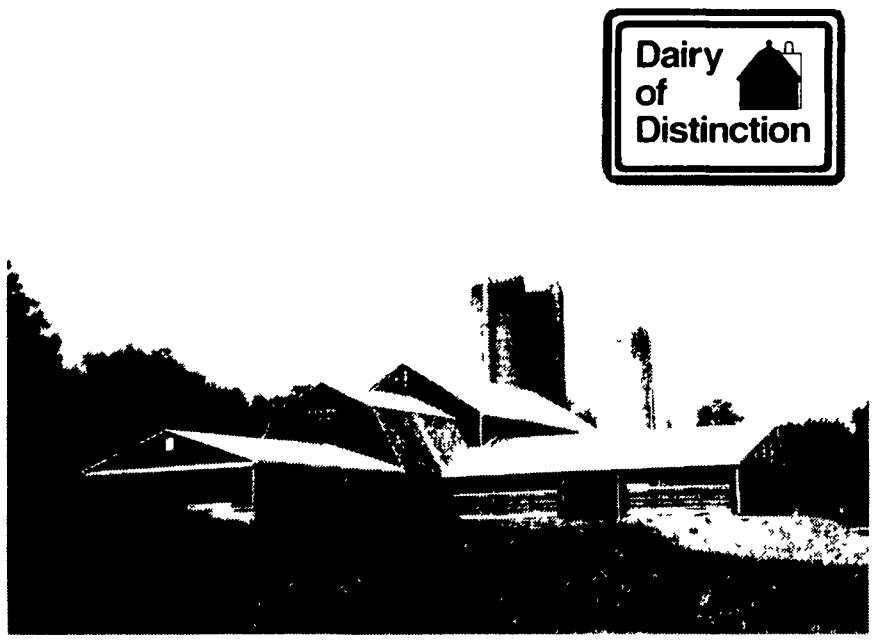
Dairy of Distinction

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences

Roadside judging will take place in May. Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings, neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences. They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management



Crystal Spring Farm, Mifflintown

Winning farms will be notified in late June. Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards.

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das psu edu

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

Rules

1 The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP)
2 The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4"x4"x12' or iron pipe 2"x12' be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability
3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Dairy of Distinction
2002 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18"x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm

Learn About Thomas Edison

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Archivist Leonard DeGraaf, of the Edison National Historic Site, will present a slide lecture on Edison and his effects on modern America at the Hershey Museum on Sunday, March 10 at 2 p.m.

A contemporary of Milton Hershey, Thomas Edison was one of America's most prolific inventors, credited with over 1,093 U.S. patents, DeGraaf's program will examine how Edison's inventions in electric lighting, sound recording, and motion pictures transformed American life between the 1870s and the 1920s.

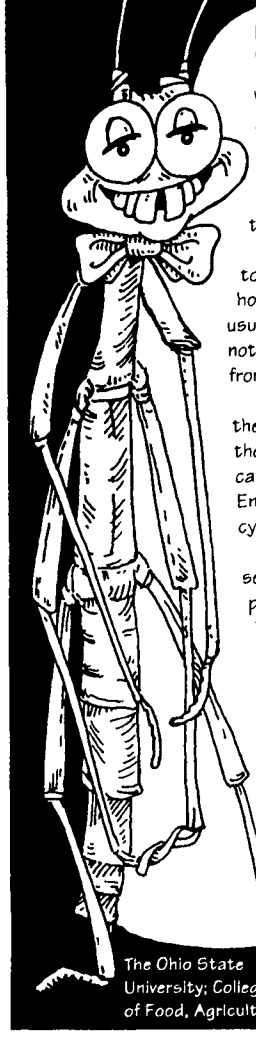
Using historic photographs and documents from the Edison Archives, DeGraaf explores one of Edison's greatest technological legacies, the experimental laboratory. Laboratories set up by Edison, in Menlo Park and West Orange, N.J. were staffed by teams of experimenters devoted to producing new inventions on a regular basis. These were the forerunners of the modern industrial research and development facilities of today.

Leonard DeGraff has worked at the Edison National Historic Site in West Orange, N.J. since 1991. From 1983 to 1991, he was associated with the Thomas A. Edison Papers Project at Rutgers University. Well-versed in Edison's achievements and history, he has written several articles on Edison and is currently writing a history of Edison's phonograph companies.

Hershey Museum is open daily 10 a.m.-5 p.m., through Memorial Day, and is located adjacent to Hersheypark Arena. Admission is $6 adults, $5.50 seniors 62 plus, $3 youths 3-15, children under 3 are free. For more information, call (717) 534-3439, or visit the Website at www.hersheymuseum.org.

Smart Stuff

with Twig Walkingstick



Dear Twig: A park near my house has "vernal pools." What are they?

Vernal pools are bodies of water, usually small, that appear in spring. Rain and melting snow fill them up. They dry up during the summer, usually. But when they're full they're full of life. Mole salamanders, freshwater shrimp, plankton, wood frogs and toads, among other things, use them.

How? Well, mole salamanders, wood frogs and toads lay their eggs there. Then they return to their homes on land. Their young grow up fast; they're usually able to hop or crawl before a pool dries up. (But not always. Yuck!) American toads, for instance, go from egg to tadpole to toadlet in only about a month.

Freshwater shrimp and plankton, meanwhile, live their whole lives there. When a pool starts running dry, the plankton form cysts and the female shrimp lay egg cases. The cysts and cases can survive out of water. Enough of them last until the next spring to start the cycle of life again.

Vernal pools, like wetlands in general, are vibrant, sensitive and also often threatened. That's why parks protect them. Look for them in the next few months. They're as welcome and fleeting as summer vacation ("Only three months? Ahhh!), as noisy-alive as your playground at recess.

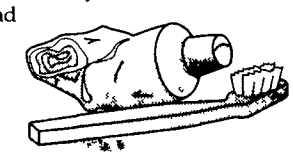
Brushin' Up On Teeth

How many times a day do you brush your teeth? How much time do you spend brushing them?



Did you know that you should brush your teeth with a fluoride toothpaste at least twice a day? Each time you should brush for at least two minutes. In addition, you should use a soft-bristled toothbrush with a very small amount of toothpaste, and your toothpaste should be endorsed by the American Dental Association (ADA)

Now comes the big question . . Which toothpaste should you use? Many of them have the same ingredients, and as long as they contain fluoride and are used correctly, they can help prevent cavities. Tartar-control toothpastes may help prevent more tartar, but they cannot remove it. Once tartar is set, it can only be removed through a professional cleaning by your dentist or hygienist.

In addition to brushing, you should floss your teeth once a day. Flossing cleans between your teeth where a toothbrush cannot reach.

You are at the age where you may still be losing your baby teeth. But it is still important for you to have good brushing habits. Studies show that plaque and bacteria can start to grow on your teeth about four hours after you brush. So be sure to brush frequently and thoroughly!

Lancaster Family History Conference Is April 6

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On April 6, Dorothy A. Boyd-Rush will open the 23rd annual Lancaster Family History Conference with a keynote address on "The Great Philadelphia Wagon Road." This major migration route of the Colonial period stretched from southeastern Pennsylvania to Maryland, to the Valley of Virginia and on into the Carolinas.

Many different ethnic and religious groups sought new homes along this route.

Boyd-Rush is professor of history at James Madison University in Virginia and has lectured widely at historical and genealogical conferences.

Among the 20 session options are seminars on using photographs, Mennonites in Hesse and Waldeck, using old newspapers, computers and cemetery research, documenting your house, and a look at how Pennsylvania county boundaries have changed over the years.

One seminar in each track guides the beginning genealogist. A special feature includes opportunities for individualized consultation with experts, including consultation on antique German and French documents.

The conference begins on April 5 with a bus trip to Washington, D.C., led by staff members of the Lancaster County History Society. Visits are possible to the National Archives and the Daughters of the American Revolution Library.

A banquet on Saturday evening, April 6, will offer a catered meal and a slide-illustrated lecture entitled "Marking Time," by Cory Amsler, curator of the Mercer Museum in Doylestown. Amsler will explore the many reasons people sign and date the objects they made, owned, or used.

One may register separately for the banquet. The conference will take place at Lancaster Mennonite High School on Route 30 about five miles east of downtown Lancaster. For more information or printable registration form visit http://www.lmhs.org/ and click on the Lancaster Family History Conference logo, or contact Lola Lehman at (717) 393-9745.

Gift Basket Arranging Explained

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — Turning out 30-40 gift baskets per day for customers is a far cry from the fruit basket construction that once went on in the basement in a York County home.

That is the story, however, of Brown's Orchards and Farm Market, Loganville, where employees now sell and deliver 6,000 fruit and bakery gift baskets during the Thanksgiving-to-Christmas season.

The gift basket industry has developed into a three billion dollar industry, said Teri Sinclair, customer service representative.

According to Stan Brown, general manager, the gift basket aspect of the business began in 22 years ago, when "we had no baskets but plenty of apples and pears," he said. Brown pulled together some fruit and designed a few samples for the family's stand.

After 75 baskets sold in the first holiday season, the basket category continued to grow throughout the years.

Large baskets are becoming popular with companies, as employers often buy one large gift for all employees to share. In addition the bakery products made at Brown's has also helped to increase sales.

A delivery service that Brown's provides also makes the baskets a popular choice for busy gift buyers.

The baskets are assets to the business as they are a value-added product, since they utilize the businesses' own fruit and bakery products. They also add diversity, extend the sales season, and give more color and overall eye appeal to the market.

However the higher volume and fragility of a perishable product that accompanies the basket industry may add stress to an already-busy holiday season. A properly-trained staff is imperative to produce a consistent product.

Sinclair said that small cards, which allow the customer to write a brief note to the recipient, help to give a personal touch to the gift baskets. Another attached note provides the customer tips about care of the basket's contents.

Customers may also bring their own items to be included to the baskets, said Sinclair. In addition to allowing customers to incorporate their own touches, customers can adjust a basket's contents according to their preferences with an equal substitution list.

Kathy Rohrbaugh, gift basket manager, joined Sinclair to teach participants about basic fruit basket assembly. The basket should have a pyramid shape of product that goes to a peak with uniformly-sized fruit.

Baskets do not always have to be a pyramid, however. Bakery pieces such as a "pie wreath," where a shoo-fly pie is surrounded by several pieces of fruit in a round basket, is more one-dimensional but also eye-appealing.

Balance provides stability in fruit basket design. If a basket is off balance it will appear as if it is toppling over.

The elements of a basket should be related — large and small apples, for example, should not necessarily be mixed unless the designer needs a small apple to fill a hole.

A mix of color will be more pleasing. The focal point — or center of interest — for many of Brown's baskets is often the bakery item, so that is placed in the front. Repetition also adds appeal as designers repeat one or more fruits in basket design.

As a rule of thumb a basket designer could add up all the items in the basket and mark the final price to be 30-40 percent above the price of included items. This goes to cover design, labor, wrap and bow, and other more hidden costs.

In the bottom of the basket is the accordian-folded "spring fill" paper that catches moisture and fills the basket with color. Designers at Brown's begin at the left backhand corner and build their fruit from there, mixing the colors as they go. Bananas are placed on top of apples as opposed to oranges, as apples have a flatter top to act as a base.

The fruit foundation must be level, followed by a level of fruit that is slightly inward. Slightly-green bananas are used as support by cupping them in the back of the basket.

The basket is finished with precut green tissue paper which is placed in the cracks with the eraser pencil and pushed in flush with the fruit. Candy is sprinkled in among the fruit to top off the display.

The basket is then shrink-wrapped in a bag with a heat gun and taped at the bottom before it is topped with a bow.

ANSWER — Eleanor Dial, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., wanted to know where to find ceramic or stuffed ground hog or anything ground hog related. Thanks to Donna Truesdell, S. Deerfield, Ma., who writes that the Punxsutawney Phil Web site www.groundhog.org has a wide selection of groundhog items. Listed are ceramic statues for as little as $3 plus shipping. If Eleanor doesn't have computer e-mail, she can check with a friend or at the public library for access to this site.

ANSWER — Kenneth Wertz, White Hall, Md., requested information for StarLine barn stanchions. The stanchions used in his barn were probably put in during the 1930-1940s. He thinks they may have been made in Harford County, Maryland, but isn't sure. Any help would be appreciated. Thanks to Stephen A. Lapp, 69 Long Lane, Kirkwood, for writing that he has a very old Starline catalog. The address for the company is Starline Inc., Hunt, Helm, Ferris & Co., Harvard, ILL and Albany, N.J. Lapp writes that you are welcome to stop by to see the catalog.

ANSWER — Clarence Sheaffer wanted to know how to dehull Brazilian nuts. Thanks to Gary Diveley, Biglerville, who writes that he read that if Brazil nuts are placed in the freezer and frozen, and cracked while still frozen, the nut will come out whole.

ANSWER — Tim O'Rourke, York Co., requested the formula that was used for the mortar of more than a century-old bank barn. The mortar has a reddish tint that suggests clay silt soil from around the barn was used. Thanks to Richard Knouse, Liverpool, for writing that many different mixes were used for mortar and concrete by using what was close at hand. Almost all used lime or burnt bone as the bonding agent with sand, clay, or ash to add body to the mix. You may find hair, loam, gravel, and other ingredients such as red lead or linseed oil or even gypsum and tar. Plaster of Paris, which contains gypsum to harden it, was used in many mixes. Here are some typical mixes:

- Three parts sand or other clay, ash, loam, etc to one part quick lime and enough water to mix to a paste. You can add other body to the mix but don't exceed more than ¼ of the lime used or it tends to crumble in the weather.
- Two parts powdered clay (baked or dried, baked works best to powder) to one part quick lime. Mix then add 1 part gypsum or Plaster of Paris. Add water after dry mixing.
- Two parts clay, 2 parts ashes, 1 part sand, mix with linseed oil instead of water.

Knouse writes that Tim will need to get something that looks like his mortar when it's crumbled (in the dry mix) and work from there. Coloring like lamp black, soot, or red and gray powdered paint pigment was sometimes added to be fancy so it depends on where the mortar was used as to if you'll find coloring. Be careful when wetting quick lime as it can get very hot and even splatter. Don't get it in your eyes or even touch it with wet hands. Use protection!

ANSWER — Helen Werner, Reinholds, sends this source, which she has been using for years, for Dr. Martin's pole lima beans or Fern Hill: Rohrer Seeds, P.O. Box 250, Smoketown, PA 17576. Phone (717) 299-2571. E-mail for information at rohrerseeds.com.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Northampton County 4-H Equine Tack Swap

The annual Tack Swap at the Northampton County 4-H Center will be on Saturday, April 13, from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. The Center is located on Bushkill Center Rd., Nazareth.

The tack swap is open to anyone who wishes to come to sell or to buy a wide variety of horse related items, apparel and tack. All sellers must have a table area, no consignment items will be sold at the tack swap.

Sale areas will be offered to the public at a cost of $15 per table for the indoor area; $12 per table for the pole barn area; and $10 per "area" in the outdoor arena, weather permitting. Anyone wishing to sell during the tack swap must preregister for spaces in the indoor and pole barn areas; outdoor areas will be allocated on the day of the event.

Any item from small to large may be sold. No live animals or food will be allowed to be sold at this event. Persons with large equipment to sell are welcome to display on the open grounds for the registration fee.

Food will be available during the tack swap courtesy of Backtrackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club.

Anyone wishing further information, directions or registration for this event is encouraged to call (610) 837-7294.

Mainland Equestrian 4-H Club Meets

The Mainland Equestrian 4-H Club met in January at the Montgomery County 4-H Center. Pollyanna gifts were exchanged and enjoyed by all the members.

The guest speaker was Suzanne Bush, a freelance author and horse owner. Suzanne took up riding as a young adult and has been able to incorporate her love of horses into her writing career.

After becoming the publisher of "The Reporter" newspaper in Lansdale, Suzanne started writing an equine column in the paper, and published articles about a wide range of topics in the local horse world. She has written articles about a day in the life of an equine vet, serving on mare watch in foaling season, and about seminars given by famous equestrians David and Karen O'Connor and Philip Dutton.

After nine years with The Reporter, Suzanne is currently a freelance author writing about equine topics for magazines.

Club events coming up include safety night, where members will learn how to cool down hot horses; tie quick-release knots; and other safety practices around horses. Planning will start for the club horse show, scheduled for May 18 at the 4-H center. A braiding clinic is also coming up in April, to be held at Pleasant Valley Farm.

4-H leader Lynne Epprecht announced her final year as leader of Mainland Equestrian. She will continue to participate in club activities as a parent. Leadership will be carried on by Martha Heinze.

York County 4-H Beef Club Meets

The December meeting of the York County 4-H Beef Club took place on Dec. 3 at the 4-H center. The meeting was called to order by President Sarah Grim. Everyone met in their age groups to get their project books back from the leaders. Roll call was taken but not scored.

After the secretary and treasurers report, we had installation of the 2002 officers.

Officers for the year 2002 are: Sarah Grim, president; Beth Baer, vice president; Hope Long, secretary, Cory Thompson, treasurer; Amanda Thompson, news reporter; and Jennifer Shultz, historian.

Refreshment sign up sheets for next year's meetings will be passed around along with a sign up sheet for the Buddy program. If you are a younger member and would like an older member buddy, please sign the sheet. Older members need to sign up if you are willing to be a buddy for the younger members.

New Members Sought For 4-H Sewing Club

The Glenburn 4-H Sewing Club is now taking registrations for youth to sign up for 4-H textile science projects. In 4-H, members learn basic clothing construction skills to complete a garment of their choice, according to their experience and interest.

Leaders, Hilda Lewis and Ann Northup of RR 4 Dalton, accept all levels of experience from beginners to advanced including tailoring and formal wear. Both boys and girls ages 10-19 years are encouraged to register by calling the Penn State Cooperative Extension office at (570) 963-6842.

To find out more about 4-H, call Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna County at (570) 963-6842.

York County's Central Dairy 4-H Club Elects Officers

The Central Dairy 4-H club met on Dec. 10 at Michael Saylor's house for a brief meeting and a Christmas social. President Terri Johnson led the meeting.

Angie Beshore gave us a report on her National Congress trip. She said she enjoyed the speakers they had and had fun meeting new people and enjoyed the pin swap.

Election of officers was held for the 2002 year. The new officers are as follows: Jamie Welsh, president; Michael Saylor, vice president; Terri Johnson, secretary; Cory Thompson, treasurer, Amanda Thompson, news reporter; and April Daugherty, Kelly Johnson and Layne Shaffer, historians.

April will be in charge of history and will also be working on the Outstanding Club Book. Each member was asked to help by turning in photos and watching for newspaper articles.

Lancaster County 4-H Horse Winners

Thirty-eight 4-H horse club members have been recognized for their outstanding horsemanship skills. The 4-H youth have worked hard all year trying to "make the best better" with their 4-H horse projects.

Those horse club members fortunate enough to own horses are responsible for the daily care, management, and record keeping of their project animals as well as providing leadership and community service within their club.

County All-Stars were named for their excellent horsemanship skills at our county horse show. Winning the Western All-Star division is Melissa Anspach of Quarryville, our English division winner is Lindsay Shreiner of Manheim and the Contest All-Star winner is Alisha Liles of Elizabethtown.

Our High Point Awards calculate members placings at the county horse show, district horse show and the state horse show. Josh Lowe and Kim Dietrich were named the Junior High Point Award winners and our Senior High Point winner was Alisha Liles.

Other winners Julie Anspach, Caitlin Dow, Stacy Landis, Alisha Liles, Josh Lowe, Keith Miller, Mallory Nauman, Brooke Reist, and Brent Talbot, all received awards for placing at the state horse show. Danielle Long received a silver tray for winning the second place Horsemanship Award and fifth place Overall Award at the State 4-H Competitive Trail Ride.

Fiberglass Wheels & Springs - Upholstery Fabric
Powder Coated and Zinc Plated Carriage Parts

700 Country Lane, Paradise, PA 17562 Aus. Service (717) 627-7120

★ ★ New Products Now Available ★ ★

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Wheels are: ~

Fiberglass Wheels

- Very Low Maintenance Costs These wheels are built to last a lifetime and beyond without ever having to replace any parts on the wheels under normal use. The only maintenance required will be tightening up or replacing the tire or rubber.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions – No more loose rattling spokes – ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels.
- Hard Durable Surface Resists scuffs and scratches, paint job stays shinier.
- Easier Cleaning Spokes have all rounded corners, no tight spots for dirt to get into.

Fiberglass Springs

- Lightweight A fiberglass spring weighs 22 lbs. less than a steel spring, 44 lbs less weight on the carriage.
- Durable One Piece Design No bolts to give out or wear.
- Better Performance With Heavy Loads The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bottom out.
- No Rusting Ever Paint will not blister or peel off. No rust stains running out between the plys, providing a nicer appearance and much easier cleaning.
- A Lifetime Guarantee If these springs ever break under normal use, we will replace them free of charge.
- Stabilizer Kits – Now Available For a smoother ride and less bounce

Upscale Antiques Attract Collectors At Hunt Valley Show

Joan Datesman of Merry Walk Antiques holds one of her favorite pieces of Quimper from her colorful collection. The unsigned piece dated 1870 sells for $1,100.

Jacqueline Smelkinson examines a rare British biscuit tin in which Huntley and Palmers marketed biscuits to the middle class. In addition to a series of book-shaped tins, many other designs were marketed from 1868-1939.

"Family at the Stream," oil painted by George Rieche, is reminiscent of the days when cows in streambeds were not considered ecologically harmful.

HUNT VALLEY, Md. — The Hunt Valley Antiques Show specialized in period formal and high-country English and American furniture, Chinese export china, paintings, mirrors, silver, and pewter.

The show also featured Delft, miniature furniture and salesmen's samples, and unique accessories such as a Quimper snuff box that looks like a tiny porcelain book.

Quimper, she said, originated in France in the early 19th century and was imported in the U.S. in the 1920s to be sold in department and gift stores.

Quaint motifs are often scenes from France that tell a story. The "folk art" scenes continue to be popular among today's collectors.

Another type of dinnerware on display at the show was Spode. Although called bone china, Spode is actually porcelain. The English porcelain was strongly influenced by Orientalstyles popular at the time because the Japenese and Chinese commanded the market for fine china.

In the mid-18th century, Josiah Spode I attempted to copy the Oriental china. Spode was famous for the perfection of transfer printing in 1784 and the development of fine bone china about 1799.

Spode's products during the first quarter of the 19th century consisted mainly of simple shapes characteristic of the Regency style. They were decorated with topographical views, country scenes, and flowers. They also featured transfer printing, a technique in which the design was transferred to the porcelain on a pad, or bat, of gelatin, which produced a softly stippled effect. Alternatively, the wares were painted with flowers in bunches or sprigs in a huge variety of patterns. Both types of decoration were enhanced by gilded borders.

During the 1840s, a new hard, white unglazed porcelain, known as statuary porcelain and later as Parian from its marble-like quality, was produced. These enabled the factory to output high-quality decorated wares with plenty of gilding.

Spode china is greatly treasured in England and in America. A wide variety of patterns were displayed at the Hunt Valley Show by The Spare Room, owned by three women from Baltimore, Md.

The Spare Room also exhibited collectible tin toys and biscuit tins in unique shapes. According to Jacqueline Smelkinson, who co-owns The Spare Room, the tins were used to attract middle-class customers to buy biscuits from the British firm, Huntley and Palmers, during the Industrial Revolution.

Some of the most sought after designs are a series of biscuit tins that look like leather-bound books. A set of the Dickens tins sells for about $2,000.

"Landscape with Shepherd" is by American artist James Desvareaux, whose paintings show influences from his homeland France.

At Hunt Valley, fine arts collections included many intriguing paintings from the past. John Formicola, who operates a gallery in Malvern, said that many of the 19th and 20th century paintings are still in original frames. If Formicola finds unframed paintings or those with badly damaged frames, he matches them with frames typical of the era.

Admission was charged to enter the show that featured 56 dealers from around the country, which offered high-end antiques of America and English period furniture, silver, jewelry, Oriental rugs and textiles, illuminated manuscripts, porcelain, pottery, line, lace, needlework, folk art, garden ornaments, quilts, and other fine arts.

It was the 32nd annual show, which benefits family and children's services of central Maryland.

The three-day show included lectures and talks about collecting and antiques.

Quimper Folk Art Pottery Still Popular

You've probably seen Quimper Faience (tin-glazed earthenware) with it's quaint, hand-painted figures, usually made by 19th century French peasants. While the earliest examples were first made in the 18th century, most familiar and available are those made from 1886 to the early 20th century. The peasant motif was so popular it has never stopped being made. However Quimper (pronounced "kem-pair") also was made in floral and geometric motifs.

Considered as a form of folk art, the peasant motif decorates hundreds of types of items from tiles, inkwells, figures, and candlesticks to banks, boxes, and picture frames.

If you like the look, a study of makers and marks is imperative.

For instance, in the 18th century,

Antique Detective

three factories in Quimper and Brittany produced a variety of Faience pieces with some designs showing the influence of blue and white Chinese porcelain, popular at the time. Borders were usually intricate, stylized flowers and leaves that resembled fancy iron grillwork.

The name and the marks most associated with Quimper is Jules Henriot who took over one of the factories producing this type of ware (the Dumaine) in 1884.

In 1904 he bought out the Porquier.

CLUES: Knowing the varied marks helps date pieces. For example the initials "HB" in a triangle date to 1898; HR and the word "Quimper" in script date 1895 to 1922. After 1922 the mark was changed to "Henriot, Quimper."

Peasant pieces with figures and scenes were done by a master artist, Alfred Beau in 1872 and when attributed to him the price goes up.

Reproductions abound. Be wary of peasant pieces with a crazed surface and a brownish wash. The marks are brown instead of the black or blue factory marks. The Malicorne factory near Paris has also reproduced peasant pottery. They are marked PBx and with the "x" removed, they are passed off as Quimper.

Prices are up and down the scale depending on where you buy, rarity of the piece, and age. In Miller's 2001 International Price Guide a c.1922 Peasant girl tile had an estimated value of $65/75. A c.1930 Henriot Quimper plate had an auction estimate of $100-$120.

When a 78-piece 20th century Henriot Quimper dinner service came to a recent Skinner auction it sold for $1,880. Quite a bargain when you consider it included major serving pieces. Rare or unusual pieces like a jardiniere or platter with a peasant scene can sell for over a thousand dollars.

Also of interest to collectors are the Art Deco style pieces introduced in the 1920s as the Odetta line. However it used a stoneware body. Art Nouveau period pieces, when attribued to a specific artist are still at bargain prices. For instance, a c.1900 Quimper dish painted by Paul Fouillon, a noted artist, could sell at auction for around $300.

Today descendents of Jules Henriot have joined with other "faienceries" to reproduce the popular peasant patterns and introduce others at The Faiencerie d'Art Breton. To learn more about the past and present of Quimper try the website http://www.oldquimper.com.

There are several good reference books on the subject. One is "Quimper Pottery; a Guide to Original styles and values" by Adela Meadows. Published by Schiffer. Priced at $49.95.

Keep in mind that there are still plenty of good pieces around.

Don't spend money on a chipped or flaked piece, unless you know it is valuable and worth the cost of restoration.

There's nothing wrong with collecting a variety of marks; there were so many.

❖ BUSINESS NEWS ❖

Two New MF Utility Tractors Offer High Performance

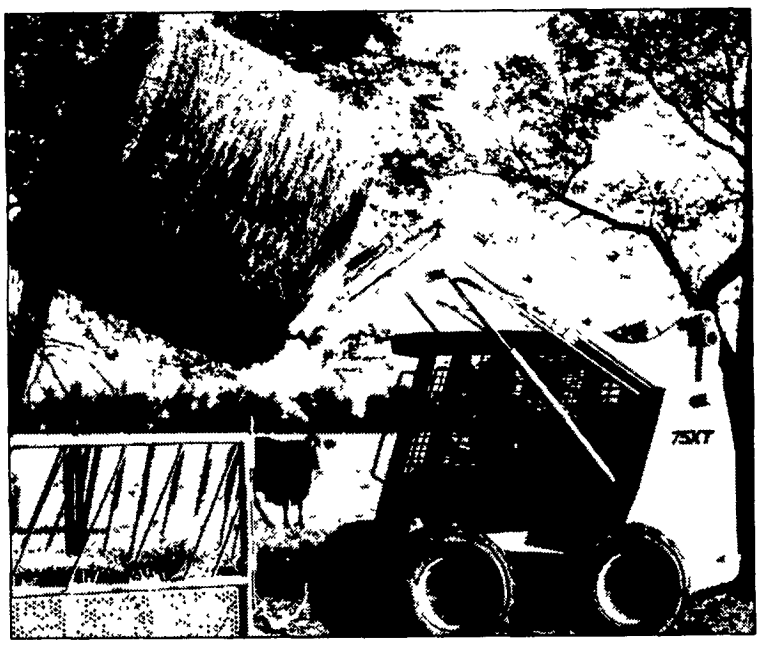
ATLANTA, Ga. — "Two new Massey Ferguson® utility tractors — the MF 271XE at 59 PTO horsepower, and MF 281XE at 69 PTO horsepower — offer new high performance features to handle primary tillage on small farms, and light tillage, haying, hauling, and other hard usage chores on larger farms", said Tim Wagner, Massey Ferguson general marketing manager.

"We have increased the productivity of these two tractors without stretching the customers budget," added Wagner, "and their performance and versatility also makes them ideal for tough rental firm jobs and grounds maintenance operations."

The MF 271XE and MF 281XE are both available in two- and four-wheel drive models, and include the quality components and features customers depend on: fuel-efficient Perkins engines; advanced Ferguson system hydraulics; an easy to use transmission with a wide range of working speeds; 4WD front axle engagement on-the-go; dual-stage "live" PTO; fully adjustable spring suspension seats; and folding ROPS.

Power is supplied by 1000 Series Perkins four-cylinder diesel engines with a Fastram™ combustion system that converts more fuel to energy, improves power and torque, is quieter during operation, and meets all Stage 1 Off-Highway emission standards. A long 5-inch stroke produces maximum torque at low engine rpm for better performance.

An 8Fx2R manual transmission is standard equipment with two speeds for slow operations, four working speeds for mowing, baling hay, tillage, spraying and other field operations, and two high speed gears are for transport.



An updated line of XT Series compact and heavy-lift skid steers is now available through the Case IH dealer network. The new line offers advancements in power, lift capacity, reach, lift height, comfort and reliability. It also features a wide variety of attachments for agricultural applications, including the bale spike shown here.

New XT Skid Steers Offer 'Extreme' Performance

Exclusive Features Increase Efficiency

A number of new productivity-enhancing features extend to all members of the XT skid steer family. Optional two-way self-leveling prevents load loss when raising or lowering the loader arms for superior handling and maximum productivity. In addition, a ride control feature reduces spillage by cushioning the load on rough terrain, which translates to quicker job completion. Ride control also increases operator comfort and reduces wear on the machine.

Other options include a 3,000-psi high-flow hydraulic system that provides flows of up to 40 gpm, and an engine shutdown system designed to prevent component damage. If operating temperatures or pressures exceed acceptable ranges, the system automatically shuts down the engine.

In addition, a complete line of skid steer attachments for agricultural applications, including bale spikes, pallet forks, buckets and more, is available through the Case IH dealer network. An optional hydraulic attachment quick coupler on all XT models makes it possible to drop and switch buckets directly from the operator's compartment.

The line of buckets for the 40XT, 60XT and 70XT models has been expanded to include forestry/excavating, low profile, extended lip, utility/light material and manure/slurry buckets.

Doebler's Introduces Predator Alfalfa

JERSEY SHORE (Clinton Co.) — Doebler's new Predator alfalfa represents the latest breakthrough in potato leafhopper (PLH) resistance and performance.

Developed through a newly patented PLH breeding process (U.S. Patent No. 6,127,599), Predator combines high resistance (HR) to potato leafhoppers with outstanding agronomic performance and high forage quality.

It has high resistance to all five major alfalfa diseases found in the eastern U.S. — phytophthora root rot, bacterial wilt, fusarium wilt, anthracnose, aphanomyces, and resistance to verticillium wilt. Predator produces very high forage quality with excellent cell wall digestibility and in vitro digestibility scores for optimum milk production.

Many university extension agronomists recommend planting highly resistant alfalfas if you use a nurse crop to establish your stands. While no alfalfas have complete resistance, Doebler's Predator will greatly increase the economic thresholds at which damage becomes significant. University data has shown that highly resistant alfalfas greatly reduce PLH damage in alfalfa and increase the economic thresholds at which spraying is necessary.

Each year alfalfa producers in the U.S. suffer millions of dollars in yield and protein loss from potato leafhopper (PLH) damage. Leafhoppers are most active in temperatures of 53 to 93 degrees and when the humidity is greater than 40 percent. This damage is magnified when dry conditions and low fertility are present. With Predator, Doebler's new third generation, high-yielding PLH-resistant alfalfa, growers in the eastern U.S. can now protect their alfalfa yields and protein from losses because of leafhoppers without compromising performance.

'Calf Cycle' Topic Of Customer Meetings

BIRDSBORO (Berks Co.) — Three hundred customers and friends attended a series of five customer meetings sponsored by F.M. Brown's Sons, Inc., Alpharma Animal Health, Balchem, and Diamond V Yeast.

The topic of the meeting dealt with how to get calves from birth to freshening in a timely and economical manner. The importance of this topic has been reinforced by the prices being paid for replacement heifers, and the value of young calves at local markets.

Dr. Carl Brown, sales manager of F.M. Brown's Sons, spoke about the importance of a balanced heifer program. With estimated costs of $1,200 to $1,550 incurred for each heifer that is raised to freshening, it is critical that every dairyman examines their heifer program closely.

In a balanced program, heifers are raised to optimum age and weight in the shortest possible time. Only the number of heifers needed are retained, and calves must be given a chance to live after birth.

Ryan Dunn, area manager for Alpharma, followed up on the advantages of using Bovatec in heifer rations. In a summary of 11 Mississippi State trials, Bovatec fed calves had an advantage of almost three ounces a day increase in average daily gain compared to control calves on an otherwise similar ration. At a cost of 1½ cents per day to feed Bovatec it is a great investment. He noted that the amount of Bovatec fed must increase as calves and heifers gain weight, and complimented Brown's for the amount of Bovatec they add to their respective calf and heifer feeds.

Mark Wagner, Brown's director of nutrition, followed and discussed Brown's heifer raising recommendation, and reviewed the five groups heifers should move through before freshening: birth to weaning, weaning to six months, six months to breeding, breeding to pre-calving, and the pre-fresh group. Each of these phases is important, and each requires a slightly different plane of nutrition. He stressed that it is important to keep calves and heifers growing taller, not just getting heavier.

Mark Wagner, also discussed how nutrient demands of pre-fresh animals are different from those of dry cows, and why a pre-fresh group is a critical step for dry cows and bred heifers to take before they enter the lactating herd. Problems such as milk fever, reproductive disorders, ketosis, and displaced abomasum can often be traced directly back to metabolic deficiencies in the pre-fresh period.

Brown's 30 DC Balancer pellets provide dry cows with all the nutrients needed during the early dry period. Prior to freshening, feed intake drops. To counter this problem, cows should be placed in a pre-fresh group two to three weeks before freshening. Ketosis is a challenge for most high-producing cows. Brown's Keto-Kurb has been reformulated to help fight this challenge. Keto-Kurb now contains NutroCAL, a propionate salt. NutroCAL is quickly absorbed when fed, and is a more concentrated glucose precursor than propylene glycol. Keto-Kurb is generally fed to the pre-fresh group at five pounds per cow per day in combination with two pounds of Brown's 30 DC Balancer pellets. Keto-Kurb contains Bio-Mate FG, a direct fed microbial and organic zinc and copper to help recover from calving stress. Diamond V Yeast is included to improve appetite, and magnesium sulfate to meet higher requirements for magnesium just before and after freshening.

Gary Kuhns, technical representative for Balchem Encapsulates, ended the program describing how Reashure, rumen protected choline chloride, aided in feed intake and higher peak milk yields when fed before and immediately after freshening. Choline is an essential B Vitamin first identified in 1850. In hogs and chickens it was noted that choline reduced fatty livers. Wisconsin research suggests that as many as 60 percent of dry cows have fatty livers. Work by Dr. Erdman in dairy cows in the early 1970s demonstrated that if choline was infused past the rumen significant increases in milk production and butterfat were noted.

When Reashure was fed in a high producing (25,000 pounds) western herd, milk production and feed intake both increased, blood glucose increased, and NEFAs and ketones in the blood decreased. In a large New York trial, eight herds feeding Reashure at two ounces per day to pre and post fresh cows saw increases of three to nine pounds of milk a day over controls receiving a similar ration without the choline.

Spike Harrow

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — The new, flip-over five bar spike harrow from Worksaver, Inc., changes easily from transport position to working position. Designed for leveling soil, the harrow is ideal for smoothing gardens, food plots and playing fields.

Spikes on the harrow are constructed from forged high-carbon steel and have a staggered tooth pattern for enhanced leveling.

Newsletter Provides Information For Woodland Owners

Rance Scott Harmon

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many private woodland owners are taking steps to improve their woodlots. With the right information and assistance, woodland owners can improve access, minimize taxes, increase timber value, protect water resources and natural beauty, and provide better hunting, fishing, and wildlife-watching opportunities.

Woodland owners can even take actions to improve habitat for particular animals, such as grouse, woodcock, white-tailed deer, cottontails, songbirds, or squirrels.

The Forest Leaves newsletter provides practical information for private woodland owners, including articles about growing and tending trees, forest pests, safety in the woods, enhancing wildlife habitat, and ways to learn more about conserving forest resources. For example, recent issues have included articles about local and regional woodland owners' associations, gypsy moths, efforts to restore the American chestnut tree to the nation's forests, chainsaw safety, and the benefits of forest streams.

Almost all Pennsylvania woodland owners have interest in wildlife, and most issues of Forest Leaves include practical information about enhancing wildlife habitat.

Each issue of Forest Leaves included a calendar of events to make readers aware of upcoming meetings, tours, seminars, conferences, and workshops for private woodland owners. There is also a book review in each issue that profiles recent publications of interest to woodland owners.

Since three-quarters of Pennsylvania's forests are privately owned, the decisions that individual citizens make have a great impact on the present and future conditions of the state's forest resources.

Forest Leaves provides high-quality forest management information to Pennsylvania's private woodland owners, so they can make decisions that lead to healthy and productive forests. The Pennsylvania Tree Farm System®, Sustainable Forestry Initiative® of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania Forestry Association, and Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program are partners in publishing the Forest Leaves newsletter.

For a free subscription to Forest Leaves or a list of other free publications available from the Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program, please call 1-800-235-WISE (toll-free), send e-mail to RNRext@psu.edu, or write: School of Forest Resources Extension, The Pennsylvania State University, 7 Ferguson Building, University Park, PA 16802-4300.

BALE with GEHL.

Wet or Dry - Made to Work in All Crop Conditions!
High Speed Custom Baling with a High Moisture Round Baler? Wet or dry with 100% Satisfaction!
See Binkley & Hurst Bros and Take a Look at the ALL NEW

ROUND BALER 4'x5'
Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat Power In-Feed System

Gehl's power in feed system opens to nearly 7 for large crop volume

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber An extension spring keeps the toproll under constant downward force

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll, both turning inward, pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup

THREE-BALL TWINE BOX. Gehl balers are designed to keep you going all day long with six-ball twine storage. They're located in full-size doors that open to provide easy access to baler components like an optional chain oiler system or the Total Density Control adjustments.

GAUGE WHEELS. Allow the pickup to follow field contours while keeping tines out of the dirt. That saves wear and tear on the pickup and means less dirt in your bale. Gauge wheels are standard equipment with the wide pickup and an option with some others.

BELTS. Deluxe balers feature chevron belts (pictured above) with heavy-duty, plate-type belt lacing. The belts are 6-1/2 inches wide for closer spacing between belts and less space between the belts and side sheets. Belts are configured in a staggered pattern to minimize trash build-up.

- Capacity. The "195" takes on 410 bushels (440 cu. ft.) without flinching
- Strong construction. Corrosion-resistant steels last and last. And an HDPE floor means smooth unloading, even in cold weather
- Bonded Protection warranty. If the polyethylene floor fails or the sides rust, you'll get new ones FREE for 12 years.
- Fast clean out... even with this big-capacity strong box
- Large tandem oscillating wheels...allow faster ground speeds in rough terrain, with less ground compaction

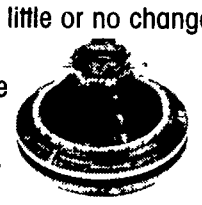
CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Speciality

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined outputs, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.



CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1–2 cyl.)
• Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1 1/8", 1 7/16"
• Aluminum Castings/Housings
• Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

MAXIMIZE YOUR PRODUCTIVITY With DEPENDABLE KRAUSE TILLAGE

Krause 7300 & 7400 Series Disc Harrows

Krause 7300 27' WR Disc

Dale Hoover
Lebanon, PA

Dale Hoover farms over 500 acres in Lebanon, PA and often encounters rocky fields So when he wanted a new disc, he bought another Krause Rockflex Disc from Hoober "We have some very rocky fields and the new Krause 7300 Disc stood up to the rocks And Hoober always has the parts we need and we were very pleased with the service we got "

"Krause discs are made well and are tough enough to get the job done. In fact, on our last Krause disc, the original bearings lasted 18 years."

- ➤ Rugged, Dependable Performance
- ➤ Excellent Penetration in Tough Conditions
- ➤ Level Job Every Time
- ➤ More Timely Planting
- ➤ Higher Resale Value When it's Time to Trade

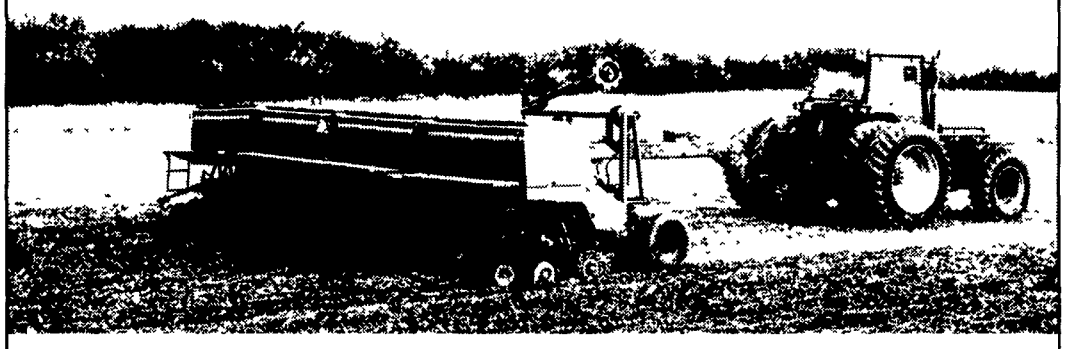
Achieve Better Stands & Better Yields

With Great Plains Precision Seeding Systems



Larry Sheubrooks and his son Jason are farming about 2300 acres outside Centreville, MD
They have run Great Plains drills from Hoober since 1992

"We got this new Great Plains 30' Precision Drill last March and put 2500 acres on it the first year It's working great for us and we haven't had any problems. The coulter ahead of the planting unit gives us excellent seed to soil contact. The seed has a better chance to germinate, and that gives us better stands and better yields. Plus the drill puts the seed out more accurately because it singulates the seed through the different plates you have "

Larry Sheubrooks, Centreville, MD

The versatile Great Plains Precision Seeding System, available in 15' and 30' widths, is the ideal tool for planting beans, corn, milo, cotton, wheat and rice. Before you buy your next planter or drill, check out the Seeding System that is revolutionizing crop production.

NOBODY DOES HAY BETTER

0% For 36 Months Call For Details

JOHN DEERE

Complete hay control starts at the pickup. Hay is gathered and precompressed before it reaches the bale chamber... for more-solid bales. Gear-and shaft-driven knotters adjust to different twines and crops. Easy to service, too.

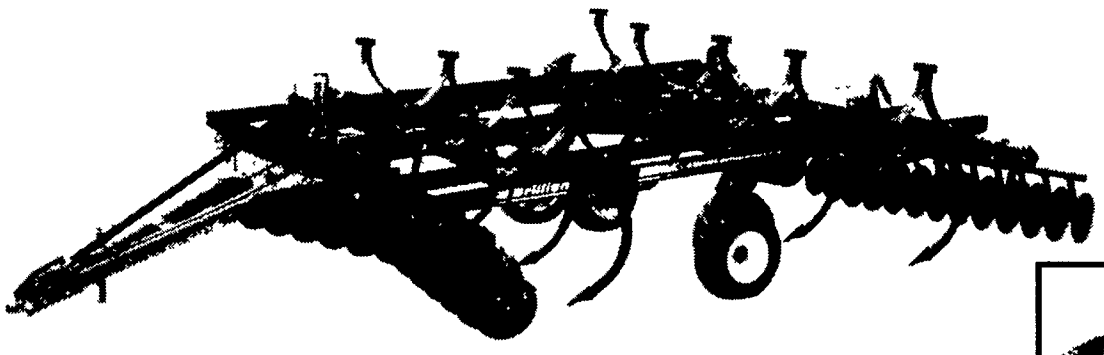
Brillion

Land Commander II

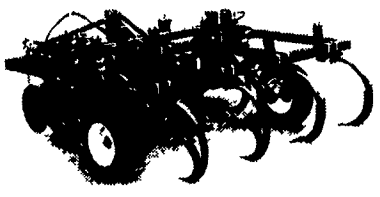


THE MOST VERSATILE CONSERVATION TILLAGE TOOL AVAILABLE.

- Cut through heavy residue with ease
- New, longer heavy duty "A" frame drawbar with self-leveling hitch
- 39 inch under frame clearance for easy trash flow
- Auto-reset shanks work the ground down to 18" deep to break up hard pan and improve water holding capacity and root growth
- Brillion durability and dependability for long, trouble-free operation

Super Soil Builder

SELF LEVELING - EXPANDED FRAME



The Super Soil Builder has an expanded frame

1. 139" front to back;
2. with three ranks of chisel shanks for smooth and easy flow of residue through the machine The Super Soil Builder is self-leveling, regardless of working depth
3. Optional hydraulic coulter control allows the oprator to adjust the cutting depth of the coulters or to raise them completely out of the ground on the go, from the tractor seat

Pulvi-Mulchers

THE IDEAL ONE-PASS SECONDARY TILLAGE TOOL TO PROVIDE THE PERFECT CLOD-FREE SEEDBED FOR HIGHER YIELDS.

- Available in widths from 7'4" to 30' to accommodate any size operation.
- High-clearance frame allows free flow of trash through the machine.
- Choice of 20" notched or crowfoot ductile iron roller wheels with five year limited warranty against breakage.
- Heavier duty, longer drawbar to accommodate dual wheeled tractors.

John Deere Introduces New Tracking System

LENEXA, Kan. — Last year, John Deere introduced GreenStar® parallel tracking, a special guidance system to help operators navigate their machinery down a straight path through the field.

Using the StarFire™ position receiver and GPS technology, a GreenStar display unit shows the operator his exact position in the field relative to a straight path that is determined with a first pass.

"This new tracking system has been very well accepted in the marketplace," says Steve Robisky, product manager from John Deere ag management solutions. "It allows an operator to maximize machinery performance by reducing overlap of tilled or sprayed areas. Time and money is saved by improving the accuracy of tractor or sprayer passes through the field."

The older system had its drawbacks; it could not navigate around contours and it could not operate with the government-sponsored WAAS differential correction system.

Beginning March 1, a new enhanced version of parallel tracking will be available to guide an operator in contour conditions. The guidance package records every pass driven and has the ability to pilot back from any one of the previously recorded passes.

"The advantage is that an operator can navigate multiple contours — race track, back-and-forth, or center-pivot — without any input by the operator," says Robisky. "And he can choose different modes of operation depending on his field conditions."

The final mode is the new Contour system, and this allows the operator to navigate in contour field conditions. The new enhancements offer customers a flexible system to meet all their operational needs.

All three modes of operation will operate with any one of three signals that the StarFire position receiver is capable of receiving including WAAS, which is the government-sponsored differential correction.

Cedar Crest Equipment Receives Patz Diamond Dealer Award

POUND, Wis. — Cedar Crest Equipment of Myerstown, Pa. has received the 2001 Diamond Dealer Award from Patz Sales, Inc. of Pound, Wis., a manufacturer of farm material handling equipment.

Cedar Crest Equipment is recognized as not only one of the top dealers for 2001 in the sale of Patz equipment in North America but as the top dealer in sales and the winner of the Diamond Dealer Award.

On Jan. 25, Leon Zimmerman and Anthony Good, as well as representatives from the other top 10 dealerships were guests of Patz Sales, Inc. in Pound for an "Evening with the Stars" banquet, honoring this elite group of dealers, culminating with the presentation of the Gold Dealer awards as well as the prestigious Diamond Dealer Award.

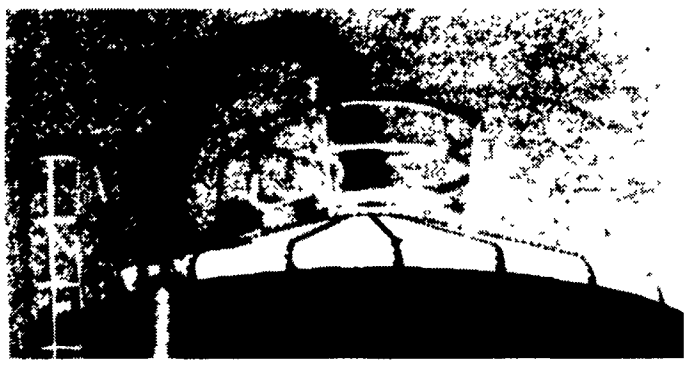
High Capacity Enclosed Goosenecks



12" wide for smooth, fast filling
Built especially for high speed blowers to help reduce loading time. The smooth arc reduces friction and clogging for trouble-free loading.

Farmer-approved engineering
The fully enclosed gooseneck means no more dirty Harvestore® roofs. The end section is vertical for center filling and eliminates the need for a directional section. Double-hinged end section moves away while staying attached Also available in 9" width for corn silage

Made to last
Stainless wear-plate for longer life and less gumming Galvanized to eliminate rust

Easy assembly
Quick installation, one section at at time Flanges hold in place when bolting Mounts to glass lined, stave, or monolithic silos with conical or flat roof

Rural Economy

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA®
A member of the LimPoly group of companies
Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

SCHAEFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Entering and winning the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club Contest may not necessarily be about winning.

For corn grower Steve Wenger, his goal and emphasis centers on the information he can glean from the results.

"I don't enter the contest to win," he said. "I enter the contest because. . . I can look for strengths or know what I need to improve."

Steve took home a second place in the shelled grain, non-irrigated, tilled class in the 1998-2000 three-year average award division with a yield of 220.8 bushels per acre and a plant population of 37,636 using NK N82J6.

Guy Wagner
President, PCGA

Hello, my name is Guy Wagner. I'm the president of the PCGA. I'm proud and honored to be PCGA president.

It's been an exciting year for PCGA. We conducted our conference Feb. 5 in Grantville and we had a good turnout and an excellent program. Ed Winkle's program has generated a lot of interest in the Nu-Till system. I have been using it for the past two years, resulting in excellent stands and my best yields ever.

I'd like to suggest that everyone look at Ed's 14-step handout from his presentation. It has worked very well for me.

I would like to personally thank all of our speakers. I think they all did a fantastic job.

PCGA made some big changes in 2001. The first was our name change from the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association to the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association. This has brought us more in line with the other state organiza-

Five-Acre Corn Contest

Steve to fill one of four "producer" positions on the upcoming year's board of directors.

Steve has entered the Five-Acre Corn and soybean contests for more than five years.

Wen Crest Farm is the result of a partnership between Steve and his wife, Bonnie, and his parents, Glenn and Jean Wenger.

The farm is comprised of 950 owned and rented acreage. Corn, which makes up a total of 540 acres, is the largest crop. The Wengers also raise soybeans, hay, wheat, and barley. One full-time employee helps with equipment maintenance and field work.

Early Is Key

Planting crops early is key to a good start, believes Steve. "We've never had a problem with planting early. Although an early frost may hurt crops, or an early dry spell could suppress growth, "on average, year after year, it pays to plant early," said Bonnie.

"We plant early as long as the ground is fit," he said. "We try to be out there the 10-15 of April to start if we can."

"That way, the crops are further along before it gets dry," said Bonnie.

"Also, it gets shaded over to capture moisture," said Steve.

In contrast to the more traditional 30-inch rows, Steve has planted 200 acres in 15-inch rows to hold moisture and increase yield. "I started trying the 15-inch rows four years ago and it has worked really well," he said. The majority of that yield is used for corn silage.

The family sells their 40,000 bushels of corn and 11,000 bushels of soybeans, which usually go to local destinations.

Steve, a Syngenta Seed distributor, uses all NK Seeds for his crops. A nutrient management program that includes using the farm's turkey manure provides savings of $20,000 per year in fertilizer costs.

Crop producers benefit from planting corn hybrids that meet their soil types and management techniques, said Steve. "Each hybrid may be for no till, minimum till, early planting, or early vigor. Each individual farmer has their individual way of doing things, and they have to find a hybrid to meet their own management ideas."

Hybrid strains should also be matched with soil type, said Steve. Extension agents, Penn State resources, and seed salesmen can be very helpful in finding a hybrid match with management techniques and soil types, he said.

Finding a "match" does not mean planing one type of corn, said Steve. "You don't want all the same genetics" in the seeds planted, he said.

"Never plant all of the same variety," he said. "Look for multipurpose corn that will weather both situations" (dry or wet). The Wengers may plant nine varieties in one growing season.

Use the cold winter months wisely, said Steve. "Get all of your equipment fixed in the fall after the harvest is done so it is ready to go in the spring.

"We do most of ours as soon as we are done with the harvest. Most of the equipment goes in the sheds ready to pull out and go into the fields," he said.

"When the spring comes and the fields are ready you'll want to be ready to run."

He recommends looking for worn or broken parts and getting seed discs changed if they are worn, besides checking the seed brushes. "As much as we plant, we change the seed disc openers every other year."

They use a split application weed control plan for their crops. "Right after planting we go over the fields really lightly," said Steve.

"We don't spend a lot of money, but we put something down, then come back later with a cleanup program. After that our fields are all clean and there's nothing competing with the crops for moisture."

Nicholas helps to feed a few of the farm's heifer replacements.

A Growing Farm

The farm is the result of a steady gathering of acreage. Since Steve's grandfather purchased the first farm in 1944, the family purchased a second farm 12 years ago, where Glenn and Jean live. They have purchased a third farm where a family lives to take care of the Holstein feeders.

The farm Steve and Bonnie are working on is the home Steve grew up.

Four years ago the family sold the cows from the dairy herd and expanded their turkey operation, a directional move "instead of major renovation," said Bonnie.

"A year after we expanded the turkey operation the old tiestall barn burned down," said Bonnie.

The animals were quickly evacuated with few injuries and "three weeks later we

Ethanol-Blended Gasoline Available

Mark Antle
Penn State

As most of you probably already know, ethanol is being used as an octane enhancer in some blends of gasoline.

Car manufacturers typically endorse up to a 10 percent ethanol blend as a suitable oxygenate for their existing cars. Another blend, E-85, uses 85 percent ethanol in its formulation, but this is not a suitable blend for the average automobile on the road.

A small number of "flexible fuel vehicles" — mostly government vehicles — are on the road and are successfully running on the E-85 blend. The flexible fuel vehicles may play a big role in the future, but for now, the majority of us will have to settle for the 10 percent blend.

A major portion of the ethanol being used in gasoline blends is derived from corn. Therefore, as supporters of the corn industry, many of you have been making a conscious effort to purchase ethanol-enhanced gasoline when possible. The problem is, most retail outlets had a barn raising," she said. The barn now houses heifer replacements. "Now the barn is more efficient for what we need.

"It's just been a steady building over the years," she said.

According to Bonnie, the family is blessed with a work force with varied experience, which has resulted in being able to build their own buildings with the help of their part-time workers.

Part-time help Claude Wenger and Norm Zook, plus the full-time help of Darryl Bucher, lend their expertise to the operation. These employees, with their carpentry, electrical, and welding expertise have been able to coordinate the projects.

"Everybody else works hard and does whatever they tell them to do," said Bonnie. "They all get together and have a good time and build a building."

Farm responsibilities are divided among the Wengers and one full-time employee, several part-time employees, and a family who lives on a nearby farm and takes care of the cattle housed there. The couple's three boys, Brad, 12; Brandon, 10; and Nicholas, 4, are already lending their helping hands to the operation and show a definite interest in farming, say the couple.

Thirteen hundred head of cattle also make their home on the farm. Besides raising heifer replacements on contract for a nearby dairy operator, the farm hosts Holstein calves which are grown to 400-pound feeder cattle before they are sold.

The family also keeps a few Holstein steers to finish, which reside on a farm the family recently purchased. The family that lives on the farm then takes care of the cattle. Seventy-five calves a month come from local farms. The bull calves are already a week old by the time they arrive at the farm.

In addition to the cattle, the Wengers also cover approximately 1,500 acres for custom planting, harvesting, and hay mowing work.

Steve is the third generation of Wengers to farm at the land his family lives on. According to Steve, each member has a specific duty "but we all work together — if there's a lot of work on the turkey houses, there might be five or six of us in there. If there is a lot of work in the fields, a few of us will be on the tractors," he said.

Bonnie, the daughter of a Navy nuclear engineer, lived in many locations during her childhood but enjoyed living on a farmette with her family before she met Steve and became a farm wife.

In addition to farming Steve is on the Lebanon County Farm Bureau Board and the South Lebanon Township Planning Commission. He is also involved with the Cedar Crest Young Farmers. Bonnie also helps out with Farm Bureau activities and is the Ag In the Classroom Coordinator for Lebanon County.

"There's a lot of daily work spent on the heifers," said Bonnie. "There are many details and you want to do your best to produce a good quality animal for the customer. A good heifer makes their operation that much better."

Some of these details include watching for sickness, identifying the illness, and treating it, said Bonnie.

"A lot of prevention seems to work better than waiting for something to happen," said Bonnie, who noted that vaccination is one of their biggest weapons against illness. Vitamin additives in the milk replacer, prompt dehorning and banding are "just routine procedures that we have for all the cattle," she said

The Wengers ask that producers have their calves bucket-trained before they are sold to Wen Crest Farm. In addition, most of the bull calves are at least a week old when they come to the farm.

Determining Value Of Bt Corn In The Northeast

Bryan Dillehay
Graduate Student
In Agronomy
Penn State

I have recently begun a graduate program at Penn State to help work on a collaborative project that includes Penn State, the University of Maryland, and Cornell University to begin to access the economic value of many insect-resistant corn hybrids, otherwise known as Bt corn.

Corn growers in the Northeast lose more than $100 million each year to European corn borer infestations. In the past, it has been expensive and difficult to control for European corn borer with conventional insecticides ($15-$20 per acre), and often times without any economic return.

In contrast, recent Bt technology has provided a relatively low cost alternative ($7-$10 per acre) with extraordinary pest control. Field trials have shown that Bt corn provides good yield protection at moderate and high infestations of European corn borer. However, at minimal infestations, the economic benefit of Bt corn is unclear.

Principal investigators on the project that I am working with include Dennis Calvin, Jeff Hyde, Gretchen Kuldau, Greg Roth, and Del Voight (Penn State) and Robert Kratochvil (University of Maryland) and John Losey (Cornell). We will investigate the economic value of Bt corn and how it could fit into an IPM program for the Northeast corn producer.

We will compare Bt hybrids, their near isolines

Ethanol-Blended

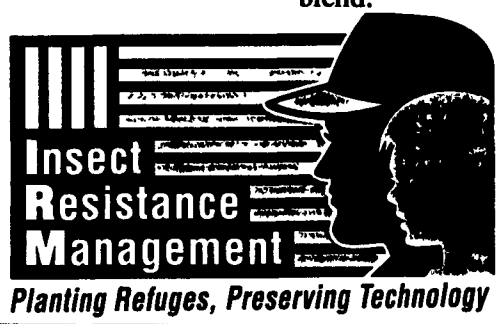
do not yet offer the ethanol blend. Two exceptions to this are the Sunoco and Getty companies.

Sunoco is offering a blend containing up to 10 percent ethanol. Most of the Sunoco outlets selling the ethano blend are located in centra and western Pennsylvania. A representative from Sunoco also said some outlets in Maryland and West Virginia are offering ethanol-blended gasoline on a limited basis.

The Getty Petroleum Company did not respond to our inquiry, but they have a number of stations in and around the Harrisburg and Carlisle regions. Individuals not affiliated with the company have informed us that some of these Getty outlets sell fuel that utilizes an ethanol blend - reportedly lower than the 10 percent blend.



Planting Refuges, Preserving Technology

Consultant Provides No-Till, Nu-Till Advice

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — At the recent Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference, Ed Winkle, Blanchester, Ohio, Hy Mark Consulting, presented his ideas about the no-till and nu-till systems.

"You're probably tired of change, but if you don't change, everybody else will," he said.

He offered several tips to the crop farmers present.

"Dare to plant a little earlier," he said. Using the no- and nu-till systems, producers do not have to wait until the ground warms up to plant. "When the soil is dry and dusty, you've missed your planting window.

"Stage the crop so when major stress comes it does not come during ear-filling time. You are going to have to plant in stress to avoid it in time." He works to plant to guard against weather extremes in June and July.

Farmers should get out in the fields early with their equipment to make sure everything is properly working.

The trouble with traditional no-till is that if a producer plants too early, the disc compacts the ground beside the seed, he said. By removing the no-till coulter in the row area, will avoid sidewall compaction.

If a producer is battling hard ground, "get groundcover on," he said. "You have to get humus."

Winkle also advised farmers to "get some residue between rows for lower erosion." Residue is important because it stops a raindrop's "explosion" upon impact with the ground, which wears away the soil.

Keep your double-disk openers new, replace tires when they wear out, and make sure the seeds are tucked neatly in the bottom of the furrow, he said. "Timing and management is critical. You have to get off and check and check and check.

"Do it one time perfectly," he said. "You can't afford to work the ground several times."

Winkle aims for a soil consistency over the seed that is similar to ashes. A looped 30-inch chain hung from the planter can help to fill in holes in the soil left by the planter. The chains should move one cup of soil pre foot of row.

He also recommended splitting the planter with two different hybrids, which increases pollination and may cause a gain of seven percent in yield. This also allows for comparison between the two strains, besides spreading risk.

"Don't put all your genetic eggs in one basket," he said. Winkle would rather see three to five different genetic bases in one program, depending on the acreage planted.

A single disk opener cuts residue two inches away from the center of the seed trench. Winkle also uses row cleaners to remove the residue and very little soil from the row area.

PCGA Announces Results Of 5-Acre Corn Club Contest

2001 PENNSYLVANIA CORN CLUB SUMMARY

The 2001 season was a variable one for many of us in the corn production business. Planting proceeded at a rapid pace in warm dry soils. Emergence was uneven in some areas. For some the dry conditions persisted throughout the season, but for others timely rains resulted in very good yields. The dry fall conditions resulted in timely harvest at very low grain moistures.

Take a few minutes and review the crop management programs of our champions - they reflect many of the crop management principles that we know result in high yields and environmental stewardship.

Thanks to all who participated in this program to make it a success - the many extension agents and crop consultants who did yield checks, the producers who entered their fields and the industry folks who support our efforts. Also, thanks are due to Mark Antle in the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences for his diligent work in pulling this report together.

Mount Joy Grain Business

farm, includes 250,000 bushels of grain storage space, as well as corn and soybean processing facilities.

Musser said that the grain business originally grew out of an increasing demand for grain drying services in the area. While M&R Grains continues to offer drying services, especially for corn, a main feature that has developed more recently is the roasting operation.

Besides roasting and grinding more than 150,000 bushels of soybeans during the past year, Musser roasted and "flaked" nearly all of the 30,000 bushels of corn that he handled. Increased feed palatability of the roasted, crimped kernels has increased the demand for the product in recent years, he said.

"Roasting seems to make starch more available (to the animal)," he said.

M&R Grains also rents out storage space for grain. Farmers can call several months before harvest to be guaranteed a space for their crop.

Most of the grain is delivered by growers from northern and western parts of Lancaster County. Some also comes in from Lebanon County.

Musser forward contracts some corn and soybeans for farmers during the summer, relying on local grain markets and trends to determine the fairest prices.

"I try to come up with (a price) where I can make some money and the farmer makes some money," he said.

Using a satellite receiver on the roof and a computer screen in his office, Musser keeps a close watch on weather and market conditions, which are updated several times per hour.

According to Musser, established customers and word of mouth advertising have sustained M&R Grains since he took the helm in '86.

In addition to running the grain business and the home farm, Musser rents about 250 acres, growing about 180 acres of corn, along with wheat and barley.

His wife, Sue, assists with bookkeeping and their two youngest sons, Dustin, 18, and Cody, 17, help on the farm evenings and Saturdays. Father Harold Musser also lends a hand.

Until 1997, Musser managed a milking herd of about 45 cows on the farm besides running the grain business. At that time, he decided to convert the dairy into a beef feedlot operation.

Dairying had become a situation where "either you had to get bigger or get out," he said. So he decided to keep the grain business and instead of milking cows, feed out steers on contract.

Custom feeding 150 head of beef makes use of both the grain operation and the former dairy facilities.

"We're utilizing all silos and the Slurrystore," Musser said. Processed feed grain, of course, is handily available from the bins nearby.

Since starting the beef operation, Musser had a roof installed over the barnyard/feedlot in 1998 to prevent manure runoff, a project that was cost-shared by the Farm Service Agency.

Along with the beef operation, the combination of grain services Musser provides to local farmers adds up to a thriving business, even during adverse conditions such as the recent droughts.

Being willing to adapt to new situations is important, according to Musser. One example was the switch from dairy to beef four years ago. Some people view those kind of changes as a sign of "losing," but not Musser.

When it comes to running a business, "You don't lose till you die," he said.

Corn Growers Maintain High-Level Management Of Biotech Hybrids, Survey Shows

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn growers continue to show responsible management of the environment by practicing good stewardship of crops developed through biotechnology, the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) announced recently.

A recent survey of U.S. corn growers who grow biotech hybrids showed the majority of those farmers are implementing management practices that will help avoid the potential of insect resistance to Bt (Bacillus thuringiensis) corn. Results of the survey conducted during harvest 2001 were forwarded to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on Jan. 31.

"This survey shows U.S. corn growers understand the need to follow good insect resistance management practices and are implementing these practices on a broad scale. Nine out of 10 Bt cornfields were planted within a half mile of the appropriate non-Bt refuge," said Leon Corzine, a corn grower from Assumption, Ill., and chairman of the NCGA Biotechnology Working Group.

"The survey results demonstrate that when given the appropriate information corn growers are responsible stewards of this technology. It's also an indication of how we are working to maintain the long-term sustainability of new technology as it becomes available. This is another example of how corn

Five-Acre Corn Club Winners Announced

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — The recent Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference drew more than 125 producers and industry representatives to a one-day event conducted here at the Holiday Inn.

The Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA), Pennsylvania Soybean Board, and Penn State Cooperative Extension sponsored the event.

Contest results are also a highlight of the conference. There were 84 participants in the Five-Acre Corn Club Contest, according to PCGA president Guy Wagner. Even though the numbers "were a little off" in comparison to other years, yields were better than expected in view of the dry growing season, he said.

- Harry Johnston, McConnellsburg, took first place with an average of 191.7 bushels per acre with Pioneer 33G26.
- Second place went to Wayne Freeman, Elliottsburg, with 173.9 bushels per acre with NC+5878Bt.
- Jeffery Reed. Emporium, took home a third place with an average of 173.6 bushels per acre with Pioneer 39D81.

Shelled Corn Tilled:

- Donna Coleman, Ronks, took home a first place in the shelled corn tilled class with a yield of 248.3 bushels per acre and a plant population of 31,886 with Pioneer 33B51.
- Second place in the same class went to D. Richard Snyder, Montoursville, with a yield of 235.8 and plant population of 28,677 with Pioneer 31G98.
- Third place in the same class was L. Zook & Sons, Oley, with a yield of 227.4 bushels per acre and plant population of 26,479 with Pioneer 33A14.

In the shelled corn no-till class:

- Carl Shaffer, Mifflinville, had a yield of 218.9 bushels per acre and plant population of 27,463 and took first with Pioneer 33A14.
- David Hileman, Tyrone, took home a second place with a yield of 215.7 and plant population of 29,621 with Pioneer 33A14.
- Third place was Nelson Beam, Elverson, using Pioneer 33B51 with a yield of 208.4 bushels per acre and a plant population of 29,795.

- Kenneth Glazier, McConnellsburg, had a first place win with a yield of 213.5 bushels per acre with a population of 22,916 using Hubner H3505.

Experts Suggest Focus Can Help Crop Farmers Weather Hard Times

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania crop farmers face a "double whammy" in 2002 — declining crop prices and the drought. But there are ways they can improve their production and profits.

"Farmers can weather these difficult times by focusing on three basic considerations — cost of production, yield, and price," said Greg Roth, associate professor of agronomy at the Penn State University Department of Crop and Soil Sciences.

"It's more important than ever for farmers to take a comprehensive approach to crop production and to get the best possible advice," said Jeff Schneck, certified crop adviser (CCA), a member of the Pennsylvania CCA board of directors. The commonwealth's CCAs are trying to make farmers more aware of CCA services and their value.

Roth believes that CCAs play an important role because of their ability to help producers across Pennsylvania address crop production and profits.

"To control cost of production, you have to know your chemicals and weeds. CCAs also help promote soil testing to develop ways to use the inherent fertility as a resource and to keep fertilizer costs to a reasonable level," Roth said.

Roth suggests that farmers can adopt new techniques that will help enhance yields, such as using new hybrids, new tillage systems, and new planting equipment.

commodity, and farmers have some influence over price by improving the value of their crops. Soil fertility issues, superior hybrid selection, and disease monitoring all are critical to that value," Roth said.

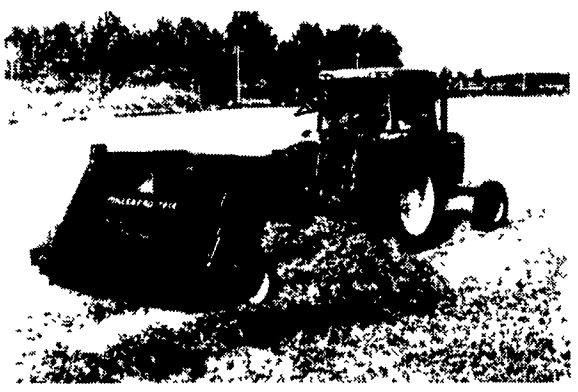
Hay Buddy™ power mergers speed harvest and improve hay quality. Forage is lifted with a gentle sweeping motion and cascades forward onto a wide, endless belt conveyor.



Hay Buddy™ Power Merger Benefits
- Speeds harvesting so more hay is put into storage at peak quality
- Moves and fluffs hay to promote drying
- Gentle action saves more leaves
- Fewer stones and rocks are found in the windrow than with wheel rakes
- Greater volume of material in a merged windrow means that harvesting equipment
  - makes fewer passes over the field
  - operates at a lower ground speed
  - has fewer hours of operation
  - uses less fuel
  - requires fewer man hours
- Reduces soil compaction with fewer trips over the field made by large machinery and heavy loads

...which adds up to big savings!

Independent Seed Trial Company Grows

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — An independent competitive seed testing network developed in Illinois in 1997 has expanded its service to include regions in Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Farmer's Independent Research of Seed Technologies (F.I.R.S.T.) provides 144 locations for testing in major corn-growing areas. More than 50 seed companies from across the country have products tested by F.I.R.S.T., according to a brochure released by the network.

Rob Kauffman of Mount Joy serves as F.I.R.S.T. manager for the Mid-Atlantic region — areas in southeastern and central Pennsylvania and in Delaware.

"There's a need out there for third-party research," Kauffman said.

While universities conduct independent research on seed varieties, Kauffman said the advantage of F.I.R.S.T. is that corn varieties are tested in the fields of farmer "cooperators."

Kauffman pointed out rapid turnaround times for information compiled by F.I.R.S.T.

"It goes to the Website within three days," he said.

The testing is funded by seed companies. Corn varieties are tested for yield, moisture, and lodging. Plant populations are also tallied, and diseases are recorded when observed. Each trial is replicated three times at each site.

The F.I.R.S.T. network tested 48 hybrids in 2001. Cooperators are allowed to choose two hybrids they would like to see tested on their plots, Kauffman said.

Six test sites for corn and four for soybeans are selected from each region. Finding cooperators for the Mid-Atlantic program has not been a problem, according to Kauffman.

"Farmers have really taken to this program," he said.

When the final trial results are recorded after testing, the top 24 hybrids from each location and region are then listed on the F.I.R.S.T. Website and in hybrid report publications.

For more information, call Kauffman at (717) 492-9894 or see the Website at www.agsci.com.

We have also developed a new logo, which may be found at our new Website, www.pacorngrowers.org. Take the time to give it a look. The board and myself are quite pleased with it.

The board and I would like to ask all corn growers in the state to join PCGA. Remember your membership is actually free because you receive a bag of seed corn of your choice for signing up. It would be great to get as many new members as possible into PCGA.

I would like to thank the board of directors for all of the help and support they have given me this year. A special word of thanks is always due for Greg Roth, without everyone's help, none of this could happen.

I'd like to wish everyone a good and safe year in 2002, I know this business has been quite difficult the last several years, but we at PCGA will do our best to help producers stay educated and profitable in the year ahead.

Thank you very much and good luck to all.

Here's a sampling of some of our best dual purpose - SILAGE and GRAIN - hybrids
At 107 days, 596XY is a substantial plant with very good late season intactness. It likes good fertility but does not require high populations for high performance.
At 111 days, 638XYG is our YieldGard® version of 636XY. With yield enhancing, corn borer resistance, it too has demonstrated a superb performance.
At 109 days, 636XY is, has been, and probably always will be a consistent, high quality grain and silage yielder.
At 114 days, YieldGard® variety 749XYG is & has been a consistent, high quality dual purpose yielder when used in moderate populations and high fertility.
For SILAGE ONLY varieties, consider S807Q (120 days), S707Q (115 days), S507L (105 days), S407L (98 days) and our new, very early 317SL (91 days).
YieldGard® is a trademark of Monsanto.

Evaluate Numerous Sources When Choosing Corn Hybrids

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Farmers should evaluate corn performance data from as many locations as possible when choosing hybrids to plant next season.

Ohio State University agronomist Peter Thomison said that results of the 2001 Ohio Corn Performance Trials showed that variable environmental conditions throughout the state during the growing season affected the performance of corn from county to county and even field to field within a county. Results of the test are available online at http://www.oardc.ohio-state.edu/corn2001.

"The main thing that stood out was stalk lodging that was so severe this year. A hybrid at one location lodged significantly, while the same hybrid in an adjacent field didn't lodge at all," said Thomison. "The one message that farmers should come away with is that it's very important for them to use as many sources of information as possible to determine hybrids with good standability."

In past performance trials, lodging in hybrids has often been limited or negligible — normally less than five percent. In this year's trial, average lodging ranged from 23-25 percent with some hybrids experiencing as high as 80 percent lodging. Stalk lodging, the final stage of stalk rot, is the breakage of stalks below the ear. Stalk lodging slows down harvest and causes a loss in yield from corn that falls to the ground.

"The results demonstrate that the environment can have a big impact on corn performance within such a small area and that what hybrids you choose and what management practices you follow can have major consequences on yield."

Ohio State researchers evaluated 229 corn hybrids representing 39 commercial brands for such characteristics as yield, standability, maturity and quality traits like protein, oil and starch contents. The hybrids were split into early-maturing and late-maturing categories in the hopes that the difference in maturity would provide a more accurate assessment of hybrid performance.

NCGA Nominates 2003 Corn Board Members

The NCGA has announced candidates for the 2003 NCGA Corn Board. Candidates are Jamie Jamison, Dickerson, Md.; Richard Peterson, Mountain Lake, Minn.; Ron Olson, Waubay, S.D.; Kyle Phillips, Knoxville, Iowa; Ken McCauley, White Cloud, Kan.; Scott Wall, Yuma, Colo.; and Cal Dalton, Pardeeville, Wis.

Corn Board elections will be conducted during the July 22-23 Corn Congress meeting in Washington, D.C.

Join The Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association Today

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Joining the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association (PCGA) is easier than ever. A one-year membership is just $30. You you can join online at https://gims.ncga.com/MEMBERNEW/Default.asp or simply fill out the membership form and send to our address.

PCGA is continuing the Membership Incentive Program (MIP) this year. The theme of the program is "Try Something New."

Take this opportunity to experiment when you choose your free bag of seed corn. This seed corn company sponsored program entitles any PCGA/NCGA corn grower, who plants at least five acres of corn with a 3-year new or renewed membership, to a free standard size bag of seed.

To participate, simply complete the membership form indicating the brand of seed corn you would like to try, along with your check for the 3-year membership. You will then receive a certificate for a free bag of seed from the sponsoring company of your choice, along with your membership card from NCGA.

In consultation with the local seed corn dealer, you make the ultimate decision about which hybrid you will receive from the company you have selected. PCGA will send the names and addresses by brand chosen to the appropriate seed corn company's statewide contact person and they will contact you.

In addition, you'll be joining thousands of other growers across the country who are showing their support for the corn industry. Locally, you'll be supporting PCGA's activities such as Corn Talk, our corn or crops conference, and local corn promotion activities.

Membership Program Awards Prizes For Recruiters

Now you can help the PCGA get new members and win some valuable prizes.

The PCGA is participating in a new membership program sponsored by NCGA and Syngenta to reward folks who recruit members for our association. To qualify, you need to recruit five new members in one of the next three months.

Prizes will be awarded to the top recruiters who have recruited a minimum of five new members in Pennsylvania for each month. In January, the prize will be a Palm Pilot. In February, the prize will be a $300 gift certificate to Sears. In March, the prize will be a gourmet ham plus a $100 gift certificate for groceries at a local supermarket.

To participate, make copies of the PCGA membership form in Corn Talk. Ask folks to complete the membership form and put your name on the Recruiter line on the bottom, and then send the form to the PCGA office. Or they can join online (https://gims.ncga.com/MEMBERNEW/Default.asp) and enter your name in the appropriate line on the application. We'll keep a record of the awards and send the prize to the qualifying recruiter at the end of the month.

STRATEGIES FOR CORN PRODUCTION IN 2002

With the prognosis for continued low prices and the threat of drought looming on the horizon, let's discuss some ideas that we can use to maintain profitability of corn production in 2002.

One of the first options in this year of uncertainty is to explore the options of crop insurance that have been discussed at many of the meetings we have conducted this fall. Hopefully many of you have taken in one of these sessions this winter and are aware of the options available and the reduced cost of coverage this year.

On the production side, our objectives should be to keep costs and risks as low as possible. Inputs costs for N, seed, and chemicals appear to have moderated this winter, so be sure to shop for the best deals on inputs if you haven't done so already. Given some of the uncertainty that exists out there, this is not the time for experimenting with unproven inputs or those that have a low rate of return.

The dry fall and the subsequent relatively dry winter should have translated into less soil compaction and N leaching. Given that, I would consider less tillage, more no-tillage, and certainly using the previous crop N credits in formulating your N program. The dry fall has also resulted in drier-than-normal subsoil at this point. While this could and hopefully will change before planting, I would continue to focus on at least some proven hybrids with good drought tolerance ratings — particularly for those areas with less-than-ideal soils.

The decision to grow corn should be re-evaluated. Corn is a popular crop because there are good local markets and it's often the most profitable alternative we have. But on some dairy farms, growing corn for grain is not profitable, and many dairy farms have realized this. We also need to push the pencil on production on low-yield acres. One consultant I spoke with this year has been trying to identify low-yield acres that are perennial losers for his clients and switch them to other crops.

For corn growers on livestock farms, its time to revisit your phosphorus fertility program. If you haven't already, make sure you are not adding additional P over and above crop needs that might make you more vulnerable to P-based nutrient management that appears on the horizon. Based on some of our recent research, eliminating starter, using a low-rate pop-up, or substituting more N for P in the starter could all be lower-cost, lower-P alternatives.

These are a few of the ideas would consider for 2002. No doubt it will be another unique season with unique challenges.

Corn Growers Launch Website

Greg Roth
Penn State Agronomy
Associate Professor

The Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association recently launched their new Website at the 2002 Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference.

The Website contains recent PCGA news items, and links to the NCGA and to the Weather Channel. It also provides links to the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club as well as the National Corn Yield Contest results.

The Website also has links to the Penn State Corn and Soybean Management page as well as NCGA's World of Corn page. Both are good sources of information.

The Website also allows visitors to check local and national corn prices and current grain marketing news through a link to the NCGA News, Weather and Markets page that is provided by DTN. This page can be customized to your own needs and location. There is also a link available to "take action" and contact your state or national legislator.

The Website address is www.pacorngrowers.org. Our association has also obtained a new e-mail address: info@pacorngrowers.org. If you've got access to the Internet, check it out and let us know what you think.

Value Of Bt

(same genetics but without Bt), and popular traditional hybrids from five prominent seed companies sold within the Northeast. In addition, the investigators will be evaluating the different hybrids on numerous characteristics ranging from yield and test weight to toxins and disease.

So far, two years of information has been collected, with the third and final year of the experiment being planted this spring. The field trials have been grown at two locations in Maryland, and four locations in Pennsylvania. Preliminary interpretations are indicating a yield advantage to using Bt corn of about eight bushels per acre; however, this value varied among locations and years.

For example, during the year 2001, a trial that was grown in Hershey, had a high infestation of European corn borer and, consequently, the Bt hybrids yielded a 12-bushel-per-acre advantage over their isolines. Alternatively at the same location in 2000, a slightly lower infestation occurred, and the Bt hybrids did not provide any advantage.

Concurrently, an interesting trend that is appearing in this study is that Bt corn takes longer to dry down as compared to conventional hybrids. At harvest, Bt hybrids are exhibiting between 0.1 percent and three percent differences in moisture content, depending on the location. Averaged over all sites, the Bt hybrids have been about 0.9 percent wetter.

Harvesting at a high moisture can lead to increased drying costs or may call for harvest dates to be delayed slightly. In addition, we have found no differences among the test weights of Bt hybrids and their isolines. Ears and grain from the plots are being evaluated for ear molds and mycotoxin levels.

Farmers have identified research on the use of genetically altered crops for pest management as a top priority in previous IPM surveys. The results of this multiyear study will be provided to extension agents and industry personnel as well. We are also planning to develop an extension publication and conduct several field days next year that will explain the project results in more detail.
